

87, 89, 91, 93, 95 Ashley St.

PHONES (Office 551 Factory 1660)MOTHER'S BREADis made of the best ingredients.Mother knows that good bread and butter is by far the most wholesome food for children.

EWING

Sole Mfr.

This is the Genuine Insist on getting this label on every Loaf of Bread.A.M. EWING.
HAMILTON.The Paper on Which "The Times" is Printed is Made by the

Riordon Paper Mills, Limited

at Merriton, Near St. Catharines

THEY ALSO MAKE BUILDING PAPER AND ARE THE LARGEST MAKERS OF SULPHITE PULP IN CANADAHead office, Mark Fisher Building, Montreal, where all correspondence should be addressed.

Fun For Our Readers

Arrest for Resting.
"I have discharged my Philadelphia chauffeur. I was arrested on his account."
"For speeding?"
"No, for blocking the traffic."—Life.

Not Pure Altruism.
Young Man—Why do you advise Miss Smith to go abroad to study music? You know she has no talent.
Old Man—I live next door to Miss Smith.—Town and Country.

A Man of Action.
A Miss Buchanan, once rallying her cousin, an officer, on his courage, said:
"The inventor of the worst London fog," said the inventor, "an old friend of
mine tried to find his way from Trafal-
gar Square to the Savoy, where he had
an engagement to dine."
"The sulphurous air made the eyes
smart and the head ache, and it brought
on terrific fits of coughing. You could
not, literally, see your hand before your face. There was a continual crashing in
of windows; bells jangled; vehicles and
foot passengers collided; shrieks and
oaths arose."
"Threading his way in the midst of
this pandemonium, through the Strand,
as he supposed from Landseer's lions to
the waiting dinner at the Savoy, my old
friend, to his great bewilderment, soon
found himself descending a broad staircase. He put out his hand to the balustrade. Yes, a broad and stately stairway, with a rail of carved stone. Amazing!"
"Suddenly in his descent my friend collided with some one ascending the
stairway."
"Hello!" he said.
"Hullo, a gruff male voice replied.
"Can you tell me," said my friend,
"where I am going?"
"Certainly," said the other. "If you
keep straight on you will walk into the Thames, for I've just come out of it."
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A London Fog Story.
Hudson Maxim at a recent banquet referred to the fogs of London.
"In one of the worst London fogs,"
said the inventor, "an old friend of
mine tried to find his way from Trafal-
gar Square to the Savoy, where he had
an engagement to dine."
"The sulphurous air made the eyes
smart and the head ache, and it brought
on terrific fits of coughing. You could
not, literally, see your hand before your
face. There was a continual crashing in
of windows; bells jangled; vehicles and
foot passengers collided; shrieks and
oaths arose."
"Threading his way in the midst of
this pandemonium, through the Strand,
as he supposed from Landseer's lions to
the waiting dinner at the Savoy, my old
friend, to his great bewilderment, soon
found himself descending a broad stair-
case. He put out his hand to the balu-
strade. Yes, a broad and stately stair-
way, with a rail of carved stone. Amazing!"
"Suddenly in his descent my friend
collided with some one ascending the
stairway."
"Hello!" he said.
"Hullo, a gruff male voice replied.
"Can you tell me," said my friend,
"where I am going?"
"Certainly," said the other. "If you
keep straight on you will walk into the
Thames, for I've just come out of it."
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A London Fog Story.
Hudson Maxim at a recent banquet referred to the fogs of London.
"In one of the worst London fogs,"
said the inventor, "an old friend of
mine tried to find his way from Trafal-
gar Square to the Savoy, where he had
an engagement to dine."
"The sulphurous air made the eyes
smart and the head ache, and it brought
on terrific fits of coughing. You could
not, literally, see your hand before your
face. There was a continual crashing in
of windows; bells jangled; vehicles and
foot passengers collided; shrieks and
oaths arose."
"Threading his way in the midst of
this pandemonium, through the Strand,
as he supposed from Landseer's lions to
the waiting dinner at the Savoy, my old
friend, to his great bewilderment, soon
found himself descending a broad stair-
case. He put out his hand to the balu-
strade. Yes, a broad and stately stair-
way, with a rail of carved stone. Amazing!"
"Suddenly in his descent my friend
collided with some one ascending the
stairway."
"Hello!" he said.
"Hullo, a gruff male voice replied.
"Can you tell me," said my friend,
"where I am going?"
"Certainly," said the other. "If you
keep straight on you will walk into the
Thames, for I've just come out of it."
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A London Fog Story.
Hudson Maxim at a recent banquet referred to the fogs of London.
"In one of the worst London fogs,"
said the inventor, "an old friend of
mine tried to find his way from Trafal-
gar Square to the Savoy, where he had
an engagement to dine."
"The sulphurous air made the eyes
smart and the head ache, and it brought
on terrific fits of coughing. You could
not, literally, see your hand before your
face. There was a continual crashing in
of windows; bells jangled; vehicles and
foot passengers collided; shrieks and
oaths arose."
"Threading his way in the midst of
this pandemonium, through the Strand,
as he supposed from Landseer's lions to
the waiting dinner at the Savoy, my old
friend, to his great bewilderment, soon
found himself descending a broad stair-
case. He put out his hand to the balu-
strade. Yes, a broad and stately stair-
way, with a rail of carved stone. Amazing!"
"Suddenly in his descent my friend
collided with some one ascending the
stairway."
"Hello!" he said.
"Hullo, a gruff male voice replied.
"Can you tell me," said my friend,
"where I am going?"
"Certainly," said the other. "If you
keep straight on you will walk into the
Thames, for I've just come out of it."
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A London Fog Story.
Hudson Maxim at a recent banquet referred to the fogs of London.
"In one of the worst London fogs,"
said the inventor, "an old friend of
mine tried to find his way from Trafal-
gar Square to the Savoy, where he had
an engagement to dine."
"The sulphurous air made the eyes
smart and the head ache, and it brought
on terrific fits of coughing. You could
not, literally, see your hand before your
face. There was a continual crashing in
of windows; bells jangled; vehicles and
foot passengers collided; shrieks and
oaths arose."
"Threading his way in the midst of
this pandemonium, through the Strand,
as he supposed from Landseer's lions to
the waiting dinner at the Savoy, my old
friend, to his great bewilderment, soon
found himself descending a broad stair-
case. He put out his hand to the balu-
strade. Yes, a broad and stately stair-
way, with a rail of carved stone. Amazing!"
"Suddenly in his descent my friend
collided with some one ascending the
stairway."
"Hello!" he said.
"Hullo, a gruff male voice replied.
"Can you tell me," said my friend,
"where I am going?"
"Certainly," said the other. "If you
keep straight on you will walk into the
Thames, for I've just come out of it."
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A London Fog Story.
Hudson Maxim at a recent banquet referred to the fogs of London.
"In one of the worst London fogs,"
said the inventor, "an old friend of
mine tried to find his way from Trafal-
gar Square to the Savoy, where he had
an engagement to dine."
"The sulphurous air made the eyes
smart and the head ache, and it brought
on terrific fits of coughing. You could
not, literally, see your hand before your
face. There was a continual crashing in
of windows; bells jangled; vehicles and
foot passengers collided; shrieks and
oaths arose."
"Threading his way in the midst of
this pandemonium, through the Strand,
as he supposed from Landseer's lions to
the waiting dinner at the Savoy, my old
friend, to his great bewilderment, soon
found himself descending a broad stair-
case. He put out his hand to the balu-
strade. Yes, a broad and stately stair-
way, with a rail of carved stone. Amazing!"
"Suddenly in his descent my friend
collided with some one ascending the
stairway."
"Hello!" he said.
"Hullo, a gruff male voice replied.
"Can you tell me," said my friend,
"where I am going?"
"Certainly," said the other. "If you
keep straight on you will walk into the
Thames, for I've just come out of it."
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A London Fog Story.
Hudson Maxim at a recent banquet referred to the fogs of London.
"In one of the worst London fogs,"
said the inventor, "an old friend of
mine tried to find his way from Trafal-
gar Square to the Savoy, where he had
an engagement to dine."
"The sulphurous air made the eyes
smart and the head ache, and it brought
on terrific fits of coughing. You could
not, literally, see your hand before your
face. There was a continual crashing in
of windows; bells jangled; vehicles and
foot passengers collided; shrieks and
oaths arose."
"Threading his way in the midst of
this pandemonium, through the Strand,
as he supposed from Landseer's lions to
the waiting dinner at the Savoy, my old
friend, to his great bewilderment, soon
found himself descending a broad stair-
case. He put out his hand to the balu-
strade. Yes, a broad and stately stair-
way, with a rail of carved stone. Amazing!"
"Suddenly in his descent my friend
collided with some one ascending the
stairway."
"Hello!" he said.
"Hullo, a gruff male voice replied.
"Can you tell me," said my friend,
"where I am going?"
"Certainly," said the other. "If you
keep straight on you will walk into the
Thames, for I've just come out of it."
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A London Fog Story.
Hudson Maxim at a recent banquet referred to the fogs of London.
"In one of the worst London fogs,"
said the inventor, "an old friend of
