Then we catch a murmur in the air as of the rustle of leaves with the first rush of wind after a dead calm. There are various voices, each with his side of the subject, which in most cases is not formed by quiet individual thinking, but by undue influence from an agitator, who is an upstart and at the bottom a pro-German, who happens to have just enough brains to know that the best time to agitate is when the minds of the people are confused. The Germans are master agitators, outside of that they haven't any brains. Before this country, United States, went into the war. I was in conversation with a German man, who was born in America immediately after his parents came here, but who was a German, just the same, both-warp and filling, and he wasted a perfeetly good half day trying to convince me that the Germans were a "superrace, that they were the brains of the civilized world. "I told him that he would find me very ignorant as regards the German people and the history of I know that they drink Germany. an awful lot of beer, that their woman have awful heavy feet and ankles, and that the River Rhine flows through the country some where."
