Besides money's what other tongue but laughter's have men time to listen to? To both of these will they listen. though they understand neither.

Money tacks, and life listens as it listens not to the tongues of men or of angels. But when money, the means of life, becomes the end, the end to all intents and purposes it is. Then does the man of means, king of a vasty realm, ab-dicate in favor of the slave, the man of one end, a realm of unideal gold such as no Keats wanders in, no poet sings. None is so poor as he that is possessed of his possessions; none so contemptible as he that abjectly serves his servant. Better go hungry than down on one's knees to such a knees to such a virago in one's kitchen as is money. Money is an old servant of man's, forever forgetting its place, and going unrebuked. Never to have taken orders from it or "back talk" is to be a

Nothing s more common than to hear a man boast of his money. Is it his? Rather, he is its. It is a thing of authority. It saith to one man, "Go," and he goeth; to another, "Come," and he someth; and to its servant, "Do this," and this he doeth. At its word, man jumps out of his sick bed, jostles his bosom friend, breaks an appointment with love, lets music come and go unheard, beauty unseen. Lest money should talk to him like the jealous mistress it is, he foregoes the green of the wirth, the blue of the sky! flowers and the songs of birds. The voice of his old playmate the river calls to him in vain; the mother tongue of the wind and wave is no longer even a memory; the meaning of pleasure is lost to him money's sake. Poor braggard! His money it! Its man he!-

TROUBLE WITH THE TOWER.

(Lippincott's Magazine.) Among the engravings that adorned the walls of a Toledo woman's home was one big one of the leaning tower of Pisa. One morning, shortly after the advent of a new maid, the mistress of the house noticed that the picture of the tower hung crooked. She straightened it and said nothing of the matter to the new servant, who had evidently shifted while dusting.

The next day the picture was again croked; the same thing happened the next day, and the next. Finally, one merning, chancing to be in the room where the picture was, the mistress said to the maid, as she dusted:

"Mary, you've hung that picture of the tower crooked. Just look at it!" That's what I say, mum," returned the domestic; "look at it! The only way can git that blamed tower to hang etrnight is to hang the picture crooked.

How We Got Our Present Calendar.

The Julian year consisted of 3651/4 days and exceeded by 11 minutes 13.95 seconds the solar year of 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes, 46 seconds. In consequence of this, the equinox in the course of a few centuries fell back considerably. In the time of Julius Caesar, it corresponded to March 25, and by the sixteenth century it had retro-graded to March 11. It was at this time that a physician of Verona named Ghiraldi proposed a plan for amending the calendar. He died before he had opportunity to carry it forward, brother presented it to Pope Greg ory XIII., who assembled a number of learned men to discuss it. It was passed upon favorably and adopted and thus was given to the world what has since been known as the Gregorian Calendar. In 1582 Gregory issued a brief, abolishing the Julian Calendar in all Catholic countries, and introduc ing the reformed one.

The reform of the Gregorian or new on the Julian or old consisted in dropping ten days after October 4, 1582, so that the 15th was reckoned immediately after the 4th. Every one hundredth year, which by the old style was a leap year, was to be a common year, the fourth century, divisible by four, excepted; that is, 1600 was to remain a leap year, but 1700, 1800, 1900 were not to be reckoned as such, while 2,000 s to be so reckoned. In this calendar, the length of the solar year is taken to be 365 days, 5 hours, 49 minutes and 12 the difference between and the true length is immaterial. -The Christian Herald.

PROTECTION FROM LIVE WIRES. In this country a movement has been started with the object of having the electric companies arrive at some uni-form method of marking or indicating high tension electric wires. This agits on was brought about by the number of accidents to linemen and others simi huly employed, who accidentally came in contact with these wires while in ignorance of their character and was prompted solely for the benefit of these persons. In France the same kind of a movement has started, with an entively different object, in this case for the protection of aeronauts who might get in contact with them in coming to the earth. It is proposed to cover these wires and cables with some distinctive insulation by which the bird-men could distinguish and avoid them or else to paint the poles containing such wires in some color which would indicate the presence of the heavily charged wires. Shiloh's Cura coldent the throat and livings. 28

THEY SPOILED THE FILM.

A short time ago a scene from the French revolution was being enacted in France for the moving picture machine. A guillotine had been erected by the padside, and a howling mob had as sembled about it. The mimic execu tion was going on in the most lifelike menner. The dramatic moment had arrived; the condemned man, with the priest beside him, stood under the glitering knife, the savage-faced mob waved its arms in fierce exultation — when a touring car swept around a curve in the road. Some American ladies in the car, finding themselves face to face with this realistic picture, broke into piercing screams, while the startled chauffeur brought his machine to a stop.

The disturbance was too much for the actors, and the condemned man, the was the matter. The motorists soon found out the situation, and sped away but the film was ruined.—Strand Maga-

THE DAY'S FINISH. The baby is sleepy and calls for me

To come and unbutton gown, and she Waves her mother aside and her sister

And not a soul in the house may do for her at all but her "own true dad," And the call she sends me has made me glad, So I gallop in where she's half asleep

A pink and cuddled tousled heap; And I loose the buttons all one by one And for each one there are loads of fun And I get her nightie, and she lies there With her lips apart and her tousled hair Spread wide on the pillow, and looks at

And her eyes are full of expectant glee. And so just when I have turned to go I snatch a pillow and turn and throw It at her, and then all her sleep is fled And her eyes are wide and her tousled

Is abob with glee, and the pillows fly
Till the babe is laughing aloud, and I Am cutting capers and dodging things,
And sleep is fled on the frolic's wings; And we all of us run and we caterw Through the darkened rooms and the dim lit hall;

For her sister is got in the game by now,
And her mother gets in the rowdy dow, delight Until I've kissed them and said good

And then I get in my easy chair. To rest, and a baby with tousled hair, And the baby's sister with eyes of blue Come tippy down the hall and through My study with a giggle, then The pillow battle is on again! And harder than ever it With a shrick of glee and wild to do, Until I grab up the babe and all And rush away along the hall

And jounce them onto their beds Them both, and the nights, that all like this, Are the things that make the good old world smile.

And make the toil of each day worth -Judd Mortimer Lewis.

GERMAN BUREAUCRACY. A good story is going the rounds of the French newspapers illustrating the beauties of bureaucratic government in Jermany. We are told that in the Post Office Department, if a clerk wishes a new pencil, he has to hand in the stump of the one that has become too short to work with. In the particular instance cited a clerk received his pencil without returning the end.

Before the omission was discovered the clerk was transferred to anothe office. Just after he had commenced his duties at his new post he received an official intimation that he had negan official infimation that he had neg-lected to hand in his pencil end. By this time it had disappeared, but to prevent bother the clerk purchased a new pencil, cut off a piece about the length of the missing bit, and despatched it to the stationery department .-London Globe.