mine tried to find his way from Trafal-
gar Square to the Savoy, where he had
an engagement to dine."
"The sulphurous air made the eyes
smart and the head ache, and it brought
on terrific fits of coughing. You could
not, literally, see your hand before your
face. There was a continual crashing in
of windows; bells jangled; vehicles and
foot passengers collided; shrieks and
oaths arose."
"Threading his way in the midst of
this pandemonium, through the Strand,
as he supposed from Landseer's lions to
the waiting dinner at the Savoy, my old
friend, to his great bewilderment, soon
found himself descending a broad stair-
case. He put out his hand to the balu-
strade. Yes, a broad and stately stair-
way, with a rail of carved stone. Amazing!"
"Suddenly in his descent my friend
collided with some one ascending the
stairway."
"Hello!" he said.
"Hullo, a gruff male voice replied.
"Can you tell me," said my friend,
"where I am going?"
"Certainly," said the other. "If you
keep straight on you will walk into the
Thames, for I've just come out of it."
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A London Fog Story.
Hudson Maxim at a recent banquet referred to the fogs of London.
"In one of the worst London fogs,"
said the inventor, "an old friend of
mine tried to find his way from Trafal-
gar Square to the Savoy, where he had
an engagement to dine."
"The sulphurous air made the eyes
smart and the head ache, and it brought
on terrific fits of coughing. You could
not, literally, see your hand before your
face. There was a continual crashing in
of windows; bells jangled; vehicles and
foot passengers collided; shrieks and
oaths arose."
"Threading his way in the midst of
this pandemonium, through the Strand,
as he supposed from Landseer's lions to
the waiting dinner at the Savoy, my old
friend, to his great bewilderment, soon
found himself descending a broad stair-
case. He put out his hand to the balu-
strade. Yes, a broad and stately stair-
way, with a rail of carved stone. Amazing!"
"Suddenly in his descent my friend
collided with some one ascending the
stairway."
"Hello!" he said.
"Hullo, a gruff male voice replied.
"Can you tell me," said my friend,
"where I am going?"
"Certainly," said the other. "If you
keep straight on you will walk into the
Thames, for I've just come out of it."
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A London Fog Story.
Hudson Maxim at a recent banquet referred to the fogs of London.
"In one of the worst London fogs,"
said the inventor, "an old friend of
mine tried to find his way from Trafal-
gar Square to the Savoy, where he had
an engagement to dine."
"The sulphurous air made the eyes
smart and the head ache, and it brought
on terrific fits of coughing. You could
not, literally, see your hand before your
face. There was a continual crashing in
of windows; bells jangled; vehicles and
foot passengers collided; shrieks and
oaths arose."
"Threading his way in the midst of
this pandemonium, through the Strand,
as he supposed from Landseer's lions to
the waiting dinner at the Savoy, my old
friend, to his great bewilderment, soon
found himself descending a broad stair-
case. He put out his hand to the balu-
strade. Yes, a broad and stately stair-
way, with a rail of carved stone. Amazing!"
"Suddenly in his descent my friend
collided with some one ascending the
stairway."
"Hello!" he said.
"Hullo, a gruff male voice replied.
"Can you tell me," said my friend,
"where I am going?"
"Certainly," said the other. "If you
keep straight on you will walk into the
Thames, for I've just come out of it."
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A London Fog Story.
Hudson Maxim at a recent banquet referred to the fogs of London.
"In one of the worst London fogs,"
said the inventor, "an old friend of
mine tried to find his way from Trafal-
gar Square to the Savoy, where he had
an engagement to dine."
"The sulphurous air made the eyes
smart and the head ache, and it brought
on terrific fits of coughing. You could
not, literally, see your hand before your
face. There was a continual crashing in
of windows; bells jangled; vehicles and
foot passengers collided; shrieks and
oaths arose."
"Threading his way in the midst of
this pandemonium, through the Strand,
as he supposed from Landseer's lions to
the waiting dinner at the Savoy, my old
friend, to his great bewilderment, soon
found himself descending a broad stair-
case. He put out his hand to the balu-
strade. Yes, a broad and stately stair-
way, with a rail of carved stone. Amazing!"
"Suddenly in his descent my friend
collided with some one ascending the
stairway."
"Hello!" he said.
"Hullo, a gruff male voice replied.
"Can you tell me," said my friend,
"where I am going?"
"Certainly," said the other. "If you
keep straight on you will walk into the
Thames, for I've just come out of it."
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A London Fog Story.
Hudson Maxim at a recent banquet referred to the fogs of London.
