DESERTED BY HER HUSBAND.

London Authorities Care for Woman Newly Arrived From England.

London, Ont., April 10.—Deserted only a few days after her marriage, Mrs. H. Simms an Englishwoman who came to London with her husband on Wednesday, is now in the care of the Young Women's Christian Association and the police are endeavoring to locate her missing husband.

Mrs. Simms claims that she arrived recently from England and married Simms, as they had arranged before she had left home. He had stated that he had been in the Canadian West and that he was a wealthy homesteader. They registered at the Bank Hotel here, and shortly afterwards Simms disappeared. Mrs. Simms is in a serious state as a result of her experience and arrangements will probably be made for her return to England.

ROBBERS HAVE BEEN BUSY.

Organized Gang Believed to be Operating Near London.

London, April 11.—Although the county police discredit the theory, a number of people are inclined to the belief that an organized burglar gang is working the rural districts.

While efforts are still being put forward to locate a man suspected of having burglarized the home of Roy Owens a Poplar Hill merchant, some time ago, complaint is made of a similar robbery at the home of Norman Flannigan, a butcher at Rebecca.

The burglary of Owens' home was particularly daring. He had been at the store, which is a separate building, during the evening, and returned to find the house apparently undisturbed. He retired as usual, but shortly before midnight was aroused when a man held a flashlight in his face and pressed the muzzle of a revolver against his head.

Money was demanded, and Mr. Owens promptly handed over $85. In another place he had a roll containing $200, but this the thief failed to secure. A man, who had been employed by Mr. Owens, was suspected, as he disappeared on the following day, and has not since been heard from.

The police wired bordering towns, but telephone and telegraph services were demoralized and messages were delayed in transmission.

TO CEMENT TIES OF FRIENDSHIP

HANDSOME GOLD WATCH AND CHAIN, GIFT OF INGERSOLL FRIENDS TO MR. M. C. ELLIOTT

—MANY EULOGISTIC REMARKS.

From Thursday's Daily.

The business and professional interests of the town were well represented at a gathering of the friends of Mr. M. C. Elliott held in the council chamber last night. In view of the fact that he is shortly to leave Ingersoll after having served as manager of the Traders Bank and latterly of the Royal since amalgamation, Mr. Elliott, who has won many friends, was fittingly honored, being the recipient of a handsome gold watch, bearing a suitable inscription and his monogram, and a chain. Accompanying the presentation was an address which gave expression to deep appreciation of Mr. Elliott's sterling qualities, coupled with the sincere wish that his efforts in the town might be marked by gratifying success.

After a few explanatory remarks by Mr. W. J. Elliott, as to the object of the meeting, Mr. Jos. Gibson, Sr., was called upon to preside. The chairman referred to the activity of Mr. Elliott in connection with the various organizations and his willing assistance to promote the welfare of the town. He mentioned that Mr. Elliott would be greatly missed as a public-spirited citizen.

The Address.

Following the remarks of the chairman, the following address was read by Mr. W. J. Elliott and the presentation was made by Dr. McDonald:

Ingersoll, Apr. 9th '13.
Mr. M. C. Elliott,
Ingersoll, Ont.

Dear Mr. Elliott:—In assembling to bid you farewell on the eve of your departure, we do so with a sense of loss, not only as a friend and citizen, but as a man of high character and the heartiness of your warm friendship and the generosity of your ever-ready assistance have compelled and retained our highest regard for your personal worth. Above the business relationships that have existed between you and us there has been a personal attachment, which distance cannot separate or time make us forget. "Mr. Elliott, of the Bank," may become a fading memory, because business associations are severed, but "Mac" Elliott is stamped upon our minds indelibly.

As a citizen you have been progressive and loyal. All that tended to the advancement of the town received your hearty and untiring support and to speak well of Ingersoll was, with you, no empty boast.

In bidding you farewell we wish you fare-thee-well. In whatever field of activity your future lot is cast, we extend to you our hearty and united wish for abundant success. We hope that out of the busy life which lies before you, you may occasionally recall the new old acquaintances in Ingersoll, and that with the passing years the recollections of your sojourn here may become increasingly fragrant. We ask you to accept this gift as a passing tribute to the esteem in which you are held by your Ingersoll friends.

