ARE YOUR WINDOWS OPEN?

Dr. Talmage Draws Admirable Lessons From a Text in Daniel.

When Windows Should be Open and Not Shut-Should Look Out Towards Jerusalem.

New York, Sept. 8.-In his sermon for today, Rev. Dr. Talmage has chosen a theme overflowing with Christian cheerfulness and encouragement. The subject is "Open Windows," and the text selected was Daniel, vi., 10—"His windows being open in his chamber toward Jerusalem. The scoundrelly princes of Persia, urged on by political jealously against Daniel, have succeeded in getting a law passed that whosoever prays to God shall be put under the paws and teeth of the lions. But the leonine threat did not hinder the devotions of Daniel, the Coeur-de-Lion of the ages. furnaces, and they can not now scare him with the lions. As soon as Daniel hears of this enactment, he leaves his office of Secretary of State, with its upholstery of crimson and gold, and and pulls the curtain aside, so that he can look toward the sacred city of Jerusalem, and then prays.

I suppose the people in the street gathered under and before his window, and said: "Just see that man defying the law; he ought to be arrested. And the constabulary of the city rush to the police headquarters and report that Daniel is on his knees at the wideopen window. "You are my prisoner," says the officer of the law, dropping a heavy hand on the shoulder of the kneeling Daniel. As the constables open the door of the cavern to thrust in their prisoner, they see the glaring eyes of the monsters. But Daniel becomes the first lion-tamer, and they lick his hand and fawn at his feet, and that night he sleeps with the shaggy mane of a wild beast for his pillow, while the king that night, sleepless in the palace, has on him the paw and teeth of a lion that he cannot tame—the lion of a remorseful conscience. But our text stands us at Daniel's window, open toward Jerusalem. Why in that direction open? Jerusalem was his native land, and all the pomp of his Babylonish successes could not make him forget it. It may have been a very humble home in which you were bern, but your memory often plays around it, and God only knows how sometimes you have longed to see the familiar places of your childhood, and how in awful crises of your life you would like to have caught a glimpse of the old wrinkled face that bent over you as you lay on the gentle lan twonyou as you lay on the gentle lap twenty or forty or fifty years ago. You may have risen in fortune, and, like Daniel, have become great, and may have come into prosperities you never could have reached if you had stayed there, any you may have many windows to your house-bay-windows and skylight-windows, and windows of conservatory, and windows on all sides—but you have at least one window open toward Jerusalem. Yes, yes; in all these cities, and amid the flowering western prairies, and on the slopes of the Pacific, and amid the Sierras, and on the banks of the lagoon, and on the ranches of Texas, there is an uncounted multitude, who, this hour, stand and sit and kneel with their windows open toward Jerusalem. Some of these people played on the heather of the Scottish hills. Some of them were driven out by Irish famine. Some of them were accustomed at Lyons, or Marseilles, or Paris, to see on the street Victor Hugo and Gambetta. Some chased the chamois among the Alpine precipices. Some plucked the ripe clusters from Italian vineyard. Some lifted their faces under the midnight sun of Norway. It is no dishoner to our land that they remember the place of their nativity. Miscreants they would be, if while they have some of their windows open to take in the free air of America, rolls in the Bible heaven. and the sunlight of an atmosphere which no kingly despot has ever breathed, they forgot sometimes to open the window toward Jerusalem. You have the example of heroic Daniel of my text for keeping early memories fresh. Forget not the old folks at home. Write often, and if you have a surplus of means, and they are poor, make practical contributions, and rejoice that America is bound to all the world by ties of sanguinity as in no other nation. But Daniel, in the text, kept this port-hole of his domestic fortress unclosed because Jerusalem was the capi-total of sacred influences. There had smoked the sacrifice; there was the Holy of Holies; there was the Ark of the Covenant; there stood the temple. We are all tempted to keep our windows open on the opposite side, toward the world, that we may see and hear and appropriate its advantages. What does the world say? What does the world think? What does the world do? Worshippers of the world instead of worshippers of God. Windows open teward Babylon. Windows open toward Corinth. Windows open toward Athens. Windows open towards Sodom. Windows open toward the flats, instead of windows open toward the hills. Sad mistake, for this world, as a god, is like something I saw in the museum of Strasburg, Germany—the figure of a virgin in wood and iron. The victim in olden time was brought there, and this figure would open its arms to receive him, and once unfolded, the figure closed with a hundred knives and lances upon him, and then let him drop 180 feet sheer down. So the world first embraces its idolators, then closes upon them with many tortures, and then lets them drop forever down. The highest honor the world could confer was to make a man a Roman emperor; but, out of sixty-three emperors, it allowed only six to die peacefully in their beds. We need, like Daniel, to open our windows toward God and religion.

