Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any drugist, pour it into a 10-oz. bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma. Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the "world over" for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your drugist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

RECONSTRUCTION
RUSSIAN EMPIRE

An Authority on Russian Affairs Speaks of the Future

[Canadian Press by Leased Wire.]

London, Feb. 4.—In the opinion of Sir Bernard Paros, professor of Russian in the University of London, and an authority on Russian affairs, any one who dreams of excluding German economic enterprise from Russia during the reconstruction of that country would be an idiot because the uprooting of the Teuton would be a sheer impossibility. Further, he would be no true friend of Russia, to whom the help of the Germans is indispensable, the professor adds. The German must be there; the one essential thing is that they should not be there alone, but German money spells to Great Britain ruin.

What will count for everything in the reconstruction of Russia, both economically and politically, Sir Bernard continues, is not who supplies the money, but who does the work and finds the workers. France, in the past, lent huge sums to the Russian autocracy and found that they only committed her to it, with all its economic ineptitudes. The German took their own money to Russia, worked it themselves under the Russian flag, and saw that they will get their money's worth. Now, as they all know, Russia is for them the "back door" by which they can escape the consequences of their defeat; German businesses are already planning to move thither wholesale.

The real history of Russia is beginning now. In the story of Russia's former relations it is now that the roads fork; for Russia is not dead; she is coming to life. The new issue will not be decided by any military force; the presence in Russia of one trained professional Englishman will be worth far more than that of a thousand soldiers. It will be everywhere be not Downing street, but the individual Englishman who will carry the flag of England in Russia. The Anglo-Saxon is not there and the field is left to the German; the inevitable result will be that there is no Russia. But if he is there, he will hold his own everywhere. He will be there to help Russia on to her own legs; the very alternative in the choice of her helpers will serve to safeguard her independence, and her friendship will go most readily to those who come not to exploit but to co-operate.

NO POSTPONEMENT
GENOA CONFERENCE

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

London, Feb. 3.—No intimation has been received in London from Rome regarding any postponement of the Genoa economic conference owing to the resignation of the Italian cabinet, and the view here is that the weeks which must elapse before the date set for the conference will afford sufficient time for the succeeding Italian administration to study the problems to be considered at Genoa. The British policy relative to the Genoa gathering is unchanged, it was stated today, and the inter-departmental committee which is preparing Great Britain's part in the conference is continuing its work.

Stinginess and thrift are as different as they are similar.

REAPING THE WHIRLWIND

"He is fully acquainted with every detail of your life that has been confided to me, or discovered by the public, and he has studied and admired you ever since you came to dwell among us. In view of your very peculiar history, you must admit that his affection is certainly strong. If you married him, your past would be effectually blotted out."

"I have no desire to blot it out, and though misfortune overshadowed my name, it is the untarnished legacy my father left me, and I hold it very sacred; wrap it as a mantle about me. When suspicion of any form of disgrace falls upon a woman, it is as though some delicate flower had been thrust too close to a scorching fire, and no matter how quickly or how it is removed, no matter how heavy the dew that emerald it, how fresh and cool the wind that sweeps over it, how bright the sun that gilds its petals—the curled petals are never smoothed, the hot blast leaves its ineffaceable blight. To me, the thought of marriage comes no more than to one who knows death sits waiting only for the setting of the sun to claim his own. That phase of life is as inaccessible and unyielding to me as Antarctic circumpolar lands; and even in thought I have no temptation to explore it. My future and my past are so interblended that I could as easily tear out my heart and continue to breathe as attempt to separate them. I have a certain work to do, and its accomplishment bars all other paths."

"Does the nature of that work involve vows of celibacy?"

"Sometimes fate decrees for us, allowing no voluntary vows. How soon the path to my work will open before me I cannot tell; but the day must come, when having fulfilled a sacred duty, I shall travel back, praying you to let me live, and work, and die among you."

"My sister, your patient submission, your tireless application, have endeared you to me; and I should grieve to lose you from our little gray camp, where your artistic labors have reflected so much credit on the Home."

"Thank you, Sister Ruth; from fellow trappers is praise indeed, and the greatest blessing one human being can bestow upon another I owe to you; the blessing of being helped to procure work, which enables me to help myself. If I leave this 'An-l-oracle' for a season, it will be on an errand such as Noah's dove went forth from refuge to perform; and when I return with my olive branch the deluge of my life will have spent its fury, and I shall rest in peace where the ark is anchored."

"Do you imagine that desertion from our ranks will be so readily condoned? Drum-head, court martial obtains here."

