ROFESSOR PAUL.

The Story of a Life's Love.

(By Stuart Livingston, Barrister, Hamilton.) (By Stuatt Livingston, Barrister, Hamilton.)

"I stood for a moment dazed and motionless. I scarcely dared breathe. Then I turned, and exerting all my strength I cautiously dragged a heavy box across the floor, and placed it against the door. I was afraid some one might enter and claim it from me. I slipped off my shoes, and walked noiselessly around it several times.
I dared not touch it, for I knew from the little I had been able to discover that the mechanism must be of a very delicate mature, and easily displaced.

mechanism must be of a very delicate nature, and easily displaced.

"I remember well, my friend, that I was forced to pass the entire night there, for when it became at length too dark to see, and I returned to the door, I found after repeated trials that I was wholly unable to move the box away, although under the tension of my extreme excitement I had dragged it a considerable distance to place it was thus obliged to remain until re. I was thus obliged to remain until rning, as I did not dare to remove any morning, as I did not dare to remove any of the contents of the box in the darkness, not knowing with what it might be filled. I studied the mechanism of the globe and reflectors almost continually, until at last I knew that I was master of their secret. I will never forget that night, when after the globe, when it is not the secret of the secret is a secret of the secret is not the secret of the secret is not the secret of the secret is not to be secret of the secret of th

I turned in voluntarily in my chair, and waited. It seemed to have come from the tall case in which Professor Paul kept the skeleton. I listened intently, but it did not occur again, so perhaps I had been mistaken.

I then fell to wondering whose bones those were that filled that unsightly box. Perhapide over the state of the stat

Peculiarities of the Hair.
There are times when all persons require to pay some particular attention to the hair. To rekindle the life and energy of the roots is a simple matter if taken in time. Dr. Dorenwend's Great German Hair Magic will do the work. It works in accordance with nature, supplies fresh nourishment to the glands, keeping the hair luxuriant and natural in shade. He sure to get it; you cannot afford to miss it. Every druggist sells it. It is money well spent. See Dorenwend's advertisement in another column. Carter's Little Liver Pills must not be confounded with common Cathartic or Purgative Pills, as they are entirely unlike them in every respect. One trial will prove their superiority.

From Vladivostock to St. Petersburg the distance by the great Russian railway will be 6,855 miles, and at an average speed of 25 miles an hour this would require 11 days and 11 hours. The remaining stage from St. Petersburg to London requires at present 2 days and 20 hours.

The actual time required for the round-the-world trip, if connections are closely made, will therefore be as follows:
