

The World Health Organization has been one of the most effective and least controversial of the United Nations specialized agencies. Its sessions so far have been marked by a spirit of objective co-operation on the part of all member states, irrespective of their political convictions. The Canadian contribution to the work of WHO for next year will be approximately $200,000.

---