He struck against a pile of ties and was caught by the legs by the derrick car. Car Foreman Flynn, of this city, was on the car at the time but he did not jump and scaped injury. The conductor, however, was pinned so tightly that jacks had to be used to raise the car before he could be released. He was carried to a caboose and brought to the city. The ambulance was waiting, and i as quickly conveyed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where Doctors Jento and Chapman attended him. It was found hat the right leg was broken just above the ankle, while the left leg was rushed and sprained. It is not likely that amputation will be necessary. Conductor Nolan is well known on the road, and the trainmen generlly will regret to hear of the mishap His parents reside on Wellington street

But To Be Killed in War Without Being Able to Resist

Robs Him of Glory.

Tokio, Japan, Aug. 19. - A writer in an English newspaper printed in Yoko-hama refers to the suicide of the Japanese officers on board the transport Hitachi Maru when that vessel was sunk by Russian cruisers some days ago in the Genkai Sea and says it is time the Japanese officers were impressed with the fact that in commicting suicide they are not benefiting their country as much as they would do if they sought to save their lives. That is the western view; the point of view of the Japanese is very dif-

to seek to save his life in such cirumstances. The Japanese soldier believes that if he is killed by the enemy under such Mrs. Hodges, of Hope street. conditions as those which confronted the troops of the Hitachi Maru, if he ed from a ten weeks' visit to England. is killed without being able to offer Mr. Beal's health is greatly improved resistance, he does not achieve merit by the trip, which was the first taken as he would if he voluntarily released his soul by committing "hara-kiri," or 34 years. SOLE otherwise taking his life, If he dies by the knife held in his own hands, as his fathers died on the stricken delds of old, the honorable patriotic influence esultant from such an end is felt after is death. In seeking suicide the soldier does not seek to avoid pain or other threatening misery; self-slaughter in such avenue, city. circumstances as those in which the officers of the Hitachi Maru took their lives was not to escape either pain or misery, or even death at the hand of the foe. It was the last positive act of the moribund in pursuit of the loftiest ideals of patriotism and racial honor. Therefore, it is futile for the Occidental to write pointing out to these men of Japan that they should not commit "hara-kiri." In time, perhaps, their view of these things may change, but that time is still distant, Now, the self-effacement of the soldier who falls into the hands of the foe or fails to reach the goal he seeks is practically a religious act, purely ideal, strength worship of the
