LONG LIVE THE SHAH!

Muzafer-ed-Din Proclaimed Ruler, of Persia-The Late Shah's Character. Tiflis, May 2.-Immediately after the death of the Shah, the heir-apparent, Muzafer-ed-Din, was proclaimed Shah. Russia and Great Britain recognized Muzafer-ed-Din as heir to the Persian throne in 1858. The Grand Vizier will govern until the arrival of the new with full particulars of their claims and statement of their accounts, and the nature of the security, if any, held by them. And notice is hereby further given that after the said 12th day of May, 1896, the said executor will proceed to distribute the assets of the said deceased among the persons entitled thereto, having regard only to such as he shall then have notice of, and the said executor will not be liable for the assets or any part thereof so distributed to any person or persons of whose claim or claims he shall not then have had notice. Fraser & Fraser solicitors for the crude and barbaric notions gained from City Hospital Tenders lack of contact with civilization, it being an unwritten law in Persia that the heir-apparent shall not live at the capital city. After taking the throne his character changed, and he developed into a civilized ruler anxious to improve his country.

The Shah was very exclusive in his family life, always dining alone at the palace, and never deviating from the custom of his country in the management of his household. His ruling passion was for hunting. To gratify his love for this form of sport the Shah maintained large game preserves, which he visited every summer.
