

The Next Volume

The November number of THE CANADIAN MAGAZINE will begin Volume 30, which in many respects will surpass all of its predecessors. Readers may rest assured that they are receiving the best literary productions of the Dominion and that THE CANADIAN MAGAZINE is the literary standard of this country. The thirtieth volume will contain a series of articles on French-Canadian folk-lore by Dr. Louis Frechette, the well-known poet. These articles are full of romance, and indeed will be found to be a literary treat. Mr. Wilfred Campbell, who is rapidly coming to the front as a prose writer as well as a poet, will contribute a number of articles on literary subjects, the first of which will be entitled "Shakespeare and the Latter-Day Drama." The narrative of Col. David Fanning, who served with the British forces during the American War of Independence, has been secured after much searching, and will be introduced by Judge A. W. Savary of Annapolis Royal in the November number. Judge Savary will also edit the narrative, which will run serially in each issue of the volume. This is a very important historical document, and it will be read with exceeding interest. There will be no serial fiction, but already some excellent native short stories have been procured, and the contributors include well-known names such as Sir Gilbert Parker, W. A. Fraser, Albert R. Carman, Andrew Coltish Smith, Miss L. M. Montgomery, John Innes and Mabel Burkholder, together with others whose work, although not yet well known, is bound to find a sure place. Travel, descriptive and economical articles that have interest and significance are already on hand.
