NOTHER, today,
Yes, honest and truly, another letter has come in this last mail asking me to write an article saying that it is bad form for a girl to chew When He Took "Fruit-a-tives"

This one makes—well, I wouldn't really date any now wouldn't believe me.

Truly, I can't understand it.

Write an article saying that it is bad form for a girl to chew gum in public.

Why, that seems to me about like being asked to write an article saying that it is often hot in July, or that a pint of whiskey might be bad for the stomach, or that it is not kind for a man to murder his mother.

his mother.

Can there really be a girl in this land who does not know that to chew gum in public is bad form?

Take a girl who hasn't had any home training at all, and if she has ever seen another girl deform her face by chewing gum—and if she indulges herself she probably has, for they usually seem to do it in droves—surely that sight is enough to teach her that chewing gum is not a pleasant habit.

habit.

Perhaps my correspondents are right and this is a matter that needs to be brought before our young girls, but I cannot help feeling that it's simply a case of "know the right and yet the wrong pursue."

One woman writes: "I once heard a man say, I was more than taken with Miss E., but I caught her several times chewing gum with her friends, and that was too much

Now, in the first place, there is only one English peer of the name of Lord Willoughby, namely, Lord Willoughby, hamely, Lord Willoughby de Broke, whose peerage, dating from 1491, was originally held by the Willoughby danily, but which passed through the female line at the end of the seventeenth century to the Verneys of Rutland, who have held it ever since. Lord Willoughby de Broke's only son is the Hon. John Verney, and his cousins in the line of succession also bear the name of Verney.
The four-year-old son and heir of the Earl of Ancaster, and of his American wife, who was Miss Eloise Breese, of New York, also bears the title of Lord Willoughby, and Lord Ancaster has no other relative bearing the name of Willoughby, of course, is Hathcote-Drummond Willoughby, of course, is the Hon. of in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. Possibly they may have been worn before that. But the poets and writers of her day are the first of those in whose works any mention thereof is made. Thus, Spenser, who was the poet laureate of the Virgin Queen, speaks in one of his poems of "some plaid with straws," while Shake speare, in "The Tempest," makes Iris sing as follows:

You sunburnt sicklemen of August weary, Come hither from furrow and be merry; Make holiday; your rye straw hats put on And in "A Lover's Complaint," the bard speaks of a "plaited hive of straw"

DISTINGUISHED MEN SOUGHT AS SPEAKERS BY CANADIAN CLUB

The executive decided, as Dominion Day comes so soon after Coronation Day, that is would not be advisable to attempt any special celebration this year, and the Moncton club will be so notified. If any members of the club are going to Winnipeg to the exhibition, they will be able to represent this club at the convention of Canadian Clubs there.
