

TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Edmonton, Alberta, Can.—“I think it is no more than right for me to thank you for what your kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me.

“When I wrote to you some time ago I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had organic inflammation and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend your medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and think they are fine. I will never be without the medicine in the house.”—Mrs. FRANK EMSLEY, 903 Columbia Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

The Other Case.
Beatrice, Neb.—“Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and have two little girls.”—Mrs. R. B. CHILD, Beatrice, Neb.

NOTE AND COMMENT

General Joffre pays a striking compliment to the fighting qualities of the Western Allies in his latest tabloid speech: French soldiers fight with enthusiasm and valour; Belgians with heroic persistence, and British with determination and grimness.

According to the London Times, the Emperor of Germany told a delegation of bankers that the war would end in October. The bankers insisted on an interview in order to point out to the emperor the financial difficulties of the situation and the grave risk attending the purchase of the campaign through another winter. The bankers are alleged to have declared that even if the war was brought to an end immediately and an indemnity obtained, Germany's position would be difficult, but that if the war was prolonged the German empire would become utterly bankrupt. It was in reply to these representations, according to the Times, that the emperor is understood to have declared that the war would end in October.

WATFORD DRUGGIST PLEASES CUSTOMERS

Taylor & Son report customers greatly pleased with the QUICK action of simple buckhorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-ka. This simple remedy drains the old foul matter from the bowels so THOROUGH that ONE SPOONFUL relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour or grassy stomach. It is so powerful that it is used successfully in appendicitis. Adler-ka never gripes and the INSTANT action is surprising. Taylor & Son, druggists.

German Idea of Britain

German and Austrian newspapers are reported to be deeply concerned about the “British conquests in Northern France.” According to these authorities Britain is not a faithful ally, but is acting in the districts they occupy for military purposes as if it was in actual possession of the country. Indeed, the British have simply reduced it to the level of a crown colony, have introduced the English language and taken over local administration. This has created intense friction between the British and French authorities, and created indignation among the French population, who are prevented from giving it public expression. All this nonsense is, no doubt, eagerly swallowed by the German and Austrian peoples. The trouble for them is that nothing ever comes of this or the previous fables they have been invited to believe. But the public everywhere has a short memory, as has been and is frequently demonstrated in Canada.

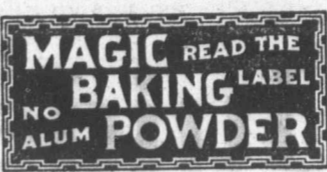

Germans are not alone in transferring their own notions to other peoples. To the German mind an opportunity such as that afforded in northwestern France to Britain could not fail to be seized. Once in on the footing of an ally, Britain will remain as conqueror and possessor. The idea that the British Government and the British people can be actuated by other than interested motives is entirely foreign to the German, taught as he is that might makes right and that obligations are only “scraps of paper” to be torn up with impunity. The German is as impervious to the teaching of history as he is to the claim of honor, and only the British withdrawal when the time comes will show him his mistake. Even then, unless he learns the lesson of the war aright, he will be as loud in his derision of Britain for not taking advantage of the chance to establish herself in the continent at the expense of her loyal ally.

The Youth and the City

Canada displays symptoms of city madness; a Roman contempt for things provincial; undue respect for metropolitan traits and unfair disparagement of village ways. The youth freshly transplanted from the small town too often acquires quickly a contempt for the place of his upbringing and is free with his scorn against the hamlet that sent him forth. The native urbanite ignores the existence of settlements outside the big leagues. It is charged that small town folk are impertinently inquisitive as to the affairs of their neighbors. The accusation may be made as justly that city-dwellers are prone to be indifferent altogether to their neighbors; unconcerned as to whether they fare ill or well. Small town folk are slow, it is said. Large town folk lay themselves open to the counter-insinuation of being too fast. The city has been discovered by the people of the lesser towns, but the lesser towns are largely undiscovered. England prides itself on the beauty of old villages off the beaten lines of travel. The Dominion will awaken some day to a similar pride. In England persons of wealth and culture seek out villages for places of residences; we trust that this will never be done to such an extent here that our small towns will suffer. Ontario contains places rich in peace and beauty; where the extremes of too much or too little are not met with. They are peopled largely with old Canadian stock and the city's worst problems do not confront them. Wide streets and quietude; homes set in the midst of trees that are survivors of the original forest; gardens, clean air, an atmosphere of comfort and security. We are tempted to name some of them, but an adequate list would be too long.

