

THE GRIPPE

seems to be epidemic, attacking both old and young, rich and poor alike. It cannot be prevented. The best thing to do is to go to bed at once, consult your doctor, and as soon as you get over the acute stage, commence the use of SCOTT'S EMULSION.

Love's Fulfilling

There was little hope, however, as Sinclair himself knew. The strength of his delicate frame had been long since exhausted, and nothing but the sense of need, with his own heroic resolution, had supported him so long. It was Stephen's first heavy grief since the death of his mother in his boyhood. He clung with the warmth of his tender heart that his few near ties, his friendships, which neither time nor distance weakened, and, with the physician's strong yearning to save, he felt that he could not lose this friend.

you who have laid aside so bravely all thoughts which to most women constitute the joy of life, and thrown yourself so heartily into your profession— "I have done no more than hundreds of other physicians," said Dr. Martyn, in a brusque tone, "no more than you yourself."

"Perhaps not in the abstract, yet sacrifice of domestic happiness seems more magnanimous in a woman. For myself, I can honestly say that I have never been able to imagine the being who could offer me greater attractions than my profession."

"It is not impossible to combine marriage with a professional life, is it, Clara, rejoined Stephen, "not impossible, that is, for a man."

"Oh, surely not," said Stephen, with a half laugh, "I am sadly rusty in my Shakespeare, am I not? Well, possibly I may live to be finished by you, but I can wait the time. How in the world did we get to my affairs, though? I was talking of yours."

"Must I go, Clara, in an altered voice. My friend, yes; but not I hope and believe, to give up my profession. Perhaps you may even work to better advantage elsewhere, though I know well how hard it is for you to do so. Nothing but the reader sympathy at the north than the words of someone who had been on the road. May I write to Boston and you will come?"

"I will do as you think best," she answered, without looking up. "Memorials is only dear to me now on account of what she has suffered. I would gladly sell my poor people through the world—but I must not think of that, and you will be here. Tell me what I can do in your city."

"One of my bravest fellow-workers brings you this letter," Stephen wrote to her in Boston. "I am sure there is work for her to do in Boston. You share my views about the need of thoroughly qualified women doctors—she is one of those. If her services could be secured as resident physician in the hospital for poor women which you have so much at heart, her success would be assured. We were fellow-students abroad, and are wholly in sympathy."

"I will tell you a story of her heroism, for, though you may think that quality which is the mark of a true woman, which I will tell you, it was in the darkest and most trying time of her life, when her own life seemed turned to cowardice, and thought of little except saving their own lives—can make the most of the things of us sometimes! Outside the city an orphan asylum had been established in charge of the Sisters of the Good Will. Dr. Martyn was going out to it, with a score of poor little waifs, left fatherless and motherless by the fever which way out on the foreign country road they encountered a mob of desperate-looking men, whose homes were in the neighborhood of the asylum, and who were frantic enough in their fright to believe that they might escape the pestilence if the asylum could be abolished. At least, they declared no more orphans should be brought there. So they surrounded the wagons, seizing the heads of the mares, brandishing cudgels, firing stones, and swearing that the children should not be carried a step further. The wagons were thoroughly frightened and prepared to fly, leaving the children to the tender mercies of the mob. But Dr. Martyn, the only woman present except the Sister who told me the story, sprang upon one of the mares, and, with a shout, "Men, in clear, brave tones, low, but steady."

"Men," she said, "have you children of your own who may come in the way of the protection of strangers, and will you deny to these poor little ones the shelter of such a home as this? I will not think of it for you. Some of you, at least, will help me!"

"The men paused, abashed by her courage, and abandoned of their brutality. Some slunk away, and the other formed themselves into an escort for the dejected children who reached the asylum in safety. "I have no more time to write, for head and heart are pledged to these poor suffering souls. Do not expect to see me till it is all over, dear father, but have no anxiety for me, or wish me others were as well able to bear the strain as I."

DEATH OF G. F. CLARIS

Prominent Business Man Passes Away at St. Thomas, March 4.—George T. Claris, private banker, insurance agent and real estate dealer, and one of the best known and most prominent business men in St. Thomas, died at about 9:30 tonight. He was taken ill on Wednesday with gastritis. Nothing serious was anticipated until Sunday night, when other complications set in, which ended his life. Mr. Claris was the founder of the old Claris Opera House, which was the first theater and the only play house in this city for years. Deceased leaves a widow and two children—Miss Leta, at home, and Mr. Reginald, of the Bank of Montreal at Stratford. Mrs. Claris was a Miss Smith, of London.

