

JANUARY hath 31 Days:

1820

There lives and works,
A soul in all things, and that soul is God.
The beauties of the wilderness are his;
That makes so gay the solitary place,
Where no eye sees them. And the fairer forms
That cultivation glories in, are his.
He sets the bright procession on its way,
And marshals all the order of the year.

Married Life.—Connubial happiness is of too fine a texture to be roughly handled. It is a delicate flower which indifference will chill, and suspicion blast. It is a sensitive plant, which will not even bear the touch of unkindness. It must be watered with showers of tenderest affection, expanded with the glow of attention, and guarded by the impregnable barrier of unshaken confidence. It must be kept enlivened by the hand of carelessness, unobscured by selfishness, unconjunctured by neglect. Thus nurtured it will bloom with fragrance in every season of life, and soften the pillow of declining years.

Improvement of Candles.—Steep the cotton wick in lime-water, in which has been dissolved a considerable quantity of nitrate of potassa (chlorate of potassa answers still better, but is too expensive for common practice); and, by these means, a purer flame and superior light is secured, a more perfect combustion is ensured, snuffing is rendered nearly as superfluous as in wax candles, and the candles thus treated do not "run." The wicks must be thoroughly dry before the tallow is put to them.
