

MARSHAL KNOX'S SEARCH.

United States Marshal Knox with his assistants, Marshals Dowley, Brooks, Knox, Mallen and Bernhard, representatives of the British Consul's office, and a detective of Pinkerton's force, boarded the steamer "Scythia" off Quarantine at daybreak yesterday.

The search was conducted on the steamer "Scythia" off Quarantine at daybreak yesterday. It was thought that the Phoenix Park assassins might possibly have boarded the "Scythia" at Queenstown when she touched there on Sunday, May 7, the day after the double murder. The Marshal was armed with four warrants, which had been issued by one of the United States Commissioners on an order signed by President Arthur.

Capt. Murphy and the officers of the "Scythia" were quite as anxious to learn the particulars of the assassination in Dublin and the events which followed it as the Marshals were to discover the assassins. The officers of the vessel had not noticed the assassins among their passengers. They said that only three cabin passengers, two women and a man had been taken on at Queenstown, but 193 steerage passengers took passage at that point. The steerage passengers were ordered to assemble on the forward deck, and the Marshal and his men examined them apparently without regard to whether they shipped at Liverpool on the morning before the murder or at Queenstown next day.

MR. PARNELL'S SPEECH IN THE HOUSE.

LONDON, May 15.—A hotly-contested scene was created in the House of Commons this evening by the sudden disclosure of the terms of what has now become known as the "treaty of Kilmalsham." Mr. Parnell himself undertook the task of enlightening the House upon the matter with the view of settling himself right and making the matter square for everybody.

which he proceeded to do by reading a letter from himself, dated Kilmalsham Jail, April 28, and addressed to Captain O'Shea. In this letter, which was of considerable length, Mr. Parnell expressed regret that Captain O'Shea had left the Albert mansion before Mr. Parnell reached London at the time of his parole, inasmuch as after their previous conversations he deemed it proper that Mr. Justin McCarthy should be put in possession of the views which he had expressed.

pening, with further coercive measures. "And then follows my own signature," said Mr. Parnell, as he sat down.

Mr. Parnell read this letter attentively. He was listened to and received with signs of moderate approbation here and there. After a long silence, Mr. Forster, with slow and ponderous deliberation, rose and asked Mr. Parnell whether he had read the whole letter. Instantly there was a tremendous uproar and vociferous cheers from the Opposition.

Captain O'Shea read a paragraph omitted by Mr. Parnell stating that if the reforms specified were made the Land Leaguers might act cordially with the Liberals in support of liberal principles. The reading was received with cheers from the Opposition benches.

REPORT OF THE COLONIZATION SOCIETY OF THE DIOCESE OF MONTREAL.

To His Lordship MGR. EDUARD CHAS. FABRE, Bishop of Montreal:

My Lord—I have the honor to submit to your Lordship the third report of the Colonization Society of the Diocese of Montreal, of which you are the President. To aid in the construction of four chapels in Clyde, Ponsbury, Amherst and Arochambeault, and to plough the land of the Jesuits and for other expenses the Society had in hand at its last meeting the sum of $867.74, and $5,137.99 were collected this year, giving a total of $5,995.73, out of which $4,704.31 have been paid for chapels, etc., leaving a balance of $1,291.42.

At its last meeting the Society undertook to aid in the construction of four new chapels in Arundel, Wolfe, Marchand and Ascension, and to second the efforts of the Jesuits in Lake Nominiguinge. We have at present seven chapels where Mass can be celebrated, without counting the little houses of the Fathers of Nominiguinge, and all these establishments possess the ornaments and altar linen necessary to Divine worship. We must not forget the fire bells which, by their joyous peals, revive the courage of the colonists.

