There were offsetting or neutraliz- ing developments, such as the Mexican situation, which threatened further complications, the proposed investi- gation of the anthracite companies re- sulting from the higher coal prices and the imminence of the national politi- cal conventions. It was not until the latter part of the week that the market manifested a strong disposition to throw off all re- straining influences, moving forward in the broadest and most impressive man- ner of recent weeks. Rails and other investment shares contributed measur- ably to the advance under the lead of the Canadian Pacific. Various low- priced issues of this division, whose affairs have long been in process of readjustment, also recovered from their protracted lethargy. Munitions and similar specialties were heavy most of the time on revival of peace rumors, but made more than full recovery later. Shipping issues dominated the list at times.