"Would you call it desertion, if seizing the flag of duty that floats over us here, I forsook the camp only long enough to scout on a dangerous outpost; to fight single-handed a desperate battle? If I fell, the folds of our banner would enshroud me; if I conquered would you not all greet me, when weary and worn I dragged myself back to the ranks? Some day, when I tap at the ark window, you will open your arms and take me in; for then my earthly mission will have ended, and the smoke of the accented sacrifice will linger in my garments."

" meantime, today's details demand attention. I have a note from Cyril Brompton requesting that special courtesy be shown by us to his friend the new bishop, who is in the city, and who desires to inspect the 'Anchorage.' Cyril declines escorting the party because he finds it painful to meet you now, and he wishes particularly that you should show your own department. I shall not be able to climb to the third story, while my ankles are so swollen, so I must deputize you to do the honors on your floor. Hold yourself in readiness if I should send for you, and do not forget to give the bishop a package of the new prospectus of the art school. That basket of orchids must be delivered before five o'clock. Sister Johanna said you detained her to make a sketch of it."

"I had almost finished when you summoned me. Send her up for the basket in half an hour."

The long studio was deserted, and very quiet on that sultry Saturday afternoon in midsummer, and the drowsy air was laden with fragrance from the pots of white carnations, massed on the iron balcony, upon which the tall, plate glass windows opened to the north. Down the centre of the apartment ran a table covered with oil cloth, and on the walls hung pictures in oil, watercolor, and crayon, while upon brackets and pedestals were mounted plaster casts, terra cotta heads, a few bronzes, and a sculptor's brass plaques. In the corners of the room four marvels of taxidermy contributed brilliant colors mixed on the feathered palates of a sea-fowl, a scarlet flamingo, a scold and a silver pheasant, all perched on miniature mounds, but of curious specimens of rock, of shells, coral and sphagnum.

The slow, languid swish of the waters stirred by a passing steamer, broke on the cliff beyond the wall; and along the sky line where lake and atmosphere melted insensibly into blue distance, great cumulus copper-colored clouds hooded with salmon-tinted tips, tipped here and there with molten silver, shadowed with nearly hollows, hung entranced in the corners of the room four marvels of taxidermy contributed brilliant colors mixed on the feathered palates of a sea-fowl, a scarlet flamingo, a scold and a silver pheasant, all perched on miniature mounds, but of curious specimens of rock, of shells, coral and sphagnum.

At the end of the studio, near the open windows, Beryl had placed the plateau basket of orchids on the table, and she gazed before an easel, transferring to a surface of a conchave brass plaque the fluted outlines of the scarlet and orange ribbons, the vivid green, purple and golden-brown lips, the rose velvet cups, the tender canary-hued calyxes of the glistening floral mass, whose aroma seemed a panting breath from equatorial jungles. Having secured the strange forms of these vegetable simulators of the insect world, she replaced the sheeting of tissue paper around the gorgeous mosaic of color; and just then Sister Joanna threw open the door and ushered in a party of visitors, consisting of two gentlemen and a lady. One was Mr. Kendall, a member of the chapter of trustees. "Good evening, Sister. Bishop Douglass, of our State, and Miss Gordon, from the South. I have been boasting to them of the perfect success of the 'Anchorage' as an industrial institution. Will you show us some of the work done in this department?"

As on a swiftly revolving wheel, Beryl saw the black eyes and gold-rimmed spectacles of Leighton Douglass; the shield-shaped amethyst ring on his broad, white hand; the slender figure by his side, draped in some soft brown tint of sunsh silk, the blond hair, the wide, startled hazel eyes of Leo, who made a step forward, then paused irresolute. The gaze of the visitors was fastened upon the superb form wearing the gray garb of flannel, with snowy frills at the rounded wrists and throat, and a ruffled white muslin

THE WOOL MARKET
IS MORE ACTIVE

Average Advance of About 25 Per Cent. Over the January Sale

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

Boston, Mass., Feb. 3.—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow: The wool market has been somewhat less active pending the government auction on Thursday, when the market became decidedly animated. As a result of the government auction prices on the street today are probably five cents a pound higher, scored basis, values at the auction having shown an average advance of about 25 per cent. over the sale in January.

Reports from the goods market indicate a fairly steady demand for overcoatings and certain dress goods, but standard worsted suitings seem to be a bit slow. Mill consumption has lessened slightly. Contracting proceeds steadily in the west, 28 to 33 cents being paid Utah and 30 cents for wools around Casper, Wyo. A fair percentage of the Nevada and Utah clip is reported contracted already.