Two other bells, one of which weighs 1,000 pounds, await their new destination. The establishment of the Jesuits at Lake Nominiguinge will progress rapidly, for the Fathers have resolved to limitate their predecessors by being the first to advance into the depths of the woods and forests to give an example of devotedness and sacrifice. Their merit will be much more considerable as the scene of their apostolic work will be 120 miles to the north of Montreal. I must make special mention of the efforts of the Rev. Father Bousset and of his associates, who are making great sacrifices to found, on a solid and lasting basis, agricultural orphan asylums in Westworth. Whoever knows Father Bousset can be sure in advance that this work, which will lead to the immediate colonization of Montclair, will be crowned with success.

The Rev. Father Prudhomme, cure of Levevre, has displayed great zeal in the construction of the chapels of Ponsbury and Amherst. He has overcome more than one difficulty to attain this end. We owe a word of praise to Rev. W. Gauthier, whom Your Lordship has placed at St. Adolphe d'Howard. He is well pleased with his new position, and already possesses the esteem and confidence of his parishioners, and there is every prospect of a comfortable residence being procured for him.

We can not pass over in silence the zeal of the Rev. A. Therien, who gives both his time and his money to the work of establishing the Canton of Preston, where he has built a chapel at his own expense. L'Evreux des Tabernacles of Montreal and St. Jerome have done their part by furnishing the ornaments and linen necessary for Divine worship in the five chapels. Mention must also be made of the many donations from priests and laymen, which constitute a valuable sum. An eminent citizen of this city has given the generous sum of $150 as his share towards the building of the Chapel of Arundel. His liberality will not allow us to give his name, but it can not prevent us from tendering him our sincere thanks. Can a more noble use of one's savings be made for God and country?

I have visited several Cantons in company with the Rev. Joseph Gaudet, Director of the Agricultural School at L'Assomption, and with Mr. A. Masson, member of the Board of the Agricultural Society, and we have been glad to see that joy and happiness reign in the midst of this robust population, which is filled with the strongest hopes when it considers the prosperous future before it. We believe that the Jesuits will continue to advocate colonization in the diocese, and that the parish priests will take up the annual collection for this great work, of which the limited means are far behind the spiritual wants of the colonists. Whoever mentions religion and country cannot fail to find a sympathetic echo in the heart of our clergy. The pastoral visit of Mgr. Duhamel, and the nine missions of Father Raynel have stirred up faith and religion in the heart of this courageous population; it was a beautiful sight to see the piety and gaiety of these good children of the forest.

We cannot thank Your Lordship too much for your solicitude in favor of those brave citizens who move not esteem them and that you will procure for them ministers of God for the spiritual welfare of their souls as far as the wants of your diocese will permit. The prospect of a railroad being built, the excellent quality of the soil, the ever-increasing prosperity of a large number of colonists, the advantageous market furnished by the wood-yards, the rapid increase of colonization which, in the county of Argenteuil alone, numbers over 4,000 souls, as can be seen by the late census, the establishment of the Jesuits, the sympathy and the zeal which your Lordship displays in looking after the religious interests of this brave population, such are the many causes which will accelerate this colonization movement, the proportions of which are a subject of wonder to those who are close witnesses. We cannot calculate the benefits which Montreal will derive from all these new parishes. To judge of the fertility of the land of this immense region which begins at 40 or 50 miles from the Ottawa, let us cite the testimony of Mr. Bouchette, assistant commissioner of Crown Lands, given in his report of 1869:

COMMENTS AND CLIPPINGS.

According to a London paper Mr. Mackay is going to build an enormous hotel in London.

Very unpleasant stories are current of the bad discipline of the Bacchante, in which the young English princess are.

Queen Victoria's servants doffed their crape armlets on Prince Leopold's wedding day, for the first time since his father's death.

A meeting of English Quakers is to be held this month to consider how the practice and system of the sect may be brought more into harmony with the usages of the present day.

The European community in Egypt may be roughly divided as follows: Italians, 14,000; French, 14,000; Austrians and Germans, 3,500; English, 3,500; other nationalities, 1,500; total, 36,500.

