Sir Arthur Currie, G.C.M.G., K.C.B.,
Principal,
McGill University,
M o n t r e a l.

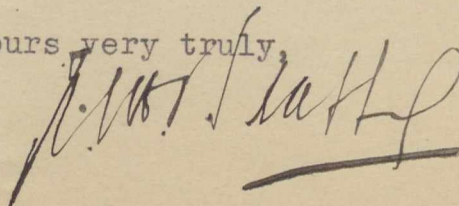

My dear Sir Arthur:

I have received your note of today's date relative to the Autumn Convocation which takes place this afternoon. I naturally would like very much to be present, but I am afraid that, owing to the number of meetings I have today, it will be impossible for me to do so.

I was delighted to find you looking so well on Saturday and, just as soon as I get through with the congestion which always follows my return from a long trip, I will get hold of you and have a chat with you relative to the University and the subjects we have recently discussed.

With kindest personal regards, believe me,

Yours very truly,