"In one of the worst London fogs,"
said the inventor, "an old friend of
mine tried to find his way from Trafal-
gar Square to the Savoy, where he had
an engagement to dine."
"The sulphurous air made the eyes
smart and the head ache, and it brought
on terrific fits of coughing. You could
not, literally, see your hand before your
face. There was a continual crashing in
of windows; bells jangled; vehicles and
foot passengers collided; shrieks and
oaths arose."
"Threading his way in the midst of
this pandemonium, through the Strand,
as he supposed from Landseer's lions to
the waiting dinner at the Savoy, my old
friend, to his great bewilderment, soon
found himself descending a broad stair-
case. He put out his hand to the balu-
strade. Yes, a broad and stately stair-
way, with a rail of carved stone. Amazing!"
"Suddenly in his descent my friend
collided with some one ascending the
stairway."
"Hello!" he said.
"Hullo, a gruff male voice replied.
"Can you tell me," said my friend,
"where I am going?"
"Certainly," said the other. "If you
keep straight on you will walk into the
Thames, for I've just come out of it."
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A London Fog Story.
Hudson Maxim at a recent banquet referred to the fogs of London.
"In one of the worst London fogs,"
said the inventor, "an old friend of
mine tried to find his way from Trafal-
gar Square to the Savoy, where he had
an engagement to dine."
"The sulphurous air made the eyes
smart and the head ache, and it brought
on terrific fits of coughing. You could
not, literally, see your hand before your
face. There was a continual crashing in
of windows; bells jangled; vehicles and
foot passengers collided; shrieks and
oaths arose."
"Threading his way in the midst of
this pandemonium, through the Strand,
as he supposed from Landseer's lions to
the waiting dinner at the Savoy, my old
friend, to his great bewilderment, soon
found himself descending a broad stair-
case. He put out his hand to the balu-
strade. Yes, a broad and stately stair-
way, with a rail of carved stone. Amazing!"
"Suddenly in his descent my friend
collided with some one ascending the
stairway."
"Hello!" he said.
"Hullo, a gruff male voice replied.
"Can you tell me," said my friend,
"where I am going?"
"Certainly," said the other. "If you
keep straight on you will walk into the
Thames, for I've just come out of it."
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A London Fog Story.
Hudson Maxim at a recent banquet referred to the fogs of London.
"In one of the worst London fogs,"
said the inventor, "an old friend of
mine tried to find his way from Trafal-
gar Square to the Savoy, where he had
an engagement to dine."
"The sulphurous air made the eyes
smart and the head ache, and it brought
on terrific fits of coughing. You could
not, literally, see your hand before your
face. There was a continual crashing in
of windows; bells jangled; vehicles and
foot passengers collided; shrieks and
oaths arose."
"Threading his way in the midst of
this pandemonium, through the Strand,
as he supposed from Landseer's lions to
the waiting dinner at the Savoy, my old
friend, to his great bewilderment, soon
found himself descending a broad stair-
case. He put out his hand to the balu-
strade. Yes, a broad and stately stair-
way, with a rail of carved stone. Amazing!"
"Suddenly in his descent my friend
collided with some one ascending the
stairway."
"Hello!" he said.
"Hullo, a gruff male voice replied.
"Can you tell me," said my friend,
"where I am going?"
"Certainly," said the other. "If you
keep straight on you will walk into the
Thames, for I've just come out of it."
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A London Fog Story.
Hudson Maxim at a recent banquet referred to the fogs of London.
"In one of the worst London fogs,"
said the inventor, "an old friend of
mine tried to find his way from Trafal-
gar Square to the Savoy, where he had
an engagement to dine."
"The sulphurous air made the eyes
smart and the head ache, and it brought
on terrific fits of coughing. You could
not, literally, see your hand before your
face. There was a continual crashing in
of windows; bells jangled; vehicles and
foot passengers collided; shrieks and
oaths arose."
"Threading his way in the midst of
this pandemonium, through the Strand,
as he supposed from Landseer's lions to
the waiting dinner at the Savoy, my old
friend, to his great bewilderment, soon
found himself descending a broad stair-
case. He put out his hand to the balu-
strade. Yes, a broad and stately stair-
way, with a rail of carved stone. Amazing!"
"Suddenly in his descent my friend
collided with some one ascending the
stairway."
"Hello!" he said.
"Hullo, a gruff male voice replied.
"Can you tell me," said my friend,
"where I am going?"
"Certainly," said the other. "If you
keep straight on you will walk into the
Thames, for I've just come out of it."
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