Signed on behalf of your Ingersoll friends:

Replying Mr. Elliott said in part: "I know how hard it is to find words to express my appreciation of this magnificent gift. I can assure you that I will value it, and will look back with many happy memories to these kind words and expressions. While Ingersoll is not my home town, I have learned as a citizen here, to value it almost as such. I can assure you that before I undertook to leave this town, I regarded it as a very serious step for me to take. The old bank and the new institution, in their treatment of me, have been most cordial. I hope that you may occasionally recall some of my later days in the town of Ingersoll as a resident."

Dr. Rogers, the next speaker, mentioned that he appreciated Mr. Elliott's ability as a financier. He also added that Mr. Elliott's geniality would be missed at the Bank Corner. He particularly regretted the fact that Mr. Elliott was about to leave Ingersoll on account of his connection with the Canadian Club. He wished him every success in his new home.

Mr. M. T. Buchanan believed the town needed just such men as Mr. Elliott. He expressed the opinion that Mr. Elliott's keen business ability would be appreciated in that great country and that he would find his efforts remunerative.

Mr. T. N. Dunn valued Mr. Elliott's citizenship greatly and regretted that he was about to leave Ingersoll. Geo. W. Wood spoke appreciatively of Mr. Elliott's judgment. He valued his judgment as he would a father's and many of his ventures were successful. Mr. Elliott from a business standpoint and as a personal friend.

Mr. James Grievie said he appreciated Mr. Elliott from a business standpoint and as a personal friend.

He realized that the different organizations of the town with which Mr. Elliott had been identified would miss his personality.

R. A. Skinner said he was particularly pleased to be present because of the kindness that had always been shown to him by Mr. Elliott. He had found him a good man to do business with, and a careful thinker.

R. H. Uren, as a young business man, had always appreciated Mr. Elliott's business judgment. He regretted that several organizations in the town would lose his valuable services.

Mr. Thomas Banbury, speaking from the standpoint of a farmer, said he had appreciated Mr. Elliott's many sterling qualities. He also mentioned that Mr. Elliott had always kept the farmers posted on financial matters.

Mr. R. M. Borrowman stated that citizens generally would regret Mr. Elliott's removal from Ingersoll. He had given close attention to business and had also been prominently identified with clean sport.

Mr. Chas. E. Rogers was very pleased to be at the meeting. He appreciated Mr. Elliott's services, and the town, he said, could ill afford to lose a man of his character.

Dr. W. J. MacMurray said he had always valued the friendship of Mr. Elliott. In business he had found him a very easy man to meet. He wished him every success in his new field.

Mr. John S. Fotheringham was particularly pleased that Mr. Elliott was leaving Ingersoll. He had always found him genial and obliging, and he felt that he would be generally missed.

Dr. McDonald, in making the presentation, spoke appreciatively of Mr. Elliott's sterling qualities, and the town, he said, could ill afford to lose a man of his character.

Mr. S. A. Gibson also spoke of Mr. Elliott's good qualities. Having a personal interest in sport, Mr. Gibson mentioned that he was in a position to fully appreciate the services of Mr. Elliott. Mr. Elliott had manifested a keen interest in Ingersoll and her organizations, and his removal would leave a gap difficult to fill.

Mr. JUSTUS MILLER PASSED PEACEFULLY AWAY EARLY THIS MORNING — WAS MAYOR IN 1890 AND 1891.

From Thursday's Daily.

After slowly sinking since Sunday, Mr. Justus Miller, who was injured by falling from a scaffolding on the old Mansion House a week ago Monday, passed peacefully away at his residence corner of Oxford and Ann Streets early this morning. From the moment the announcement was made that Mr. Miller's condition was alarming, anxious friends had frequently asked for news from his bedside with the hope that some encouraging improvement might be reported. While the fall hastened the end, Mr. Miller did not succumb to his injuries. For several years he had suffered from a chronic trouble, which was aggravated by the shock of the accident.

For many years the late Mr. Miller had been prominently identified with the growth and development of Ingersoll, and he was recognized as one of the town's prominent citizens.

