

OUR VALUES

Our mission implies certain ideals: enlightened leadership, excellence in management and quality of service. Here are the basic principles we follow and goals we pursue in meeting our responsibilities:

To the World Community:

Using all our resources and initiative to promote and sustain peace, prosperity, democratic values and human rights, understanding and confidence across political, geographic and social divide.

To World Development:

Sharing Canada's wealth and to deploy Canadian experience and influence in support of global efforts to achieve sustainable development.

To the Government:

Providing the best possible advice; to ensure the most effective link between domestic policies and our international interests; to execute the government's decisions with vigour and to the best of our abilities.

To Canadian Society:

Helping build a culturally rich, humane and economically dynamic society by sensitive and effective management of Canada's immigration and refugee programs.

To Canadian Business:

Helping build a fair and open environment for international trade, commerce and investment, and to help Canadians compete effectively in the world market place.

To the Taxpayer:

Managing efficiently the public resources that have been entrusted to us and to sustain traditions of quality, honesty and fairness.

To Individual Canadians:

Delivering complete and impartial information on international issues, and to protect their welfare and safety when travelling, living or working abroad.

To Ourselves:

Providing service and support to each other as well as equal opportunities for development and personal growth, in an open and participatory environment, marked by mutual respect and dignity, where integrity, initiative and excellence are valued.
