

Parliament of Canada.

Ottawa, July 11.—When the house assembled this morning, the minister of militia stated that the Canadian militia were now fully provided with the Oliver equipment, which, according to the words of a British colonel who had been in South Africa, might have obviated disasters to British arms there.

On motion to go into committee on the government bill reducing the rate of postage on newspapers to one-eighth of a cent per pound, within the province of publication, the rate to remain what it is outside this radius, Mr. Foster renewed his opposition to the measure and argued that it was aimed at the Montreal dailies, which circulated throughout the other provinces.

Mr. Ellis, of St. John, thought the maritime provinces should be considered as one province for the purpose of this act. He approved of the principle of the bill. In committee, Mr. Davin moved that the rate be made one-eighth of a cent per pound all over Canada, but the postmaster general said he could not accept this and the house rose at 1 o'clock before a vote was taken.

When the house resumed at 3 o'clock, there was a discussion on the post office bill. Mr. Davin's amendment in committee was defeated by 27 for 44 against. The bill was afterwards reported and the third time it was carried by 33 for 43 and the government of 33.

Dr. Borden's militia bill for the purpose of giving power to appoint colonels from the militia was also read a third time. The bill was changed to read that commanding officers of districts may not be filled by "anyone but a colonel," instead of by "lieutenant colonel" as at present.

Lieutenant colonels on the retired list may be made colonels without having to go back to the militia. There is nothing in the bill about honorary colonels.

On motion to go into committee, Mr. Monet brought up the trouble which took place between the collector of customs at St. John's, Quebec, and a man named Potvin. He said that abusive language which Mr. Monet had given to Potvin was not a part of his duty as an officer of the crown, and he ought to be dismissed. There was an altercation between both as to the justice of the war in South Africa. Mr. Wood said that he was living in a place where half the people were sympathizers with the Boers and where they goated over every British soldier that was killed and wanted to see all Canadians at the front killed. He also added that it was a pity that more French-Canadians were not hanged as a result of the 1837 trouble.

Mr. Monet said that he would not trouble about the matter as far as the alteration went, but Mr. Wood had afterwards gave and published a letter in the press the day afterwards repeating some of what he said.

Premier Laurier, in reply, said that the matter would be inquired into. He did not intend to inquire into the matter of such as Mr. Wood did, but it was particularly objectionable coming from a government official. There were English-speaking people who were successful in the 1837 fair and the city of Toronto today was ranging for a monument to the leader of the rebellion, William Lyon Mackenzie, who fought for Canadian liberty. Mr. Wood wanted to see our soldiers at the front killed, no matter what their views might be. Still he would not condemn Mr. Wood unconditionally and therefore an investigation would take place.

Mr. Bourassa spoke on lines similar to Mr. Monet and Mr. Carke Wallace supported Mr. Wood, after which the house went into supply.

Mr. Foster said that a good many of the public buildings were given for political reasons and no sites were selected. Sir Louis Davies asked him if he meant to resign. Mr. Foster said that he included them. Sir Louis Davies said that the Conservatives had not secured the site for Marsville when they first voted the amount for a site could not be got without a grant.

Mr. Ellis pointed out that Mr. Foster could not have meant the $5,000 vote for St. John immigrants as it was a very necessary public building.

DICTIONARY OF SIMILIES.

THE BIBLE IS FULL OF ILLUSTRATIONS THAT ARE NOT STALE.

ANTISEPTIC FOR WORLD'S ILLS.

Christian Religion is the Active Principle Which, in Man, Constantly Works for the Welfare of Man's Body, Mind and Soul—Common Table Salt as an Aid to Grace.

Washington, July 8.—Dr. Talmage is now travelling in Norway, where he has been deeply interested in the natural phenomena and the quiet social life of that wonderful land. In his discourse this week he argues, contrary to the opinion of many, that religious is an active principle which works constantly for the welfare of body and mind and soul. His text is Luke xiv. 34, "Salt is good." The Bible is a dictionary of the finest similes. It employs, among living creatures, storks and eagles and doves and unicorns and camels and terentins and pomegranates and almonds and apples; among jewels, pearls and amethysts and diamonds and rubies. Christ uses no stale illustrations. The lilies that he picks for his sermon are dewey fresh; the ravens in his discourses are not stuffed specimens of birds, but warm with life from wing tip to wing tip; the fish he points to are not dead about the fish market, but wet and fresh, and a-squirm in the net just brought up on the beach of Tiberias. In my text, which is the paragon of all his similes, he picks up a crystal and holds it before his congregation as an illustration of divine grace in the heart, when he says, "Salt is good."

I shall try to carry out the Saviour's idea in this text. And the like salt in its beauty. In Galicia there are mines of salt, with excavations and underground passages reaching to a depth of 280 miles. Far under ground there are chapels and halls of reception, the columns, the altars and the pews are all of salt. The king and the princes come to visit these mines, the whole place is illuminated, and the glory of crystal trails and crystal ceilings and crystal floors and crystal columns, under the glare of the torches and the lamps, needs words of crystal to describe it. I am told 280 miles. Far under ground there are chapels and halls of reception, the columns, the altars and the pews are all of salt. The king and the princes come to visit these mines, the whole place is illuminated, and the glory of crystal trails and crystal ceilings and crystal floors and crystal columns, under the glare of the torches and the lamps, needs words of crystal to describe it.

It would take all time, with an angel of God to tell one-half the glories of salt. It is perfectly beautiful. I have seen it smooth out wrinkles of care from the brow of an old man again. I have seen it lift the stooping shoulders and put sparkle into the dull eye. It takes that which was therapeutic qualities when he said, "It is marrow to the bones." It helps to digest the food and to purify the blood and to calm the pulse and to quiet the spleen, and instead of Tyndal's prayer test of 20 years ago, putting a man in a philosophical hospital to be