The substitution of a "p" for a "p" in the Boston Advertiser's otherwise beautiful account of some Emerson memorial services made a line of a poem appear: "We prayed and sang together."

The corporation of London received last year nearly $3,000,000 for the duty it is entitled to levy on coal. This duty dates from 1866, when it was permitted to rebuild London after the fire. It is now threatened with extinction.

Katie Morrison, a negress of Columbus, Ga., was a firm believer in conjury, and when Doctor Charlie, an operator in spells, handed her a bit of root wrapped in red flannel, assuring her that it was a voodoo charm, she fell down in a fit and nearly died.

Adison d'Henzel, a professor of French, had a pair of trousers made by John Appo, in Hartford, which were very tight. The professor would not take them, and was therefore called "an infernal swindler." He sent the tailor into his room, handed him a pistol, and declared that a duel must be fought at once. Appo retired, and d'Henzel was fined $2 in a police court.

Mrs. Molloy Carson is the plaintiff in an Indiana lawsuit, and her mother-in-law is the defendant. Mrs. Carson says in her complaint that James Carson mother her, but never would have won her if his mother had not realized her $500 payable to her as the wedding was over. Two years have elapsed, and the pair have lived happily together, but the money has not been paid. Hence the litigation.

The Ladies' College at Cambridge, England, is in a most flourishing and healthy condition. Young ladies of any rank, and ladies of any age from 15 to 40, flock there, and to obtain entrance is becoming quite a matter of favor. Miss Gladstone, daughter of the Premier, is one of those who takes the deepest interest in the college, and it is expected will ere long be elected and appointed a principal.

At the recent reception in Paris, at the Academy, says the London Truth, a young American lady, who wore a creation of empire dress, the straight fold of which ended in a row of silk and lace, was to say the least, conspicuous. Her bonnet was as rampantly picturesque as her ruff, with large wide brim and high, conical crown, from the top of which floated five large plumes of feathers.

M. Ronan is short, obese, and elderly. He has a full-moon face, but the nose, instead of being turned up, is heavy and dipping. The forehead is not high or particularly wide. All the lines bounding it are semicircular. Arly Renan, the son of Ernest, and the grand-nephew of Arly Rolland, makes his debut in the Salon this year. He draws well, colors well, but does not, according to the London Truth, sufficiently observe the world in which he lives.

Consternation prevailed at Windsor during the wedding day of Prince Leopold in the minds of some in authority, caused by the receipt of an anonymous letter, stating that an attempt the same night would be made at Clarendon to steal the bride's jewelry. Precautions were at once taken, and the Metropolitan Police, were hurriedly despatched from Windsor in the afternoon, and six mounted guard during the night.

The rules made by Lawyer Davenport of St. Louis for the conduct of his wife while she was on a visit to this city were recently given in this column. In his answer to her petition for a divorce he stated that she was out on her own at the same time. They had quarrelled through jealousy, he says, and she was dissatisfied of the other. Her stipulations were that he should not stay out after 10 p.m., during her absence, spend more than two evenings a week at his club, go to any public entertainment, or call on any woman under 45 years of age.

The revival of the prize ring is a feature of moment in England. Prize fights are far more common than would appear from the occasional proceedings in the court of law. And although the days of Duke of York, Lord Barmyrose and Lord Waterford are gone, the noble patron is not quite extinct, for fame has often syllabled the name of an Earl who loves nothing more than to send for to London or bring with him to one or the other of his ancestral halls a brace of bullets and set them at one another in his private grounds for his private delectation.

A committee appointed by the French Chamber of Deputies on the proposed new law of divorce had before them experts in nervous diseases. Of these, Prof. Charcot and Dr. Magnan reported that it was not possible to declare absolutely that insanity is incurable except in general paralysis, in which case the patient dies in five years, thus bringing about a natural dissolution of the marriage. The committee, therefore, rejected the proposition of making insanity a cause for annulling the marriage contract. The Union Medicale, comments as follows: "We would have thought that insanity, which may be even rigorously speaking—curable, would have been considered one of the most urgent causes for divorce because it is so terribly hereditary."

