Massive Photoplay Seen at the Nickel

IRANEZ PHOTOPLAY IS MAE MURRAY'S BEST.

Ms. Murray has done it again. She has scored another real triumph in "Circe the Enchantress," her new Metro-Goldwyn starring picture, which opened at the Nickel Theatre yesterday.

"Circe the Enchantress" was written especially for Miss Murray by Vicente Blazquez, author of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and other famous novels, and it supplies her with one of the best stories in which she has ever appeared.

Blazquez has based the story on the mythical goddess, Circe. This episode of the picture has been transferred to the screen in a very colorful way and is an interesting novelty as well as furnishing a foundation for the real story that follows.

In the real story Miss Murray portrays the part of Cecile Brunne who is a modern Circe until she meets one man who fails to succumb to her charm. From this point on it develops into a fast moving romance such as Blazquez only can develop and in which Miss Murray is at her best.

Robert Z. Leonard, who directed "Circe the Enchantress," deserves credit along with Miss Murray and Blazquez for the manner in which he has handled the picture.

The supporting cast for "Circe the Enchantress" includes James Kirkwood, William Haines, Charles Gerard, Gene Cameron, Thomas Ricketts and Lillian Langdon. The photoplay was made by Tiffany production of which Mr. Leonard is director, general and M. H. Hoffman is general manager.

Dame Partington and her Mop Again

You remember the energetic Dame Partington who endeavored to sop up the ocean with her mop? Well, there are still a few Dame Partingtons trying vainly to stem the tide of Chrysler success. They have entirely missed the full significance of that success. They do not yet realize that the Chrysler represents a complete over-turning of previous precedents which has taken the public by storm. They see but cannot believe—that engineering practice, motor measurements, utilization of space, weight, height and balance, standards of power, speed and acceleration, compactness and artistry of body design must change to conform to the Chrysler conquest of public opinion. Confronted with an entirely new expression of motor car practice and performance which is striding across the country in seven league boots, and making an equally profound impression across the sea—they strive to console themselves by the timid suggestion that the Chrysler 'may be a one year car'. Even that consolation is denied them. Chrysler engineers began the revolutionary processes which resulted in the Chrysler Six four years ago. Untrammelled by prohibitive investment in shop-equipment which would have forced them to follow old practice, these engineers had full sway to go far beyond the furthest and finest point anyone had dared or was able to go in the past. For two years Chrysler cars, unknown to the public, traveled tens of thousands of miles, proving the soundness of their conclusions. The first cars 'off the line' were ready to do, and did do, all that the pioneer cars accomplished before them. At this writing, more than 37,000 Chrysler cars are verifying the engineering soundness of Chrysler design—proving unparalleled speed and power unequalled acceleration, phenomenal climbing ability, superb riding quality. The more than $70,000,000 already invested by the public in the Chrysler Sixes is only the beginning of Chrysler success—the tide of popular approval will continue to rise indefinitely, because nothing can stop the onward sweep of any achievement which contributes to the economic progress of the race.
