THE TAMATAVE AFFAIR.

FRANCE MAKING INVESTIGATION

LONDON, July 12 .- The French government has informed England that they await official advices from Tamatave before replying to Lord Granville's demand. The report of the doings of the French in Madagascar came from the consul at Zanzibar. The French government has telegraphed to Madagascar for details.

In the house of lords this afternoon the marquis of Salisbury questioned Lord in Madagascar waters would be increased. Lord Granville said a public statement might be misconstrued, more so as he had England over the Tamatave affair must have arisen from a misconception of the have arisen from a misconception of the feelings of the French cabinet, whose sinch churches with a view to have special colleccere wish was to cultivate cordial relations with England. M Ferry believed the occurence at Tamatave was exaggerated. The deceased British consul was known to be

Parrs, July 12.—The evening papers believe that no serious difficulty will arise out of the Tamatave trouble. Le Temps thinks England has magnified a very small affair. The Journal des Debats expresses the same opinion, and points to what it describes the growing tendency on the part of the English to consider themselves entitled to exemptions imposed by international law on neutral nations.

The authorities complain loudly of the action of rowdies who robbed persons and houses. When a boat-load of bread was being distributed among the water-bound inmates of these houses these scoundrels fought to obtain it. This is a specimen out of the book of dark deeds. When police meet police then comes the tug of war. This adage, altered to suit the occasion, was fully exemplified at the orange games at Exhibition park yesterday afternoon. Two teams of city policemen contested in a tug of war for the silver lass, as returned to parliament in compliance with the law, showed that fully 20,000 shares, the face value of which is two millions ($2,000,000), and the market value, over three millions, are held by the "little machine" and concerns of the same stamp, by loan companies and speculators generally. The balance of the capital, less than one million face value, is held by those who are likely to be investors.