He was born at Jerseyville, Wentworth County, and came to Ingersoll in the fall of 1858. Eight years afterwards he located in Salford and subsequently in 1872 he moved to Mt. Elgin, where for many years he was engaged in business as a manufacturer of lumber, cheese boxes, etc. In the early eighties he and his brother Rogers, began a very successful career as contractors with the Dominion Government in the construction of large public works, such as canal locks, docks and other harbor improvements. In 1895 he came back to Ingersoll to reside. For a number of years he was a license commissioner for South Oxford and also President of the Temperance Association of Dufferin, and president of the South Oxford Reform Association. He served in the town council for three years and was Mayor in 1890 and 1891.

The deceased was a man of excellent executive ability, coupled with which was a kind and unassuming disposition. He was generous to a fault, always responding with a liberal hand to any worthy object. He was a devoted member of the church of his choice, in fact, it was largely owing to the great interest which he took in its affairs that the Baptist church was able to successfully recover from the disastrous fire. He will be missed in every walk of life. He is survived by a widow and two brothers, Mr. Roger Miller, of Ingersoll and Mr. Aug. Miller, of Mt. Elgin.

Of his life one of his warm friends said: "At no point will he be more missed than the Muskoka colony, where for years he was the guiding spirit. We shall miss him on the streets and elsewhere, but the influence of his life will not be lost until we have touched the farthest shore of time."

"My little son had a very severe cold. I was recommended to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and before a small bottle was finished he was as well as ever," writes Mrs. H. Silka, 29 Dowling Street, Sydney, Australia. This remedy is for sale by all dealers.

STREET SCENES AFTER THE WAR

MR. J. C. NORSWORTHY SPEAKS OF HIS VISIT TO MEXICO CITY

—SAW DEAD BODIES BEING CREMATED IN THE STREETS.

From Friday's Daily.

With the streets still strewn with dead bodies, and magnificent buildings and monuments shattered by the incessant firing of several days, it was probably with more or less misgivings and a weird interest that Mr. J. C. Norsworthy and his daughter had their first glimpse of Mexico City, one of the most beautiful cities on the American continent. Mr. and Miss Norsworthy reached Ingersoll on Tuesday after an absence of about two months, their trip being one of intense interest. Of the many interesting points visited none, however, could compare with Mexico City, because of its recognized beauty and the revolutionary trouble which had just subsided when they reached there.

The devastation wrought during the fighting in Mexico City is shown to a marked extent in several interesting photographs which Mr. Norsworthy brought home with him. These show many palatial buildings and monuments in ruins, and dead bodies on the streets, some of which are being cremated. This was accomplished by pouring petroleum on them and applying a match.

Mr. and Miss Norsworthy left Ingersoll on February 11th, going direct to New York, whence they sailed on the 13th on the S. S. City of Mexico. They went direct to Havana, Cuba, thence to Pinar del Rio and Vera Cruz. Before they left New York serious fighting in the streets of Mexico City had been reported, but this did not have the effect of causing Mr. Norsworthy to abandon his trip. The vessel "The City of Mexico," was carrying a large list of passengers, many of whom stopped off at Havana, while their places were taken by numerous Mexicans and Spaniards, bound for Mexico City presumably to take some part in the fighting. On arriving at Vera Cruz Mr. Norsworthy and Miss Norsworthy were met by Mr. Norsworthy's son who has been a resident of Mexico City for some time. Owing to the war, traffic on the railways had been interfered with, but Mr. Norsworthy was able to get out of the city the night before and arrive in time to meet his father and sister. The party remained in Vera Cruz for two days and one night, taking train on Saturday and going as far as Orazaba, where they remained over Sunday. They entrained again Sunday night and reached Mexico City Monday morning. Fighting had ceased on Saturday, President Madero being taken prisoner.

Referring to the revolution Mr. Norsworthy said: "During the time of the fighting nothing was done to remove the dead bodies of either men or horses. The wounded were looked after as well as possible by the Red Cross and White Cross Societies, the latter being a Mexican organization. The dead bodies were left in the streets and in the garbages until the fighting ceased. Immediately after the fighting control posts were taken to clean up. The bodies of the dead were covered with petroleum and crude oils and set on fire. This method of cremation was wonderfully effective. Where any debris was left it was also gathered together and destroyed in a similar manner. This appeared a very gruesome way of disposing of the dead, but from a sanitary standpoint was most effective. No pestilence of any kind followed the war which would doubtless have been the case had disposing of the bodies been attempted in any other manner."