TURNED HER OUT.

CHARLES COLES' SHOCKING CRUELTY TO HIS WIFE.Thermometer Forty-two Degrees Below Zero, and the Woman Had Only a Night Dress on—Found and Taken Home by Neighbor.

Creelman, Sask., Jan. 12.—Investigation of the reported murder of a woman near here by the police reveals a harrowing story of a husband's brutality, which may result in sending him to the gallows. The man's name is Charles Coles, a homesteader, five miles south, who came from the United States several months ago. He and his wife quarrelled frequently, and it is alleged he treated her most brutally. But his brutality reached the limit a few nights ago when he threw her out in the cold, when the thermometer registered forty-two below zero, and with nothing to protect her from the storm but a thin cotton night dress.

A neighbor, who happened to be passing and wished to obtain protection for the night, sought admission to the house, but was ordered to leave at once on pain of being shot. As he turned to go he heard groans from the direction of a wagon box, and going to investigate found the unfortunate woman lying there almost frozen to death. He picked her up and managed to reach his own home with her, but she was so terribly frozen that recovery is impossible.

She has so far refused to lay a charge against her husband, and as a result he has not yet been arrested, but will be should she die or should he attempt to leave the country. The neighborhood is shocked by the brutal occurrence.

ARCHITECTS' WOES.

The Adoption of United States Plans is Resented.

