Poultry breeding stock to China

Shaver Poultry Breeding Farms Limited of Cambridge, Ontario, is one of only nine poultry breeding companies worldwide. The company was established shortly after the Second World War by Mr. Donald Shaver who, over the years, and through skillful genetics research, has turned a boyhood interest in poultry into a thriving business. Shaver operates 14 breeding farms in North America and Europe, from which it ships millions of chicks each year to over 90 countries. Currently, about 30 percent of all the world's white eggs, 15 percent of all brown eggs, and 10 per cent of all broiler or roasting chicks trace their origins back to these Shaver farms.
