DOROTHY DIX'S TALKS THE STERN PARENT

By DOROTHY DIX
The World's Highest Paid Woman Writer.

The other day the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children had a man arrested for brutally beating his little 12-year-old son. The father's excuse for his inhuman conduct was that the lad had stayed away from home all night, and the judge, before whom the case was tried, dismissed the charge against the man, saying as he did so:

"You did perfectly right to thrash away from home at night. I would whip him more severely than you whipped this child."

One can understand the father in this case. He was simply a bully, a brute and a coward who vented his animal rage upon a helpless little child too weak to strike back. It needs the psychologist to read the character of a child beater. The yellow streak in him is so apparent that a blind person can see it.

But one fails to understand a judge who approves of child beating. Surely no one in these days is stupid enough to believe that a policy of child psychology is for sub- mission or reformation, even when applied to children.

There is something in cruelty that is a different way of think- ing. No criminal has ever been reformed by brutality, and no child has ever yet been scourged into becoming a great and good man or woman.

In their hearts parents know this, and they also know that when they whip their children they are not doing their duty by them, as they hypocritically pretend to themselves, but they are venting their lust for cruelty on the only individuals in the world that they may attack with safety to themselves.

A man dares not beat his wife when he comes home from the office nervous and irritable because busi- ness has gone wrong, or when his boss has given him a lecture on his inefficiency, for wife would hale him into the divorce court if he raised his hand against her. But it is perfectly safe to spank little Johnny for some trivial offense, and little John- nie is offered up on the altar of his father's ill-temper.

Mother has a spat with father at the breakfast table about the bills. She can't throw the coffee at him, as she would like to, because that way of settling a family dispute isn't done in the social circle in which she moves, so she finds a scape valve for her over-wrought feelings by giving Mamie a whipping about losing her hair ribbons.

The spectacle of a big, husky, six-foot man beating a little three-foot child is so degrading, so shameful, so unbecomingly cowardly that it is no wonder that fathers have had to camouflage the degrading deed under a high sounding moral label, and call it paternal duty, and claim that it is exceedingly painful to him and that he is only doing it for the good of the little one.

How much good such parental righteousness really does its victim, we know-ups can testify from our own

War Garden Bulletin

Issued by Canada Food Board.

Shell the enemy! Peas are part of the weapons of home defence. See how big you can grow them: how well you can defend them from aphids, and what good use you can make of them in your home.

The pea crop is a prime favor- ite, but it needs a fair amount of attention, and care should be taken that the vines are properly staked up. Otherwise you will lose a portion of the fine garden food that is so essential at present times when the country's efforts are being directed toward saving meat, wheat and bacon for export overseas.

Fortune came to the Secours Na- tional in ways quite unexpected this week. A charming French woman came into the headquarters and left $200 in cash. The name left in the visitor's box is Madame Siasoo and this is all that is known about the liberal donor, who could speak no English and was accompanied by a soldier who interpreted for her. She said she would call again when next passing thru Toronto. Another liberal contribution was from the Mennon- ite Church, of which W. E. Steele is bishop. The amount was $211.00.

FERRY SYLAW HELD UP.

Attorney-General Says It Does Not Fulfill Intention of Council.

The city has been notified by the attorney-general that as the ferry by- law does not fulfill the intention of council he does not think it advisable to recommend its adoption. He re- fused to approve it. He suggests that the proper course to take now would be to have a bylaw carrying out the true intention of council submitted to that body and if this is done the department will attend to it. At present the "bylaw in question is gen- eral, its provisions, of course, cannot be controlled by a special agreement."

"I Long for the Things He Can't Give Me!"

THIS is what every struggling young man who marries a wealthy girl fears—fears that his wife will long for the things he can't afford to give her.

And in the case of Ruth and Brian Hackett, this was true; Ruth did crave luxuries and the things to which she had been accustomed.

Brian saw this. He knew that his wife was not satisfied with his humble home. And it cut deep. It took all the joy out of his heart.

"Then, Ruth's love was not the real thing!" you will say—for, we all know that real love can flourish in a hovel. But you are wrong! Ruth's love was the real thing. She proves that in the end. How?

Read "The Wife" and see. This story starts Monday in The Toronto World.
