After the opening of the afternoon session Rev. John Wood, of Ottawa, moved the following two resolutions: 1. "Resolved that in view of the great evils arising out of the establishment of canteens for the sale of intoxicating drink to the soldiers forming our military camps, that the secretary of this union be instructed to forward to the honorable, the Minister of Militia at Ottawa, the carnest protest against the continuance of the practice, so that our young Canadian volunteers may no longer be exposed to the temptations there met with, and before which many of them fall into utter ruin." After the opening of the afternoon ses-them fall into utter ruin."

2. "Resolved, that this Union deeply regrets the re-establishment of the bar for the sale of intoxicating liquors in the restaurants of the Canadian Houses of restaurants of the Canadian Houses of Parliament, and earnestly hopes the united protest of the friends of religion and temperance throughout the land may lead to its abolishment as a national disgrace." Mr. Geo. Pym seconded the resolutions, both of which were unanimously indorsed by the vote of the Union.

The resure of the enquittee on Sunday

The report of the committee on Sunday schools was then presented by the secre-tary, J. R. Black, Kingston. It read as follows: "Your committee on Sunday follows: "Your committee on Sunday schools have to report that there are 97 per cent. Serious blame attaches somewhere, as more than 2,390 are absent every Sunday. The total amount raised for all purposes was $2,999. The sum of $410.99 has been spent for home missions, $418.88 for foreign missions, $7 for the college. The remainder was mostly spent on the maintenance of the Sunday schools. The

It, on the other hand, furnished the following grounds for encouragement: I The devotion of so many of the members of the churches to the teaching and official labors of the schools. 2. The statistical accuracy which prevails in a large proportion of our schools, and the promptness with which the officers respond to denominational efforts in their collection. 3. The esteem with which missions and ministerial education are held by some of the schools. 4. The expressed purpose of certain superintendents and teachers to possess for themselves and the scholars under their care, the best literature possible.

the scholars under their care, the best literature possible.

The committee recommended: 1. That there be uniformity in the papers and leason helps, and that those of the Boston Congregational publications be generally adopted. 2. That a hymn book be secured adapted to the song service in our Sunday schools. 3. That greater devotion be cultivated in the matter of winning children to Christ. 4. That where the cause of missions or the college has been neglected by the schools, the secretary or chairman of the committee for the coming year be instructed to write the superintendents of such schools with a view of securing their sympathy and support.

Instructed to write the superintendents of such schools with a view of securing their sympathy and support.

A short open parliament on the teaching of temperance in Sunday schools followed, Mr. S. P. Leet, Montreal, answering the questions put before him.

The membership committee then reported, recommending: 1. The acceptance as corresponding members of the Union of the names of local clergymen as printed in report of morning session. 2. That having had an interview with Mr. John Salmon, at which he expressed his desire of continuing his membership with this Union, we recommend that he be allowed to withdraw his resignation. 3. That Rev. Sampson Nichols be received as a member of the Union. 4. That with reference to the application for membership of Mr. W. H. Madill, the committee recommends its acceptance. 5. That in view of Mr. Burton's long and useful connection with us, our warm personal regard for him, and our regret in view of the prospect of his being removed from our fellowship, we recommend that the granting of a letter of dismissal be deferred until such time as an actual necessity for it shall arise, and meanwhile the secretary of the Union be asked, and is hereby authorized to grant him a letter expressing in the most hearty manner our high esteem for him personally, and our pressing in the most hearty manner out high esteem for him personally, and out best wishes for his future. high esteem for him personally, and our best wishes for his future. (Applause.)
6. The committee—with the addition of several brethren named by Mr. Clarko-having had a conference with him, were unanimous in advising and urging the withdrawal of his resignation in deference to the strong desire manifested by the Union that he should do so. They beg to report that Mr. Clarke accepted their recommondation-(applause)—and authorized them to say that with the consent of the union, he would withdraw his resignation with a grateful appreciation of the kindness shown him by his brethren.

The report was adopted.
The report was adopted.
The number of blank question forms sent out was 80, and answers had been received from 38 of them. As there were so many societies that had not reported, and the committee could not in this case as in the case of the Sunday schools, fall back on returns gathered by others, they could only give the figures as received.

The gross number of members is 1,468; of these 983 are active and 485 associate; of these 983 are active and 485 associate;

The gross number of members is 1,408; of these 983 are active and 485 associate; 479 are males and 837 are females. The average attendance is 1,132; 788 are members of the church, a little better than 50 per cent. of the whole. There were added to the church during the past year, through this instrumentality, 118. The percentage present at the Sunday services of the churches was 90, and in the general space meeting 60. The amount of money of the churches was 90, and in the general prayer meeting 60. The amount-of money raised by these societies is $979.46, an average per each society of $25.78. This sum has been expended on missions, the local church, the local societies themselves and Christian Endeavor convention pur-noses.