Toronto, Jan. 13.—The Ottawa chapter of the Ontario Association of Architects is complaining of the custom whereby United States architects are obtaining work in Canada. According to a report submitted at the annual convention of the Ontario Association, which opened yesterday, a custom exists whereby United States architects obtain acceptance of their plans through the medium of a Canadian associate. This is greatly deprecated by the Ottawa chapter, and no doubt the matter will be fully discussed in the course of the convention.

In his Presidential address Mr. H.
B. Gordon said in his opinion some general building laws were needed in Ontario for the protection of the public as well as the profession, especially having regard for the ignorance of the public bodies responsible for the erection of buildings. He said construction in regard to the erection of a big departmental store, he said, offered a field for a horrible horror, while the general loss from fire was in itself sufficient to cause hard times, and the importation of foreign architects was an insult to Canadians.

Mr. Gordon advocated the passing of laws to regulate the height of buildings, and suggested that a feeling of confidence would be created in the public mind if the calling of expert evidence were vested in the courts.

A FARMER'S TRIALS.

Weak and Worn Out Through Overwork and Long Hours.

The farmer's life is always a hard one, but if he is weak or suffering it is almost unbearable. The hours are long and the work so hard that none but the strongest can stand it. An illustration of the effect of hard work on the system is given by Geo. H. Bruce, a farmer of Spyr, Ont. He says: "I have lived nearly all my life in the Bruce peninsula. I am a farmer and have always had my share of hard work, and like a good many other men, I thought there was no wearout to my system. In this I was mistaken, for about a year ago, after five weeks of work, I gradually came down hill. I would tire at the least exertion; my appetite failed me; I had a severe pain in my side and around my heart. The doctor told me I was suffering from pernicious anaemia; that I was almost bloodless. I doctored for six months, but instead of recovering I grew so weak that I could hardly move without assistance. I lost flesh till I was almost a skeleton. A friend from Stokes Bay told me of the great benefit he had derived from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and advised me to try them. My sister-in-law had been cured of a great benefit from their use, so I decided to give them a trial. After using the pills about a month I began to gain strength and from that on I improved rapidly.
New blood seemed to course through my veins; my appetite improved; the pain left my side and heart and I gained in weight. After using about a dozen boxes of the pills I was again enjoying the best of health. I have nothing but praise for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they cured me after medical treatment had failed—I really believe they saved my life."

Good blood is the secret of health.
Keep the blood pure and such diseases as anaemia, rheumatism, sciatica, indigestion, heart palpitation, eczema and the secret ills of women will not exist.
The most perfect blood tonic and nerve restorer in the world is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CONTROL OF LA PRESSE.

Big Block of Stock Said to Have Been Sold.

Montreal, Jan. 12.—It is said the Conservatives have lost another chance to get control of La Presse, the largest paper in French Canada. A big block of the stock has been in the market for some time, carrying with it the political control of the paper, which has been allowed to drop into the hands of those friendly to the Government. Mr. R. L.
Borden, when appealed to in the matter, said it was not the work of a party leader to look after. It is also said that Mr. Oler, M. P., of Toronto, was seen, but without result. In the meantime a local corporation stepped in and got the prize. It is understood that Mackenzie & Mann are no strangers to the movement.

HURT IN RUNAWAY.

Wallaceburg, Ont., Jan. 12.—As a result of a collision of vehicles, Mrs. James E. Richardson lies at her home here with severe cuts about the forehead and face.
Her condition is serious. Mrs. Richardson and her husband and daughter were riding in their carriage, when William Barney's horse, which had become unmanageable, ran into them. The daughter was run over, but escaped serious injury.

SEVEN YEARS IN PRISON.

Peterboro' Man Sentenced for Shooting Pittsburg Merchant.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 12.—Silas H. Pearson, of Peterboro, Ont., who confessed to having shot Jacob Knoeder, a merchant of Wilkeson Station, on the night of November 24, when the latter surprised him in the act of robbing his store, was today sentenced to a seven-year term in the penitentiary. Knoeder will be a cripple for life.

