A Shrewd Little Girl. SHE PROMPTED THE QUESTION WHICH SAVE AN OLD WOMAM'S LIFE.

Elizabeth Janfield, afterward Lady Falkland, was called an "odd child." Son her father, who was a judge, took her with him to court. On one of these occasions woman was brought before him on a charge of witchcraft. It was said that she had b witched two or three persons to death. The frightened creature, when asked if this were so, fell on her knees, and, weeping, confesse that the accusations against her were true. " Did you bewitch---to death?" asked the judge. 'Yes," was her reply. "Did you come in the form of a black cat and breathe on him so that he languished

Then she told one of her former stories, at which all the company laughed The reason of the merriment was that John mondes was the judge's brother-in-law and at that moment was standing near him in court. The judge then asked why she had made such a statement. "Alas, sir, I know him not," replied the woman. "I said so because you asked me." "Are you no witch?"

'No ; God knows I'm not." " Nor did you ever see the devil?'

" No, never in all my life." On further examination she said she had been told that if she did not confess she would be tortured until she did, but that if she admitted all the accusations mercy would be shown her. She was thereupon acquit and she owed her release and probably her life to the shrewdness of a little girl .- Youth's

A great tenement house was burning like tinder wood in one of the poorest quarters of the metropolis. The stairs had gone up in smoke before every body had left the building and even the fire escape down the side of the building was cut off by the hot flames from the lower windows, which had already peeled off a part of it.
