FROM THE FAR NORTH.

"Amen." In another moment, the travellers resumed their march. On reaching the summit of a slight eminence, where the prairies terminated and the woods began, they paused to wave a last adieu; then Jacques, putting himself at the head of the little party, plunged into the forest, and led them away towards the snowy regions of the Far North.

THE END.

RDINBURGH: PRINTED BY T. NELSON AND SONE.

es that a man bening bart of b with breter. accom-Harry ect of tected ageur's nantig almost young ned to rt—it idness , and t Red tly to o bid ld out hly. deep, safety her guide world

nured