EIGHT PASSENGERS WERE INJURED IN A COLLISION ON THE INTERCOLONIAL AT ST.
MICHEL BELLECHASSE ON TUESDAY.

Eight passengers were injured in a collision on the Intercolonial at St.
Michel Bellechasse on Tuesday.

Head Office, Hamilton.

WAVING for the moment the question of relative risk of loss, the desirability of keeping money on deposit in a Savings Bank (where it is at once obtainable for any emergency) renders it most important that every business man, or any other man or woman, should, if at all possible, keep a substantial sum on deposit in a separate Savings Account.

It is most unwise to lock up every dollar in business or permanent investments. To the same degree, it is wise to keep a ready cash surplus laid safely aside in a chartered Bank.

A private savings account is carried by every prudent business man.

THE BANK OF HAMILTON specially invites the opening of such accounts, both by its regular business clients, and also by those who transact their current banking elsewhere.

Every courtesy and convenience is extended to such customers.

BANK OF HAMILTON

Open
Saturday
Evenings
from 7 p. m.
to 9 p. m.

Branches in Hamilton

Deering Branch—N. W. Cor. Sherman Ave. and Barton St.
East End Branch—N. W. Cor. Wellington and King St.
West End Branch—N. W. Cor. Barton and James St.
West End Branch—S. E. Cor. Queen and York St.

Hon. Wm. Gibson,

President
J. Turnbull,
Vice-President and General Manager.

AFTER MANY DAYS.

Several Thousand Soldiers Helping in Rescues at Messina.

Rome, Jan. 12.—The fact that living persons still are being rescued from the ruins of Messina and Reggio has decided the authorities to continue the excavations of the wreckage, and several thousand soldiers are to-day employed in this work who otherwise would be detailed to help in the distribution of the necessities of life for the survivors. The escapes after fourteen days of burial seem miraculous. In most cases these now being brought out alive were imprisoned in rooms and cellars not completely demolished and their situation was such that they could get a hold of some little nourishment.

FEET FROZEN.

Runaway Quebec Boy Found at Detroit in Bad Shape.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 12.—Romeo Cote, aged 16 years, was found in a box car at Milwaukee Junction yesterday with both feet frozen, and was brought to the Central Station. He told the police he ran away from his home in St. Henri, Que., five weeks ago, since which time he has been battling his way westward.
The boy suffered much pain, and was scarcely able to walk. He was sent to St. Joseph's Home for boys, and his people will be communicated with.

A GENERAL STAFF.

British War Office Is Likely to Issue Regulations.

London, Jan. 12.—Sir Frederick Borden will sail on Friday for Canada. It is understood that the discussions between Sir Frederick, Gen. Hood and Mr.
Haldane will result almost immediately in written regulations for the constitution of a general staff of the empire for submission to the over-set Governments.

HURT IN RUNAWAY.

Wallaceburg, Ont., Jan. 12.—As a result of a collision of vehicles, Mrs. James
E. Richardson lies at her home here with
severe cuts about the forehead and face.
Her condition is serious. Mrs. Richardson and her husband and daughter were
riding in their carriage, when William Barney's horse, which had become un-
manageable, ran into them. The daughter was run over, but escaped serious injury.

SEVEN YEARS IN PRISON.

Peterboro' Man Sentenced for Shooting Pittsburg Merchant.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 12.—Silas H. Pear-
son, of Peterboro, Ont., who confessed
to having shot Jacob Knoeder, a merchant of Wilkeson Station, on the night
of November 24, when the latter surprised him in the act of robbing his store,
was today sentenced to a seven-year
term in the penitentiary. Knoeder will be a cripple for life.

EIGHT PASSENGERS WERE INJURED IN
A COLLISION ON THE INTERCOLONIAL AT ST.
MICHEL BELLECHASSE ON TUESDAY.

Eight passengers were injured in a collision on the Intercolonial at St.
Michel Bellechasse on Tuesday.

A NEW YEAR OF CANADA'S CENTURY.

(Canadian Pictorial.)