ARE YOU OPEN TO CONVICTION?

The Use of One Package of Malt Breakfast Food Will Prove Its Superiority Over All Other Cereal Foods.

The large majority of intelligent people are always open to conviction when the important subject of food values is discussed. Many breakfast grain foods now in use serve only to appease the feelings of hunger for a brief time; these foods are not satisfying or healthful, in many cases they are injurious to health because they contain starchy and indigestible ingredients that tax and retard digestion; such foods are the feeders of Bright's disease, diabetes, constipation and indigestion. The use of one package of the now popular Malt Breakfast Food (sufficient for 25 or 30 meals) will convince the most skeptical of its wondrous deliciousness, its satisfying properties, its vim-imparting and strength-giving virtues and its marvelous power to correct disordered digestion. Malt Breakfast Food builds, braces and energizes. It is the Health Food par excellence for young and old. Your Grocer will recommend it.

HOCKEY.

CITY LEAGUE SEMI-FINALS. The double-header hockey matches in the Jubilee rink last night for the city league cup, were played before an average sized crowd. The L. C. I. and St. Paul's clubs played first. The high school boys' stick-work and combination play gave them an easy victory over their opponents, who put up a good fight in a hopeless cause. Score: L. C. I., 5; St. Paul's, 2. Following is the lineup: L. C. I.—Goal, Kennedy; A. Gibbons, Point, Robinson; G. McLaughlin, Cover point, Elliott; McLennan, Forward, Hammond; Labatt, Forward, Coughlin; McManis, Forward, Deacon.

VICTORIES VS. MEMORIALS.

From the start of the second game the Memorial A.D. club and the Victorias went after each other for blood, and the referee had to keep a man or two off the ice for rough play nearly all the time. The M. A. C. boys finally won by a score of 6 to 3. Lineup: M. A. C.—McCallough, Goal, W. Taylor; Latimore, Point, W. Taylor; Nelson, Forward, A. Taylor; Adams, Forward, Jackson; Hunt, Forward, Echelson; Mr. Laing, of the London team, referee.

LONDONERS LOSE AT GLENCOE.

The Waterloos, a junior hockey club, of London, played an interesting game at Glencoe on Saturday evening. The score at half time was even, but the Waterloos, but in the second half the visitors braced up, and through the splendid combination of the Waterloos' forwards, scored twice. But the Glencoes won out by a score of 6 to 3. Great praise is due the Waterloos for their opponents were much heavier, besides being older. A return match will be played during the week if the weather permits. The lineup was as follows: Glencoe.—Goal, Foster; Marshall, Point, McAlpine; Evans, Cover point, McAlpine; W. Marshall, Forward, McAlpine; Towler, Forward, MacIn; Sanborne, Forward, MacIn; Ward, Forward, MacIn. A senior Glencoe Waterloos.

PETERBORO APOLOGY.

Peterboro Examiner. Mr. William A. Mace, of London, complains that the Examiner published an article on Friday, Feb. 1, under the caption "How London despises the mob." But Dr. Martyn's statement appears: "The man, Mace, above referred to, was the secretary of the Peterboro club, and it was he who officiated as timekeeper and cheated Peterboro out of their victory over the London club. I will doubt that such a man, who may yet figure in a criminal action for perjury, would be so bold as to act as alleged by the Peterboro club."

The particulars of the article referred to were furnished by a member of the Peterboro club, and from what the Examiner considered to be a reliable source of evidence, he published the article. Upon investigation, however, it is now found that there is not the man, Mace, who is the secretary of the London club, and who officiated as timekeeper, cheated Peterboro out of their first game. Notwithstanding the above support the statement that Mr. Mace may be figured in a criminal action for perjury. The Examiner has published immediately upon a complaint being brought to their notice.

THE TELEGRAPHERS.

The employees of the G. N. W. and C. P. R. telegraphers played a match last night which resulted in a victory for the C. P. R. boys, the score being 12 to 0. The game was afterwards the victors were entertained to an oyster supper by the vanquished.

INTERMEDIATE FINALS.

Cobourg, Ont., March 5.—The first game in the intermediate division was played last night between the Ontario and Quebec teams. The score at half time was 4 to 2 in favor of Port Hope. The latter finally winning the match by 5 to 2.
