A EDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1864.

NO. 5.

beamed with their wonted brilliancy. The ghost seer was gone, and the careless boy stood once more world.

Here it was powerless in my hands, and I would exorcise it or die. While I stood irresolute the light exorcise it or die. Wh

'She is my wife,' said the man; 'we have lived in the same house for ten years, and aff the time she has been mad. She has not had her senses since any on the table, and you will find a which she lost her hand. She has burned to death in the same fire in the same of the bureau drawers, which is been mad. She has burned to death in the same fire in the same of the bureau drawers, which is been mad. She has burned to death in the same fire in the same of the bureau drawers, which is been mad. She has burned to death in the same fire in the same of the bureau drawers, which is been mad. She has burned to death in the same fire in the same of the bureau drawers, which is been mad. She has burned to death in the same fire in the same house for ten years, and aff the time she has been mad. She has not had her senses since the same house for ten years, and aff the time she has been mad. She has not had her senses since the same house for the same fire in the same house for ten years, and aff the time she has been mad. She has not had her senses since the same house for ten years, and aff the time she has been mad. She has not had her senses since the same house for ten years, and aff the time she has been mad. She has not had her senses since the same house for ten years, and aff the time she has been mad. She has not had her senses since the same house for ten years, and aff the time she has been mad. She has not had her senses since the same house for ten years, and aff the time she has been mad. She has not had her senses since the same house for ten years, and aff the time she has been mad. She has not had her senses since the same house for ten years, and aff the time she has been mad. She has not had her senses since the same house for ten years, and aff the time she has been mad. She has not had her senses since the same house for ten years, and aff the time she has been mad. She has not had her senses since the same house for the same house for ten years, and aff the time she has been mad. She has not had her

Let the wrotehed creature go, and he took her believe to Massa Redlaw's about the waist very tenderly.

It telf yer de blessed truff.
Do you know what she has done? I asked.

No, replied the man. To my knowledge she has done nothing.

Nothing! Is that nothing? I asked, pointing Nothing! Is that nothing? I asked, pointing the self-tending the white couch. That is her handlwork. She killed him. Her presence frightened him to death. I hope not sir, said the man.

I speak the truth, I muttered bitterly. Take the self-tending in time?

real, "Way did I tarry on the roadside while my dwelling was in flumes, and my wife and child cuveloped in their midstr. Why was this woman, once so good and becomful, a senseless maniac? said the strange Start Tiwas God's will, sir, and we cound May be comfort you.'

away over a sloping roof, was to a wild and imissed by means of delicate surface of the coin so as to separate I reverse impressions from the body of folia the parts so separated into and soldering the parts together with a gold and silver. By this method sen gold piece is reduced to about the nominal amount. So perfectly is seen med, that there is no means of stine except by heating the coin and melting the solder which > olar recently, by action at diporting to be from a his services, but who do pay in this case.

> > the impression the Indian Governedition into Bhootan when he went to We learn also y from Koland, in amere, on its way of which is to Government to make a high-Sir Charles ular with the > > > im from Suez have ac-