THE NEWS BOY'S ANNUAL ADDRESS THE OBSERVER. JANUARY 1, 185%.

That times are hard, I know full well,
Before I knock or pull the bell;
I guess you also know it:
Good verse is hard, you all should know,
And weekly walks through rain and snow!
Feel,—friend—your C unuer-Porr.

FRIENDS, the JURILLE YEAR
Has begun its career,
So I'll give you some festival wishes—
With good appetites blest,
May your food be the best;
Whether Turkey or Goose be your disher

May your business revive;
And, as bees in the bive.

Still gather for others some honey;
I wish you good store,
For yourselves and the poor—
Then I shall get some of your money.

In reviewing last Year,
Even fortitude's tear,
Will start to the eye-lid and quiver;
While contemplating some,
Who have sicken'd and gone
From earth and its friendships forever

Still, let us thank Gon, For the merciful rod,
Whilst judgment might well have consur
That the angel of death,
With his pestilent breath,
Has not in dread numbers entomb'd us

What important events,
the and Forty presents;
How fate Preedom and NationsWash struggle and strife,
For sweet freedom and life—
What carnage and wide devastations.

Conquered Hendany's wail,
With her pinful tale,
Is borne to remotest dominions;
While the sire fills a grave, The poor son bows a slave, "Under Austrian scourges and pinions.

For a white a brave band
Well defended their land;
The foe net differ and defence;
When the craven, afraid,
Calling RUSSIN to aid,
Young FREEDOM was crish'd by alliance.

Though enthron'd on the sky, Though entiron of the sky.

The avenger is nigh—

The blood of their victims is crying
In the ears of the Lord,
Which the tyrants abhorr'd, Must answer for, living or dying

Autocratical CZAR,
In thy project of war,
Thou hadst nigh made a perilous blunder;
With alk thy dread powers,
Hadst thou pass'd the seven towers,
Great Britain and France had no thunder!

While some dynasties shake, And their occupants quake,
And their occupants quake,
Our QUEEN, on the water, or dry land,
Makes her safe and grand toor,
Of the town, glen and moor,
In Erin, and Scotia's highland.

Here the QUEEN OF THE ISLES, Was saluted with smiles,

By the IRISH, all happy and frisky,

Till she left the green land,

With its crowds on the strand,

More charm'd by the Queen, than by whisky.

Like a bright shooting star,
Through the "dark Lochnagar,"
The Steam-Yacht illumines the water—
Cheer, Highlanders, cheer—
Your Sourread, draws hear—
Herte to covert ye deer.

PRINCE ALBERT is bent on your slaughter. Would the Quixotes of FRANCE Mind their trade and finance, Resume AGRICULTURAL labours: Stead of crusades to Rome,
Keep good order at home,
They'd gain more respect from their neigh-

If thou wouldst have rest, Mark, and, rival a State,
Strong and free, rich and great,
Beyond the wide-swelling Atlantic.

Grown rich from the soil,
By its plough and its toil;
No people, in history's pages,
Can be found to compare,
With young Liberty's heir;
The envy and wonder of ages.

With a thanksgiving voice—
The Lord of the Harvest has sent thee
An abundance of grain, With potatoes again; Let this and good health well content thee.

The Farmer has wealth for the digging.
With his grain in the stack,
With his beasts at the rack, And his stye a fat pig and a goose in,

He will never feel want,
Though his gold be but scant;
who can live better or warmer?
With my very best bow,
To the man at the Plough,

Is the fam'd Railway League
O'erpower'd with fatigue,
They move in so tardy a snail-way?
And so far round about,
'Twill be long, I don't doubt,
Ere the League make a mile of a RAILWAY.

Is the politic band,
At a puzzling stand,
"Twitthe horns of a split and connex on?
Is the cord snapp'd and gone,
That they harp'd so long on,
For proofs of Maternal affection?

As long as the anvil and hammer

Our combustible City,
In the midst of a warm or cold season,
Has not WATER at hand, To supply the demand, Of a Fire, or a temperate weasand.

May our warlike Police, May our warthe Police,
Keep the City in peace—
Suppress ev'ry rooster and riot:
That we live through the year,
Without bloodshed, or fear,
In civil, good order and quiet.

May Goliah of Gath
In his power and his wrath,
Be a terror to villains and wenches
When imprison'd and fin'd,
They in future may mind
The weight of the law and the bench's.

While the times, the hard times,
Are Saint John's hourly chimes,
Let appetites—passions—and senses,
Learn to practice the rule,
Of economy's school—
By income to square their expenses.

Talk no more of dull trade,
Take the hoe and the spade,
Then shall you have food in your piggins;
Go and turn o'er the mould,
Not to search and find gold—
Our friends will bring that from the diggins.

As your field grows more wide, Lay the small tools aside; Seize the plough with good spirit and vigour; Then bid Britair go ahead, And you'll soon be well fed; If rustic your dress and your figure.

I must rest for a spell—
For twelve months, fare you well—
May the Year of Redemption, young Fifty,
As it rolls on its way,
Find you every day,
Contented—and healthy, and thrifty.

A CHILD'S EVENING SONG. By ELIZA COOK.
Father above! I pray too thee,
Before I take my rest!
I seek thee ou my bended knee,
With warm and grateful breast.

First let me thank thee for my share Of sweet and blessed health, It is a boon I would not spare. For worlds of shining wealth.

I thank thee for each peaceful night,
That brings me soft repose,
I thank thee for the morning's light,
That bids my eyes unclose.

I own thy mercy when I move
With limbs all sound and free,
That ga ly bear me when I rove,
Beside the moth and bee.

I thank thee for my kindred friends, So loving and so kind; Who teil me all that knowledge lends, To aid my heart and mind.

Ah! let me value as I ought,
The lessons good men teach,
No anger in my speech.

Father above! Ah! hear my prayer,
And let me ever be
Worthy my earthly parents' care,
And true in serving then.

PLANNING.

The sagacious, systematic farmer, will avail himself of the opportunity afforded by the leisure of winter, to plan operations to be carried out the coming season. In this practice lies the secret of many a farmer's thrift, as well as many a farmer's mathrift.

The devising and perfecting of plans before attempting undertakings, is as important and as useful to the farmer in his business, as to the military chieftain in his, and is as sure to conduce to the success and fame of the latter. The characteristics which made Washington a great General, made him, also, a good farmer, and foremost of these were energy and forethought—the head to plan, and the arm to execute.

HAVE not till the present time found leisure to devote any attention to the "Fluid Extract of Valerian," a bottle of which you were kind emough to send me a few weeks since. I have now sufficiently tested in, to satisfy me, that it contains the active medicinal principle of Valerian, in a purery, more simple and concentrated state, than any other preparation of this root, with which I am active medicinal principle of Valerian, in a purery with the satisfaction of the property of the public may rely upon it as a very valuable medicine in all Nervous Affections, Headache, Sleeplessness, &c. Permit mot add that it is important that the manufacturer, should continue to prepare the Extract with the same care as heretofore. With much respect, same care as heretofore. With much respect yours, &c. P. C. CLEAVLAND, M. D.

I hope to be able to say something in favor of the derion before long; it is an elegant preparation.
