WEDNESDAY, FEB 19TH, 1902. —In recent months Canada, particularly the eastern provinces, has sufered much from the smanpox epidemic, and in the New Engiand States the disease has been even more prevalent, in proportion to population. The progress of the disease has furnished an abundance of evidence, in experience, observation and statistics, to show that vaccination affords a degree of protection from the scourge that amounts to practical immunity. The medical profession itself held hundreds of pronounced anti-vaccinationists, of pronounced anti-vaccinationists, and when doctors differ what wonder that the people also doubted the efficacy of a self-imposed sickness or a sore arm to head off the smallpox. But the same measure of divided opinion in this matter that existed twelve months ago does not exist today. Perhaps one of the most striking ex-ernaps one of the most striking ex-mples of the unsoundness of the beamples of the unsoundness of the be-lief of the anti-vaccinationists was brought to light in Boston last week, when Dr. Pfeiffer, a champion of the anti-vaccinationists, who sought in the exposure of his person to the dis-case to prove the immunity of a clean man, observing ordinary precautions, from the danger of contagion. The doctor had not been vaccinated for sixty-five years and, after an emphatdoctor had not been vaccinated for sixty-five years and, after an emphatic denunciation of vaccination, he sought admission to the Gallup's Island pest house to "make a scientificatudy of the disease." He contracted smallpox and his case is an unusually severe one. If he recovers it is presumed he will teach others in the light of his own experience, and in any event his sickness has had a most convinof his own experience, and in any event his sickness has had a most convincing effect upon those who knew of the test he voluntarily made. As a courageous exponent of a mistaken belief the doctor perhaps deserves but little of the censure he is coming in for, even though, as is said,he may be responsible for a further spread of the disease. The extent of the evil he has wrought will be offset an hundred fold by the lesson his failure will teach to others of like belief or the undecided. The smallpox records show it to be distinctly a scourge for the unvaccinastinctly a scourge for the unvacci distinctly a scourge for the unvaccinu-ted and in the name of individual and public safety it is to be hoped that the sore arm will become more fash-ionable and popular then ever.

The home rule question is as much o an issue now as it ever was, and there British statecraft to effect a peaceable solution of the trouble. It is some what singular that a policy cannobe evolved, under the broad and geh be evolved, under the stock and per-fect freedom to colonies, to harmon-ize and strengthen the relations of the constituents of the great central unit of the empire. Looked at from a unit of the empire. Looked at from a fair standpoint, the long standing trouble between Ireland and England is a blot on the great national escutcheon that grows with the development of Great Britain. British statesmen recognize that a dangerops quarrel is impending and yet no one of them seems capable of framing a of them seems capable of framing a conciliatory measure of government. We are lead to believe that when the Boer war is over the Irish question will be approached; but it will have to be in a spirit of open hearted diplomacy, if it such a thing exists, for the Irishman will counter any strenuous pressure with open defiance. This is his disposition, and it is also his disposition to meet a friendly advance in a spirit entirely worthy of the occasion. It is only through a proper and far seeing interpretation of the national temper that a settlement of the Irish difficulty may be brought about, and until it is accomplished the strength of the Empire must remain badly weakened where it should be strongest.

Great Britain and Japan is causing international grumbings and head-shakings. Anything that savors of in-ternational alliance in the far east is food for speculation, for the east is the storm centre from which the bolts of earth's greatest war are most likely to be launched. There is only a tolerance that stands for peace there, and when that is broken the mad rush of nations to participate in the dismemberment of a great continent will make a world crisis. Just now it pleases the nations to think that

NEW BRITISH FLAG.

London, Feb. 12-At last an ensig which shall adequately represent Great Britain both at home and abroad is assured. The King has received with favor the suggestion that a new flag is needed to keep pace with the growing empire, and a finished design for the same will be submitted to His Majesty next week.
Mr. C. D. Bennett, the designer of the new flag, has succeeded in giving colonial possessions full representation of England's power in every quarter of the globe.

The following is a description of the new Empire flag, given officially: On an absolutely white ground is embroi-dered a golden sun, typical of a race dered a golden sun, typical of a rec-on whose dominions the sun never sets shining on a large red cross of St. George, representing of course the Em-pire at home. In the left hand cor-inguital grown the sign of per is an imperial crown, the sign of ner is an imperial crown, the sign of one great empire, embracing all creeds but all under one great imperial idea. Underneath the crown, on a blue scroll, is inscribed the Latin rendering of the motto: 'The Empire on which the sun never sets,' which is the proudest boast of every Englishmen.'

The flag as used in Australia will contain instead the device of the new Commonwealth, while the Canadian and other colonial governments will add to the design their own badge, for use on all 'Empire flags' in that particular part of the world.

The animal which is now in Mr. Calder's possession, was an enromous one, measuring more than six feet in length and nearly four feet in height.
