

I DRAW YOUR ATTENTION TO WHAT OTHERS SAY OF IT. WE FREQUENTLY SELL TWO OR THREE OVENS TO ONE PARTY.

Scotch Bakery, 233 Harrington St., Halifax, N. S.

April 9th, 1889.

S. H. Sugatt, Sir.—I am pleased to inform you that the Reid's Oven supplied to me is giving every satisfaction. After a trial of four weeks, it has proved itself capable of baking any kind of loaf bread, round cakes, biscuits and pastry. I may say that I had doubts after ordering it, as to its good qualities, but am now happy to say that these have been removed and I confidently recommend them as superior to the brick ovens, as indeed they are, in every respect. Yours truly, MRS. LIDA MURKESON.

College of St. Francis Xavier, Antigonish, N. S., Nov. 29th, 1888.

S. H. Sugatt, Sir.—About a month ago you put up a Reid's Jade Oven (No. 50) in this College. It has been in use over since and has given great satisfaction. The Cook is very pronounced in praise of its many good qualities. It now does all the baking for seventy persons, and would bake for a great many more. The quality of the bread is excellent. Yours truly, N. MCNEIL, Inspector.

St. Francis Xavier College, Antigonish, N. S., April 11th, 1890. S. H. Sugatt, Dear Sir.—The Reid's Baker and Roaster you sold me in 1888 has been in constant use here since then, and has given great satisfaction. During the past winter all the baking and roasting required for eighty five persons were done with ease and satisfaction. Yours truly, N. MCNEIL.

Hantsport, N. S., March 11th, 1890.

S. H. Sugatt, Dear Sir.—The Reid's Baking and Roasting Oven purchased from you gives splendid satisfaction. It is all you recommended it to be.

Windham, Jan. 21, 1890.

S. H. Sugatt, Sir.—Your Oven still continues to give perfect satisfaction, and I can recommend it to any one in need of one.

Yours truly, JAS. KING.

Lunenburg, Jan. 21, 1890.

S. H. Sugatt, Sir.—Your Oven still continues to give perfect satisfaction, and I can recommend it to any one in need of one.

Yours truly, C. I. KOOD.

Queen Hotel, N. S., March 24th, 1890.

S. H. Sugatt, Dear Sir.—Since writing you last now to cook a dinner for a large party at short notice, I do not know how I have got used to it, how I could part with it. It is a saving in every sense of the word, beside having everything cooked so satisfactorily.

Yours truly, W. A. WILSON.

Halifax, N. S., March 12th, 1890.

S. H. Sugatt, Sir.—Your Oven gives complete satisfaction, and had no trouble to do the cooking. No trouble now to cook a dinner for a large party at short notice. The bread it bakes is excellent. No person who has large parties to prepare for at short notice should be without one. Yours truly,

MRS. N. MCKINTOSH.

Halifax, N. S., March 12th, 1890.

S. H. Sugatt, Sir.—The Reid Baking and Roasting Oven I purchased of you is working splendidly. I had a party of eighty people on Saturday last and had no trouble to do the cooking. No trouble now to cook a dinner for a large party at short notice. This means it is unsurpassed.

After a trial of some months all my doubts have been removed in regard to saving of fuel and labor. Less than two dollars of coal will keep it burning order from six in the morning till ten at night. Every day finds an improvement, and the more I work the better I like it. It is certainly a most useful article, and I would not sell it for double the price I paid for it. I am pleased to say it is superior to what you represented it. I had no assistance in starting it, and no trouble in making it do its work satisfactorily from the first baking and I can highly recommend it to any one in need of an oven.

Yours truly, C. A. MORSE.

Halifax, N. S., August 26th, 1890.

S. H. Sugatt, Sir.—The Oven purchased from you is all you want reference you can refer to me. I would not sell it for a great deal. Yours truly, MRS. LIDA MURKESON.

March 11th, 1890.

Still continue satisfactory.

C. A. MORSE.

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 18th, 1890.

S. H. Sugatt, Sir.—The Reid Baking and Roasting Oven I purchased from you is a thorough baker. I am using it every day for all kinds of pastry, cakes, etc. For bread it has no equal, holding better than a brick oven, and up to me, run in, requiring much less fuel than I use. I would recommend it to anyone as it has given me great satisfaction.

Yours truly, R. C. LOCHART.

Restaurant and Bakery, Parrboro', N. S.

March 11, 1890.

S. H. Sugatt, Dear Sir.—The Reid Baking and

Roasting Oven is Absolutely Fire-Proof, has a Round Base with Shaking Grate, is simplicity itself.

Yours truly, J. H. CUTTER &amp; CO., BAKERS.

