marriage of John Miller and Miss Bertha been performed early in the evening at the getting as much enjoyment out of the few minutes remaining as possible. A waltz was struck up by the orchestra and the floor

Brunner tried to raise his companion to her feet, but she fell back limp. Others then came to his assistance. The music then stopped, and the young bride and groom and wedding guests crowded around the prostrate girl. Is was thought she had fainted only. Restoratives were resorted to, but they failed to revive her. Physicians were sent for, and the young woman was carried into a room in Muller's apartments. Dr. Mullner was the first physician to arrive. He pronounced her dead.

Soon other physicians arrived. They all agreed that death must have been almost instantaneous. Heart trouble, they said, was the cause. On Sunday morning when a coroner went to view the body of Miss Pigott it was still in the building in which she died, guarded by a few of her companions. The young woman was richly dressed and is said to have worn several hundred dollars worth of jewelry. Later the Morgue wagon came and the body was placed in a coffin. Ground for Gossip.

London, Jan. 27.—There is a good deal of fresh gossip about the Marquis of Hartington and the Duchess of Manchester. The nair have been guests of Baron Hirsch at Wretham Hall, Norfolk, the Prince of Wales and Lady Randolph Churchill also being of the company. The Princess of Wales was not there. It was one of the jolliest parties of the season, and game was slaughtered by the carload. The Marquis and Duchess showed each other marked attention, taking but little apparent interest in the pheasant shooting.

Rescind the Resolution Ostracising

THE BRITISH COMMONS

Revival of the Rumors Regarding Mr.

London, Jan. 28.—In the House of Commons Sir William Guyer Hunter moved that the resolution of the House of June, 1880, forbidding Charles Bradlaughito take the oath or to affirm be expunged from the records as subversive of the rights of electors.

Solicitor-General Clarke opposed the motion, saying it was not in accordance with the traditions of the House. The record, he said, was historical, and could not be effaced in this manner.

Mr. Gladstone supported the motion to expunge the resolution, claiming it was an excess of jurisdiction in an assembly like the House, holding almost unmeasurable power without appeal. Excess of jurisdiction, said Mr. Gladstone, was the greatest fault such an assembly could commit, leaving on record an error which might be turned to evil account in evil times. To see that the House did not trespass over the limits of its functions was one of the highest and most sacred duties. (Cheers.) Mr. Gladstone suggested that the motion would be acceptable to every hady by omitting the words, "subversive of the rights of electors.

William Henry Smith, First Lord of the Treasury, expressed the general sorrow which was felt at the illness of Mr. Bradlaugh, and the motion as amended was passed. The result was greeted with hearty cheers.

Mr. Bradlaugh, who was reported to be improving, has suffered a relapse.

The Chester Courant claims its authority to state that Mr. Gladstone is about to resign the leadership of the party. Mr. Gladstone, when shown the Courant's statement, declined to confirm or deny it. The Courant says Mr. Gladstone will retire from the Liberal leadership unless public events take a turn not at present anticipated, and that communications of the past fortnight between Mr. Gladstone and his colleagues have revealed; dissensions which nothing but his withdrawal can possibly heal.

Sayward, libeled for catching seals in Behring Sea 49 miles from shore, has been filed with the Supreme Court. The position of the United States Government is thus stated; The Government of the United States oppose the filing of the petition for a writ of prohibition to the District Court of Alaska in this case for the following reasons:

This is conclusive upon the judiciary.

Argument is made at length and citations of authority given to prove that the Alaska Court is not a District Court; and that the fact of the proceedings shows jurisdiction, and in such a case after sentence prombits it will not issue. Fourteen pages are de-voted to arguing that the question is a political one and that the Supreme Court has no right to interfere. Solicitor-General Taft recited in court

Solicitor-General Tate recited in court yeaterday the points in the Attorney-General's brief, and the latter argued as above in support of them. He was followed by Calderon Carlisle and Mr. Choate in opposition to his argument.

About 1 in 12 of the Inhabitants of St. Johns Has Recently Had Diphtheria.

OTTAWA, Jan. 27.—During the past two years there have been 2,499 cases of diphtheria in the city of St. Johns, Nfld., with a population of 30,000, which shows that about 1 in every 12 was attacked by the terrible disease. It is estimated that the rate of mortality was 1 out of every 5 attacked. Every effort was made by the Board of Health to stay the plague, but with very little apparent effect. There has been something mysterious and inexplicable in the present visitation. It has not been caused by bad sewerage. The city is built on the slope of a hill, the soil of the site is porous, and the streets dry up quickly after the heaviest rain. Though the sewerage is far from being what it should be, yet in most parts of the city it is fair, and the supply of the purest water is unlimited.

It would be difficult to find any city so well suppled with the best water as St. Johns. It was noted, too, that the best streets and those best drained suffered in many cases more than the back lanes and undrained portions. Besides, since the disease appeared, the greatest attention has been paid to the seavenging of the city by the municipal council.

The doctors say that the state of the sewage has had little to do with the continuance of the disease. Whence it came, or how it obtained such a footing, or what were the causes of its persistent ravages, are yet unsolved mysteries. Experience goes to show that it is not a dirt disease.

are yet unsolved mysteries. Experience goes to show that it is not a dirt disease. It penetrated into some of the best houses, and the country around suffered quite as much, in proportion to the number of inhabitants, as the city itself.