Wasted Brains

If some of the crooks who put their brains and energy into beating their neighbors were to use the same amount of mental and physical steam in an honest effort to play the game they would be miles ahead of where they are. When you read of the consummate skill of the yeggman and the brilliant daring sneak-thief you wonder if it wouldn't pay the fellow ten times as well to put his ability into some legitimate business. There are men in business who, if they would only stop forfeiting and chicanery, would beat their neighbors hands down at the business game. But they have to be mine-laying with cold decks and running skin-games. Some men are so crooked that they would rather make ten per cent. on adulterated or shoddy goods than twenty per cent. on the real thing. They want to come. If some people took the pleasure out of doing real things that they seem to get out of crooked monkeying, what a heaven the world would be. “Bread of deceit is sweet to a man, but afterwards his mouth shall be filled with gravel.” There is a certain amount of excitement or gratification in the game of beating the law, fooling society, or doing your neighbor, but it gets you at last to the gravel pit. The man who thinks he can play fast and lose with conscience and public opinion, is worse than a fool. You may be getting a little gratification out of your “love” conquests and the bread of deceitful relationship may be “smart.” But “he that diggeth a pit shall fall therein.” He will hoist his own petard.

You men think that you are a clean skater and boast about the way you have put things over this fellow and that, and your day will be sweet, but you are surely eating bread that will leave a bad taste in your mouth and broken teeth in your jaw. You are making money and getting some fun, it may be out of that regular game of poker or that gamble of futures, but the end is as sure as if you were already trying to spit the pebbles. Quit the tempting but delusive diet.—“Solomon.”

Conscript and Volunteer

This war, incidentally, has turned attention to the reason of German supremacy in certain branches of trade and industry. That supremacy is due not to accidental causes, but to the pursuance of a policy founded on realization that science is the intimate ally of industry. The German is not originitive, but he has developed a peculiar faculty for exploiting new discoveries and to assist him in this he has had the co-operation of a paternal government. Under the leadership of brainy men enlisted as servants of a government that is merely the agent of an autocrat, Germany has been organized in a way unparalleled in history. Germany has had no such trouble over the supply of munitions of war as that which has troubled Britain. From the moment when war was declared every German workman passed automatically under military law. His part was assigned, and, whatever it was, he had to obey his orders. The German worker was and is just an item in the mechanism of war. He works the hours ordered; for the least slackness he incurs the penalty of the deserter or coward. That iron order came into force automatically in Germany—only now, after nearly a year of war, are similar, but tentative, regulations coming into force in Britain. But at the last the Briton will prevail over the German, because he is working out his own salvation.

The Way They Say It In Boston

A matron, who was quite well along in years and who was known to her more intimate acquaintances as the elderly Mme. Hubbard, went, one day, to that article of household furnishing known variously as the pantry, or mayhap the sideboard, also as the cupboard, Bent on, that is with the purpose in mind, as the saying is, of obtaining, if possible, something of osseus material for the indigent canine. What was her surprise, in reaching that portion of the house wherein was situated the cupboard, to find the latter utterly barren; Thus, the cupboard being void of the desired article of osseus matter for the afore-mentioned indigent canine, he went without any.

A SURE CORRECTIVE OF FLATULENCY. When the undigested food lies in the stomach it throws off gases causing pains and oppression in the stomachic region. The belching or eructation of these gases is offensive and the only way to prevent them is to restore the stomach to proper action. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will do this. Simple directions go with each packet and a course of them taken systematically is certain to effect a cure. M. Brydges is negotiating for an automobile factory. A public meeting was held lately and a committee appointed to investigate.

Carry your head so that you look everyone in the face. Breathe plenty of air. Drink cold water. These are nature's medicines.

To mend glassware that is no longer put in hot water, use a transparent cement made by dissolving an ounce of gun shellac in enough alcohol to form a thick paste about like honey. Apply with a fine small brush, spread the pieces together and set a until dry.

The water in which chicken fresh meat had been washed found by a housekeeper to be the best fertilizer she had tried for her best potted plants generally.

We have read somewhere that the cost of stopping a railroad train has been closely figured out, and that was much greater than the expense of running a train several miles. Do not know which is harder to stop a train or a habit, but we are inclined to think the latter. We have never tried stopping a train. Trains are as hard to stop as habits, few would ever be started. No one would dare ride on the Never start a habit you think you may want to stop. It saves a great deal of trouble not to start it.

Sometimes clocks stop and amount of coaxing will start them. A simple way to remedy this is to soak a little piece of cotton cloth in coal oil, then open the door of clock and place the cloth beneath works. A little oiling is very of all that they need and this does effectually. Leave the cloth in clock until all the oil is absorbed. Have even taken the works out in a cup with a coal oil cloth underneath and left them over night or long as necessary for the delicate mechanism to become oiled. There is nothing broken in the clock this will start it off. In any event all clocks require oiling at certain intervals.

In hot weather, as is well known, the color of clothes is imported. Certain colors heighten discomforts greatly reduce it. Any freely exposed in very hot weather to the red rays is likely to suffer from over-excited nerves; in fact these rays most cases of sun-stroke may be attributed. Red cloth offers them free passage, and therefore not desirable. Blue is undesirable, for it offers no protection against the ultra-violet rays. Green is of all colors the coolest and most restful. The most comfortable rooms in very hot weather are those decorated in green. They have further advantage of being so reason especially unattractive to house fly.

Hard and soft corns both yield Holloway's Corn Cure, which is entirely safe to use, and certain and satisfactory in its action.