As a philosophic feature of the late Leopold wedding, the figure of the old King of the Netherlands stood distinctly out. With the help of his young wife he manages to bear his years and infirmities bravely. The young Queen's example and advice will do much toward enabling her sister to face the possibility of frequent attendance in a sick room and the privation of amusement induced by the compulsory association with an invalid. The tact and cleverness of the Queen of the Netherlands has inspired the greatest respect and veneration among the Dutchmen, and in their simplicity they express the greatest gratitude to their King for having married and made such decent end to the turbulent life which the gay young widower of sixty-seven was leading in emulation of his son the late Prince of Orange. All this is changed, and thanks to the firmness and discretion of the "Little Queen," who had "doubtless claim on the love of Dutch people," she has led their old King and provided them with a new one for the day when the used-up one can be saved no longer.

BURNING OF THE STEAMER "PROGRESS."

RIVER DE LOUP, May 18.

The inhabitants of this quiet little town were somewhat startled this morning on hearing the sad news of the burning of the tug-boat "Progress," which melancholy event took place at an early hour last night near Green Island, about ten miles below here, and the particulars of which are as follows:—

The "Progress" left Quebec yesterday morning with provisions and coal, etc., to go to the assistance of the Alliance Line Mail Steamship "Peruvian" which was reported at Father Point on Sunday by passing steamships in the ice in the vicinity of Newfoundland, and the screw gone and wanting assistance.

All appears to have gone well with the "Progress" till about eight p.m. last night, when it is said fire declared itself in the lamp house; this cannot be verified and as yet how or where the fire originated remains for the present a mystery. The most melancholy part of the affair rests in the fact that three human creatures on board the "Progress" are said to have been burned to death and their bodies as far as known still remain on board the burning vessel. The tug steamer "Resolute," Capt. Keilly, and owned by Mr. J. Wilson, a tow-boat proprietor of the city of Quebec, happened to be in the vicinity of the burning vessel about the time the fire declared itself, trying to make arrangements to tow the Norwegian barque "Melicite" inward, bound to the port of Quebec, the first inward sailing vessel of the season. The "Progress" was, it is said, in mid-channel, and making all possible speed to the relief of the "Peruvian" at the time of the accident, which seems to have been all of a sudden as the crew of the "Progress" were picked up in two boats by the steamer "Resolute," some without shoes or stockings, and others without a covering on their heads. Even one of the lifeboats of the "Progress" in which some very badly singed showing the narrow escape the crew must have had. The captain and crew of the doomed vessel were landed from on board the "Resolute" at 12.30 this morning at the wharf, which is situated about two miles distant from the town and left by early train for Quebec, where they will arrive this afternoon. The "Resolute" returned again to the assistance of the burning steamer and towed her to the northwest end of the long wharf, where the "Progress" grounded. On the rising of the tide at noon, the "Resolute" took the still burning vessel in tow again and safely moored her to the southwest side of the wharf where the vessel will likely remain till she burns out. The vessel may be considered a total loss except the engines, which will likely be saved. The "Progress" was considered the finest boat of her kind in the Dominion, and rendered much valuable service to the shipping in and below Quebec during the close of navigation.

It could not be ascertained whether the provisions and coal, etc., which she was carrying to the assistance of the icebound "Peruvian," were insured or not, but their value was said to be worth $20,000, making in all a loss of about $100,000.

RIVER DE LOUP WHARF, April 18.—The steamer "Resolute" is at the wharf. The steamer "Progress" is now sunk two acres above the wharf, in 9 feet at low water.

