

Blank pages in original issues.

The

PUBLISHED BY A. V.

No 13

Port

Little L

Little lips, so gently pressed Little fingers, soft caressed
Oh, the bosom of a mother Knows more joy than

Little feet so early strayed Little will soon disobeys
Oh, the bosom of a mother Knows more care than

Little knees, our still kneed Little lips, the father's Oh, this father's heart Knows more truly than

Oh, the love-links of a mother Stronger far than any of God has welded every
In the infant's heart as

Miscell

Interview

Mr. Jenkins has long been
"big figure"; but when he descends description of local dresses against spectacle of high fashion take. He is a "favourite" in there is now scarcely an emigrant of America who is not a casual Jenkins, pencil in hand, and his views upon some subject personally mentioned, or to state regulations upon things to go is daily printed, and usually with with a fine improvement upon of the press, and the towering particular paper for which Mr.
is supposed to collect the sentiments.
The result is very comical, found it out whether it was the who was seen. Then nobody ever was seen and what he is said precisely as required. conclusions that if he did come was with a purpose of his own for a very unwise reader who he really knew the sentiments.

Interviewing, therefore, while the term for this kind of pro-least possible service, except it tifies the public curiosity about and it pleases the desire of a sidered enterprising. But to or lady as holding certain epigrams reported conversation printed would be ludicrous; and to so any historical value is about power of the press—and would be the last to question ably true that every sensible the corroboration of personal mors in the newspapers. They have not yet impressed the pu-ing of scrupulous care in sifting correspondent of the best jourfidentially to the readers of Secretary of State is well known by quailing a Champagne cock comic song, it may be considitem," but it is not believed very more plausible statements lieved, and the power of the press weakened.

It is not possible, indeed, for every statement that ticks from his office just as he is going to not the question. It is always exercise his common-sense, and what is offered for publication. and palpable falsehoods have been ing the war in Europe! What interviews with men who appear like silly school girls! If a man the world wishes to say something permit it to dribble through the irresponsible person unknown kins may present this credential of the Entauswill "Gazette," for great Cham of Tartary may ex-respect for that powerful organ invite Mr. Jenkins to take And we may be sure that Mr.
the most of the occasion. It ously avoids saying any thing upon Mr. Jenkins to make him thing. But it would be difficult valuable information that has been interviewing.

The method of reporting an bar. Mr. Sumner, for instance upon the "Alabama" claims, very distinctly what he thinks.