

5TH AVE. IMPORTER SLAIN BY A BOY

Max Engel of Engel & Kraus Victim of Bullet Fired by Former Employee—Lay in Wait at the Plat.

(New York Times.) Max Engel, fifty-seven years old, of Engel & Kraus, 110 Fifth avenue, importers and manufacturers of women's neckwear, was slain yesterday afternoon by a former employe, who lay in wait in a doorway on the seventh floor, and died ten minutes later in New York Hospital without regaining consciousness.

The slayer, a young man, was arrested about eight o'clock last night at 215th street and 10th avenue, just outside the building in which the crime was committed. He is Isadore Karp, nineteen years old, of 539 Willoughby avenue, Brooklyn.

When told by patrolmen who took him handcuffed to the West Thirtieth street station that his former employer had died, Karp is said to have replied: "In the guy that killed him. Let 'em bury him." The police said he had a partly loaded German revolver. Two dozen cartridges also were found in his pockets.

Asked by detectives why he had committed the crime, he is quoted as having replied that he had been out of work since he was discharged three weeks ago by Engel & Kraus, and that he had become further depressed yesterday when his mother turned him out of the house. This his mother denied later.

Karp was noticed waiting yesterday morning at the sixteenth street entrance of the building where the shooting happened. Engel & Kraus occupy the sixth and seventh floors of the left building there. When asked by Joseph Colice, an elevator boy, why he was loitering about the building, Karp replied that he wished to see Henry Kraus, son of Mr. Engel's partner, and general manager of the firm.

At ten o'clock he was seen by the same elevator boy on the seventh floor, used as a packing room. Karp was not seen again until two o'clock, when Henry Herz of 337 Bedford avenue, Brooklyn, noticed him on the seventh floor near the elevator shaft.

Soon thereafter Karp told Leo Eisenberg, a shipping clerk, that he wished to talk with Henry Kraus. The manager sent word to Karp that he would not come out. A few minutes later Miss Herz again saw Karp in a hallway. In a right-hand pocket, she caught she saw the outline of a revolver, she said, as though Karp was ready to shoot.

Miss Herz at once warned Mrs. Franklin of Woodmere, L. I., daughter of Mr. Engel's partner, who hurried to the sixth floor to tell her father. Both partners started for the seventh floor. Mr. Engel leading. As Mr. Engel entered the hallway, where it was said Karp stood behind a door, employees thought they heard the suspect exclaim: "What did you make me lose my job for? Hands up!" An instant later a shot was heard. Mr. Engel fell unconscious. Two more shots went wild. Immediately the office was in an uproar. Some of the women employes ran to the fifth avenue windows and called "Police!"

Eisenberg and his assistant, Roy Rappaport, carried the wounded man across the street to the hospital. Dr. F. W. Renfrew, who examined him, found Mr. Engel beyond aid. The bullet had entered his left side about two inches under the heart and had passed out at the left side of his back above the kidney.

Gustav Kraus, Mr. Engel's partner, said at his home in Woodmere, L. I., he knew of no motive for the crime. Employees who had known Karp during the year he was employed as assistant shipping clerk said he seemed to have had an unmanageable temper.

After questioning Karp, the detectives said they believe he had intended to shoot Henry Kraus, but that in his excitement he mistook Mr. Engel for the younger man. Mr. Kraus requested police protection for his home in Woodmere last night. Karp told the police he had obtained the revolver at a pawnshop in Montgomery street, Jersey City, but had not thought of committing murder until Sunday, when he saw an advertisement of guns in a magazine.

At Karp's home, 539 Willoughby avenue, Brooklyn, last night, his mother and sister said the boy was mentally unbalanced. The mother said Karp had worked for Engel & Kraus a year and had given up the job of his own accord after he had quarreled with Henry Kraus.

WOMEN FOR CIVIC DISTRIBUTION OF HYDRO-ELECTRICITY

At a well-attended meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the B. of R. T. in the Oddfellows' Hall, Guilford street, West End, last evening, the hydro-electric situation was thoroughly discussed by Roy Willet, president of the Hardware Clerks' Association, which stands for municipal ownership of hydro-electricity in the city.

Mrs. Willet spoke of the necessity for cheap power to develop manufacturing industries in the city. He pointed to Ontario's record in this matter and said that the results attained there in the matter of reducing light and power costs had been duplicated here to the profit of Ontario. He pointed out that a reduction of rates, if a private corporation handled hydro, all profit went to the stockholders.

He took up the question of the cost of a distribution plant set up by the city. At Halifax, it had been estimated that an amount of $200,000 would cover this item.

Applying the same process of figuring St. John's case and the cost figured at $200,000. Mr. Willet also dealt with the Ross report and showed how its conclusions had been upset by Herbert Phillips and C. O. Fulton. He had argued, Mr. Willet said, that the city would lose the taxes from the N. B. Power Company. The speaker showed conclusively how the city would gain through the amount saved in street lighting and this saving would more than offset any loss through taxes.

He concluded by saying that if civic ownership was not adopted, a plebiscite should be held. Mr. Willet's address was listened to with deep interest and a hearty vote of thanks was extended to him for his speech.

HAVING SURPLUS, NO NEW TAXATION

No new source of revenue will be tapped by the budget to be introduced in the Ontario legislature by Provincial Treasurer Smith this week. Hon. Mr. Smith has intimated that while there would be some changes in taxes already in vogue there would be no new taxes provided for. While the treasury department will give out no information as to what will be the amount of the surplus the budget will announce, rumor has fixed it all the way from $200,000 to $800,000. There seems to be no doubt that there will be a surplus, and has evidently brought the ministry to the conclusion that there was no need to go into new fields to raise money. There had been the suggestion that a gasoline tax would be introduced this session to make the users of autos pay for road construction by a levy of this kind. However, it was decided that such a tax would not be initiated much to the delight of the owners of motor cars. There were other methods proposed whereby the receipts of the provincial Treasury would be augmented, but where they provided for entirely new taxes they have all been passed up. While the minister would give no intimation as to what changes would be in general regard to the halfpenny tracks will have to contribute more extensively this year.