Quebec, May 18.—Nineteen of the crew of the burned steamer "Progress" arrived up from River de Loup by this afternoon train. The names of the three unfortunate men who perished in the flames are Edmond Petit, of Deschambault, maried, John Baptiste Deschambault, maried, and Octave Biglois, of Capleton, P.Q., assistant pilot, maried.

The accident was caused by the explosion of an oil lamp, the clothing of the man in the room taking fire and rendering him powerless to put the flames out, which soon communicated to the light wood-work of the room. The fire raged with great fury, baffling every effort of the crew to subdue it, and was soon beyond control. The crew then took to the boats. The tug steamer "Resolute" was fortunately in the vicinity and rescued the crew with the exception of the three men above mentioned. The vessel was the largest and most powerful tug in the harbor. There is an insurance on her of $30,000, about one-third her value, divided among the following companies:—City of London, $10,000, North British, $5,000, Imperial, $5,000, Commercial Union, $5,000, Canada, $5,000.

In his answer to her petition for a divorce he stated that she was out on her own at the same time. They had quarrelled through jealousy, he says, and she was dissatisfied of the other. The recently deceased Irish barrister, Macdonagh, who was one of the leaders of O'Connell's defence and conducted that of Farnell, was a character at the bar. He always wore kid gloves in court, and came thither in a carriage, rebed and got up in a quasi juvenile fashion. He had a devoted servant familiarly known as "the faithful Rooney," who was an indispensable element in his existence. Macdonagh was one day promenading in faultless attire at Brighton, with his umbrella open to ward off the rays of the sun, "the faithful Rooney" following at respectful distance. On their return Macdonagh asked: "What did they think of me; much struck with my appearance?" "Don't ask me to tell, don't," said Rooney scratching his head. "I command you," said his master. "Well, then, sir, when they see me following you in this way they say you're a fanatic and that I am your keeper." "Rooney," said Macdonagh looking very blank, "I shall go without you in the future."

The House of Lords has since Easter met at 4 instead of 5. The first day it sat twenty minutes, the second day thirty-five—justifying Lord Bath's prediction when it was proposed to meet at the earlier hour, that their lordships instead of adjourning in time for dinner, would now adjourn in time for five o'clock tea. The whole sittings for a week occupied about an hour.

The personnel of the reconstructed New Zealand Ministry is as follows:—Frederick Whitaker, Prime Minister and Attorney-General; Henry A. Atkinson, Colonial Treasurer; William Rolleston, Minister of Lands and Immigration and the Minister of Mines; John Bryce, Native Minister; Thomas Dick, Colonial Secretary, Minister of Justice and Minister of Education; A. J. Johnston, Minister of Public Works and Postmaster-General, and Richard Oliver without a portfolio.

"Grandpa, the sun is brighter in summer than in winter, is it not?" "Yes, and it's warmer, and enjoys better health."

"Why does it enjoy better health?" "Because it gets up earlier."

Director Janzer, who was charged with negligence in connection with the Ring theatre fire, Vienna, has been sentenced to four months arrest. Geringer and Nitsche were sentenced to four and eight months imprisonment respectively, and to fast one day each month. They are also to pay six thousand dollars to the fire sufferers.

MALARIA! MALARIA!

THE CAUSE OF DISEASE IN THE STOMACH, KIDNEYS & NERVOUS SYSTEM!

Below will be found a brief Summary of a Lecture upon the Liver, delivered before the Eclectic College of Medicine, by

DR. J. HAYDOCK.

The Liver has been known as the great blood-maker and blood-purifier of the circulation. From its size and spongy structure, it plays a most important part in the animal economy, as regards assimilation and nutrition. Food taken in the mouth and acted upon by the digestive organs of the stomach is converted into Glucose or Peptone, and in these forms enters the Portal vein. Here, by the action of the Liver, these substances are converted into a form of sugar and pass out of the Liver by a large vein, called the Hepatic vein, into the general circulation. The new material now formed serves two purposes, viz: the maintenance of heat in the body and setting in the cell growth of the system.
