The Midland and Textile Insurance Company, of London, England, which owns the London Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Canada, is writing down its share capital by £47,796. At the same time they propose to call up six shillings a share on the 150,000 partly paid shares, and to create cumulative participating shares and ordinary shares. Under the proposed scheme each fully paid share will become one ten-shilling preference share and one five shilling ordinary share, both fully paid. Each existing partly paid share will, after the call of six shillings has been paid, become one fully paid ten-shilling preference share and one five-shilling ordinary share, one shilling paid.
