HAMILTON NEWS

Struck by a Train and Killed is Finding in the Death of Edward Longley.

Hamilton, Jan. 3.-(Special.) - The value of investigations by coroners juries was illustrated this evening at the Inquiry held on the death of Edward Longley, killed Saturday morning on the G. T. R. tracks. This was the verdict: "We, the jurors, find that Edward Longley came to his death by being struck by a G. T. R. engine on the tracks between 6 and 7 o'clock Saturday morning." The evidence showed that the freight train dropped some cars near the city, and that the crew did not discover the loss until they arrived at Grimsby. They brought the engine back to the city on the track that is usually used for eastbound trains. Longely, knowing that K, was the rule for astbound trains to use the track he was run fown. His sister and several other employes had narrow escapes.

"One of my earliest speaking parts was played here in your city, and I was very nervous. I was so very nervous. It was so very nervous. I was so very nervous, in fact, that on the first night I made an error that nearly ruined the performance.

"I had a small part, the part of an old nurse. There was a dying king, a villain and a band of music in the piece, and the band of music was supposed to be very fine. The queen's life, indeed, was to come near being nuined thru the strange, sweet seductiveness of this band. Nothing but compliments and flatteries of the band were to be heard on every side.

"Well, fin the third act; while the band was playing its best, I had to to rush on and cry:

When Dr. Torrey ended his sermon by an appeal for the reception of Christ on the part of those who had not yet accepted Him there was no response. No one stood up.

"May many accept Christ before they sleep," said the doctor.

Mr. Alexander sang a solo. After he had finished there was profound silence.

"The best thing I can do is to send you home to bed," said Dr. Torrey, "God is speaking to some of you, I know. I don't feel I can give any more invitations to night. I do not believe Gcd wants me to.

The Old Hymn

One of the most beautiful characteristics of the singing last night, when the attendance was greater than that of the afternoon, was the expression imparted to "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." Choir and congregation sang the touching words with alternate precision and softness in compliance with the direction of C. M. Alexander, whose countenance bore evidences of a reverent desire for a true interpretation
of this fine old hymn.

"O God touch the heart of that wick ed son who can so far forget the mother who bore him by forgetting to write to her for seven years.

May he gladden his mother's heart 'y telling her of his salvation."

"There are other wicked sons to night, Touch them by the power of Thy Spirit.

To this effect did Dr. Torrey intercede.