In olden times the Earl of Westmoreland said he had no need to pray, be-cause he had enough pious tenants on his estate to pray for him; but all the prayers of the church universal amount to nothing unless, like Daniel, we pray for ourselves. Oh, men and women, bounded on one side by Shadrach's redhot furnace. and on the other side by devouring lions, learn the secret of courage and deliverance by looking at that Babylonish window open toward the southwest! "Oh," you say, "that is the direction of the Arabian Desert!" Yes: but on the other side of the desert is God. is Christ, is Jerusalem, is hea-

We would do well to think more of heaven. It is not a desolate outpost. As Jerusalem was the capital of Judea, and Babylon the capital of the Babylonian monarchy, and London is the capital of Great Britain, and Washington is the capital of our own Republic, the New Jerusalem is the capital of the universe. The King lives there, and the royal family of the redeemed have their places there, and there is a congress of many nations, and the parilament of all the world. Yea, as Daniel had kindred in Jerusalem of whom he often thought, though he left home when a very young man, perhaps father and mother and brothers and sisters still living, and was homesick to see them, and they belonged to the high circles of royalty, Daniel himself having royal blood in his veins, so we have in the New Jerusalem a great many kindred, and we are sometimes homesick to see them, and they are all princes and princesses, in them the blood imperial, and we will do well to keep our windows open towards their eternal residence.

It is a joy for us to believe that while we are interested in them they are interested in us. Much thought of heaven makes one heavenly. The airs that blow through that open window are charged with life, and sweep up to us an aroma from gardens that never wither, under skies that never cloud, in a spring-tide that never terminates. Compared with it all other heavens are dead failures. Homer's heaven was an eigsium which he describes as a plain at the end of the earth or beneath, with no snow nor rainfall, nor the sun never goes down, and Rhadamanthus, the justest of men, rules. Hesiod's heaven is what he calls the islands of the blessed. In the midst of the ocean, three times a year blooming with the most exquisite flowers, and the air is tinted with purple, while games and music and horse races occupy the time. The Scandinavian's heaven was the hall of Walhalla, where the God Odin gave unending wine-suppers to earthly heroes and heroines. The Mohammedan's heaven passes its disciples over the bridge El-Sirat, which is finer than a hair and sharper than a sword, and then they are let loose into a riot of everlasting sensuality. The American aborigines took forward to a heaven of illimitable hunting ground, partridge and deer and wild duck more than plentiful, and hounds never off the scent, and the guns never miss fire. But the geographer has followed the earth round, and found no Homer's elysium. Voyagers have traversed the deep in all directions, and found no Hesiod's islands of the blessed. The Mohammedan's celestial debauchery and the Indian's eternal hunting ground for vast multitudes have no charm. But here sea-that is, no wide separation. No more night-that is, no insomnia. No more tears-that is, no heart-break. No more pain-that is, dismissal of lancet and bitter draught and miasma, and banishment of neuralgias, and catalepsies, and consumptions. All colors in the wall except gloomy black; all the music in the major key, because celebrative and jubilant. River crystalline, gate crystalline, and skies crystalline, because everything is clear and without doubt. White robes, and that means sinlessness. Vials of odors, and that means pure regalment of the senses. Rainbow, and that means the storm is over. Marriage supper, and that means gladdest festivity. Twelve manner of fruits, and that means luscious and unending variety. Harp, trumpet, grand march anthem, amen and hallelujah in the same orchestra. Choral meeting solo, and overture meeting antiphon, and strophe-joining dithyram, as they roll in the ocean of doxclogies. And you and I may have all that, and have it forever through Christ, if we will let Him with the blood of one wounded hand rub out our sin, and with the other wounded hand swing open the shining portals.

Many years ago the Turks and Chrisians were in battle, and the Christians ere defeated, and with their commander Stephen fled toward a fortress where the mother of this commander as staying. When she saw her son and his army in disgraceful retreat, she had the gates of the fortress rolled shut, and then from the top of the battlement cried out to her son, "You cannot enter here except as conqueror.' Then Stephen rallied his forces, and resumed the battle, and gained the day, twenty thousand driving back two hundred thousand. For those who are defeated in battle with sin and death and hell, nothing but shame and contempt; but for those who gain the vic-tory through our Lord Jesus Christ the gates of the New Jerusalem will hoist and there shall be an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord, toward which you will do well to keep your windows open.

Folks Living Under the Shadow of the Hamilton, Sept. 9.-A very large increase has taken place in the sale of the scientific remedy for complaints of the liver, and Dodd's Kidney Pills are in great demand. There are no complaints either from druggists or the public. The druggists being so near the headquarters for dis-Toronto, tributing, are never in any danger of running out of the medicine for long no matter how large the demand may be, and the public has long been thoroughly satisfied as to the valuable qualities of the pills, and the manner in which they invariably effect a cure.

France has a prodigy in the person of Jules Zostat, of La Rochelle, who, it is said, knows by heart all the verses of the Bible. He has such a marvelous memory that when asked at random any verse, no matter if it begins a sentence or is a continuation of the preceding verse, he will recite the lines. Give Holloway's Corn Cure a trial. It removed ten corns from one pair of feet without any pain. What it has done once it will do again.