Windsor, N. S., March 1, 1890.

Mr. A. Reid.—We have used your Oven in our Bakery, 631 Michigan Ave., Detroit, for over six months, and find it to be a first class and economical baker. There is nothing in the line of bread, cakes or pastry it will not bake better than the usual bakers' brick oven, and we can bake as much bread in it as we can in a 10x12 brick oven, by reason of its being continuous. A few small shovels of coal runs it all day.

Yours truly, FRANCIS ELI.

Halifax, May 27th, 1890. 100 Argyle St.

I have had your Oven in use for some time, and I cannot speak too highly of its baking qualities. It saves time, labor and fuel. I do ten times as much work with less fuel than I use in an ordinary oven. I am much pleased to say it is superior to those you represented it. I had no assistance in starting it and am trouble in making it do its work satisfactorily. Yours truly, R. C. LOCHART.

S. H. Sugatt, Dear Sir.—The Reid's Baker and

Roaster you sold me in 1888 has been in constant use here since then, and has given great satisfaction. During the past winter all the baking and roasting required for eighty five persons were done with ease and satisfaction. Yours truly, N. MCNEIL.

S. H. Sugatt, Dear Sir.—The Reid Baking and

Roasting Oven purchased from you gives splendid satisfaction. It is all you recommended it to be.

Halifax, N. S., March 12th, 1890.

S. H. Sugatt, Dear Sir.—Your Peerless Ash Sifter has had a faithful trial at our hands, and we unhesitatingly recommend it to all housekeepers as a valuable assistant.

Yours truly, C. SCHROEDER.

NEW PARKER HOUSE, Truro, N. S., March 12th, 1890.

S. H. SUGATT, Dear Sir.—Your Peerless Ash Sifter is a valuable addition to any household in the saving of coal, time, and the annoyance of dirt.

Respectfully yours,

LUTHER ARCHIBALD.

LEARMENT HOUSE, Truro, N. S., March 12th, 1890.

S. H. SUGATT, Dear Sir.—Between the old method of sifting ashes and your Peerless Sifter, there can be no comparison, and I heartily recommend it to all hotels as a means of saving time, coal and dust.

Yours,

A. LEARNENT.

REID'S BAKING AND ROASTING PORTABLE OVEN
AND PEERLESS ASH-SIFTER.

The Peerless Ash-Sifter

THE OLD WAY.

THE NEW WAY.

In presenting the PEERLESS ASH SIFTER to the public, we do so with the utmost confidence in its merits. Its working qualities have been thoroughly tested, and experience shows it to be the most perfect, complete, durable, and easiest working Ash Sifter ever offered to the public.

A Glance at its merits will at once commend it to the judgment of all, while a trial will demonstrate beyond doubt that it is what its name indicates—unequalled.

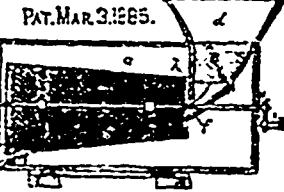

This model Sifter is made with Japanned Wire Cylinder Sieve. It works easily, and sifts rapidly the unconsumed coal, and makes no dust or dirt. By turning the crank a few times the ashes fall into the barrel, and the sifted coal into the hod.

Those who have occasion to sift ashes will find the task a pleasant one in comparison to what it usually is.

For economy there is nothing like it in the market. As the Sifter rests on the barrel, wasteful servants will be compelled to sift the ashes, as they will find it much lighter work to turn the crank than to lift the Sifter off and throw the unsifted ashes into the barrel.

This Cut Shows a Sectional View
OF THE

PEERLESS ASH SIFTER.

The ashes to be sifted are poured into the hopper a, and pass down the extension e, and inclined chute f, fall into the frustum-shaped drum b, which, being turned by the handle, causes a violent agitation of the ashes. The dust and finer portions pass through the meshes of the drum and are dropped into the barrel or other receptacle below the casing, while the coal and larger portions gradually work down the inclined inner surface, and discharge through the chute c, into the coal hod or pail, ready for use.

If the drum should become clogged in any way, the top section a, and with it the drum, can be thrown back, thus giving easy and prompt access to the interior of the casing.

No. 2 Sifter has a Cylinder 22 in. long, 13 in. in diameter, and will hold a bushel of cinders.

PRICE—No. 1, $2.25.

No. 2, $2.75.

To S. H. SUGATT, Esq. Dear Sir,—Your Ash Sifter is a success. The one I got from you works well, and in a year will save its cost ten times over. Any ordinary family using your Sifter should make a great saving in coal bills!

Yours truly,

J. C. MACKINTOSH.
