the garrison, as well as the relieving force advanced to meet the enemy; but it took us all day before we met Sir Colin. In consequence of this shelling, groves of trees and houses were laid low. Very hard fighting we had that day. We then returned to Alum Bagh. It was here that Sir Henry Havelock died and was buried.

What was the cause of his death? The want of nourishing food. He had to be held up on his horse for a while when leaving Lucknow, and later grew so Per Square, first insertion, weak that he had to be put in a palanquin. It was just after the burial of the gallant hero that we received intelligence that the Gwaloir contingent had attacked and recaptured Cawnpore. We consequently made a forced march of 44 miles. On our approach to the bridge of boats across the Ganges, near Cawnpore, the Sepoys set it adrift. One of the 64th immediately went with rope in mouth and attached it to the burning boats and brought the bridge in position, so that we were able Colin Campbell at the time and subsetook us about three days to recapture Cawnpore, where we remained some time. Where did you go next?

We were ordered off on an expedition forces that had left Cawnpore and Delhi, R., and the fact that some promine which were advancing on to Cawnpore. We had several engagements oh our way up to Mereuit, within 40 miles of Delhi. What did you do then?

Did you lose much of the force here? Yes, a large number both of officers and men, for Nana Sahib's force, although partly of undisciplined forced levies, was Sahib's elephant was shot under him. Did you see Nana Sahib?

Yes, I saw him mount another elephant and cross the bridge of boats. I never saw him afterwards, though it was known Did you remain long in India after the rebellion was stamped out?

We left India early in 1861, but I was not long at home till I was ordered out to Canada, application having been received by the Imperial authorties for drill instructors during the Trent affair. At that time I was doing the duties of sergeant-major of our corps, our Sergt. Major having died on the way home from

He was also Miramichi Valley Railway, which the residents of Stanley village naturally desire shall pass through that locality. To locate the line as they desire would make it five miles longer than by the route now proposed to Boiestown; and as the subsidy is only for forty miles, or for no more than the direct route to Boiestown, the company cannot be expected to make the detour asked for. Mr.

Temple thus found himself called upon to explain why he had failed to get a subsidy for these additional five miles. This was a reasonable question; and if he had answered it according to the facts he would have probably said that the idea Just a few more questions, Captain, if of locating the road by any particular please. bound to return to the county, he will still be something in pocket.

If it were not that we had the example of Joey Bagstock before us we would hesitate to believe that even Mr. Temple would think this pretended ignorance ould deceive the people of Stanley. Instead of excusing his neglect of the important business centre, which finds itself five miles away from a railway, he ...$ 1.00 has put an additional slight upon it by insulting the intelligence of its people.

BAPTIST UNION.

The proceedings at the Free Baptist Conference looking to a union of the two branches of the Baptist Church are of very great interest. A union of these two important denominations would help the cause of religion materially, as i would be a strong proof of the oneness of aim of all bodies calling themselves Christians. It is pleasing to note that this spirit of union, which has already found expression among the Methodist and Presbyterians, is meeting with acceptation, not only among the Baptists, but among all branches of the Church of asked what their idea was of the teachings of the great Head of the Church. each would differ from the others in minor points. They would be more or less than human if they did not so differ; and in these latter days it is not to be wondered at that all men do not see alike on all points. It is sufficient if they pe agreed on the fundimental principles.
