Seeds.

A wonderful thing is a seed—
The one thing deathless forever!
The one thing changeless—utterly true—Forever old, forever new,
And fickle and faithless never.

Plant blessings, and blessings will bloom;
Plant hate, and hate will grow;
You can sow to-day—to-morrow will bring The blossom that proves what sort of a Is the seed—the seed that you sow.

Advice for Young Men.

Their occupation so grand, so ... It gives you an
... strength dur-
... It is a home where good morals can be entertained, without those allurements which are always predominant in city life.

He who tills the soil is engaged in an honorable occupation. Agriculture is the great st among the arts, for it first in supplying our necessities; it favors and strengthens population; it creates and maintains manufactures; gives employment to navigation, and materials to commerce. It is also the strongest bond of well regulated society, the surest basis of internal peace, the natural associate of good morals.

So, the young man who desires to leave the farm and go out into the wide world for himself, perhaps to some far off city, or to some spot on his native land, where he imagines there will be a paradise open for him; such a step in life should be well considered before taken.

It is a good thing to fit yourself for a lawyer, doctor, or a minister, but it is a better thing to know that you can be one. Young men favored with every opportunity for enjoyment at home, and not over-worked, imagine that they can do far better than to guide the ox, or to turn the stubborn glebe. And with the merest trifle of consideration, the hands are withdrawn from the implements of agriculture and given to the office or the shop work of the city. And thus thousands of young men are utterly ruined. If they would only stop and think, "What can I make of mys-elf?"

The question is, "To what is my ability mostly adapted?" then they might go forward into life's journey with a better prospect of success.

"Ever remember," writes Goldwait,
"that for health and substantial wealth, for rare opportunities for self improvement, for long life and real independence, farming is the best business in the world."