This report was followed by words of experi ence by several members present who were interested in endeavor work. Rev. A. F. McGregor, Woodstock, took charge of a short discussion on Y. P. S. C. E. matters. the church statistics in which the pastor

One solitary "Aye" was heard when the vote was taken. A chorus of "Nays" decided the question.

The nominating committee recommended that the following be delegates to the Dominion Alliance: Revs. Chas. Duff, J. P. Gerrie, J. Morton, C. E. Bolton, C. W. McCall, Messrs. H. O'Hara, Geo. Pyn, W. J. Daly, W. W. Buchanan, J. R. Dougell, Mr. W. McIntosh, of Yarmouth, N. S. extended congratulations from the union's smaller, yet older sister, the Union of Scotla and New Brunswick. The churches down there are about twenty in number, Scotia and New Brunswick. The churches down there are about twonty in number, and some were organized as far back as 1760. "We rejoice in your prosperity, and we are sure you do in ours," said Mr. Mc-Intosh in conclusion.

The Union passed a vote of thanks and sympathy to Mr. McIntosh and his brother clergymen in the Maritime Provinces.

The reading of the minutes and the benediction brought the session to a close.

EVENING SESSION. The church was well filled in the even amount expended for missions and the college was $531, or 11 cents per member. Seven per cent of the schools raised no money for any purpose, and a much larger percentage gave no money for anything outside of themselves. Eight hundred and two, or 10 per cent, are members of the churches, and 174 joined during the past year. As many as a dozen diliterent publishers are represented in the papers circulated."

The committee briefly drew attention to the following facts: 1. The imperfect returns arising partly from carelessness in recording facts, and in pastors, superintendents and secretaries in not attending to the filling up of the yearly blank forms.

The low average attendance of scholars.

Wood a man of 6 feet 4; hair jet black, as f long and more busy than mine—and feet twice as large."

The keynote of Mr. Wood's address was the "Modern mission of the church." His first few remarks were on union. Organizad union towards one definite end and one definite purpose was being looked forward to and prayed for by every Christian minister. When speaking of the modern mission of the Christian Church, he included the ancient mission. The latter's scope had been enlarged, its provinces increased and broadened, and were more complex at this time than ever before. He would draw a contrast between a theoretical mission of the church in the first place and the concrete in the second. The work of the early Christian minister had been largely theoretical. Never, he said, had life been more complex than at the present time. Never had everything been at such a white heat then at the present time. In a very the contrast of the contr supplementary agencies of outside Christian forces.

The preacher from Detroit has a sarcastic, and at the same time an exceedingly humorous vein in his makeup. His description of the young man who left the plow to study theology was the cause of much amusement. The young fellow left the plow with a ruddy color on his cheeks and strong biceps. He started in to study Hebrew and the other dead languages and his cheeks began to get pale and fall away, while a hungry look came into his eyes. He got a pair of glasses, a high collar and a white tie and then studies all the harder. He burned the midnight oil, and for fear that any sound might reach him from the outside world, he fastened his window up and he fastened the windowsdown. He corked up the keyhole and laid his coat along the crack at the bottom of the keyhole—all to keep out the sound of the outside world. And the young student goes such as moving glasses, combinations for preach.

But if a young fellow were to try to get a church without the conventional white and hungry look, if he had a healthy manly glow and an ordinary necktie, the deacons would think him secular and would be afraid to trust him.

The church wanted to-day a man who was more of a man than a preacher. (Applause.) The church also wanted not only man's contribution but the individuality of the man himself. Without both there would only be half-hearted work in Christian churches. The majority of the churches were united to-day, the speaker said—frozen together solid to the bottom. What they wanted was Christianity at a white heat, and every denomination would then unite naturally. But while so much was being said about union, it would be well to talk about a little more union among themselves. Another great need of the present minister was the necessity of each one believing exactly what they preached. And lastly, they wanted more Christian heroism and less sentimentality. The preachers who posed simply as ornaments were of little use. They would simply bury the dead and marry the living, and they wouldn't do the latter only three was something in it. There were too many gentlemen in the pulpit to-day, and to much professionalism and become reapers and workers for God.

Mr. Wood was greeted with round after tround of applause as he sat down after telling an intensely funny story with a moral to adorn the tale.

Rev. J. G. Sanderson, of Danville, Quebe, followed with a short farewell address, in which he thanked the people of London for their kindness and heapitality. He would like to have spoken, had he had time, of the beauty of the city, and the kindness of friends, the partor, and the kin
