Some Unusual Buying Chances for Wednesday.

Even this store, at times, exceeds itself by discounting its own best efforts of the past in the way of value-giving. Such a time is now at hand, and on Wednesday visitors to this store will be greeted with some of the best bargain offerings that have come from this or any other source for many a day. Not "bargain goods," mind you—the market is full of such trash, but bright, new goods, selected from our own magnificent stocks, and reduced in price for the day or until the specified quantities are sold. A well-defined purpose prompts this action. Our gain will be in the increased business the day will bring us, and the large circle of new friends we shall win for this store, besides helping to adjust our different stocks after the big Exhibition trade of the last two weeks. Purchasers will gain because of the largely increased purchasing power it will give to every dollar spent at this store on Wednesday. But enough said by way of explanation. Here are the particulars of the respective offerings, truthfully described and presented to the reader. Eight o'clock will not be too early to come on Wednesday morning for some of these things:

A HAYFORK PREMIER.

The presence of Premier Greenway at Ottawa, and of Mr. Hugh John Macdonald, the leader of the Opposition, in this city directs the attention of the people here to the condition of affairs in the Prairie Province.

Mr. Greenway was a man of great pretensions and a friend of the people by profession. He and his associates denounced the Conservative party right and left for fostering a railway monopoly upon his province, of strengthening the Canadian Pacific at every turn, of being a common enemy. The people were told that if once the Liberals got into power genuine relief from railway monopoly would come into force. But Mr. Greenway has been in power for many years, and the people are still groaning at the freight charges which they have to pay, notwithstanding that Mr. Greenway has voted immense subsidies of the province's money to pretended competing lines. Anyone who has watched Mr. Greenway's career will have noticed that he has a trick of running away from Winnipeg for long spells and of sitting down with railway contractors and promoters in hotels in St. Paul, in Toronto and in Ottawa, of carrying with him an air of great mystery, and of looking as wise as the proverbial owl. But all this ends in a lot of froth about the rights of the people and in substantial benefits conferred on railway monopolists. Mr. Greenway has sold out his province time after time to the Northern Pacific, to Mann and Mackenzie, and to the C.P.R. for that matter, because the Northern Pacific is an ally of the great Canadian road. Mr. Greenway is the greatest railway fraud, as far as the people of this country are concerned, that has yet been encountered. He is also a hypocrite of the first class.

Mr. Hugh John Macdonald, who has decided to oppose Mr. Greenway, does not make anything like the professions that his opponents make, but he announces in a clear cut way that he intends to give up his connections with the Canadian Pacific Railway, that he will oppose any provincial subsidies, that he will secure complete control of the rates, and that he will favor the province building any road absolutely necessary to open up any section of country or to secure competing rates.

Mr. Greenway has been found out, and he is frightened now to face the people, and has to make another tour in the east to induce his friends at Ottawa and his other friends, the railway contractors and promoters, to help him out of his scrape. It will not do any longer to point to the fact that he was an honest farmer from Huron county, Ontario, that he has the finest farm in Manitoba and the largest herd of thoroughbred live stock to be seen west of Lake Superior. These things, however, do not quite prove that he is the friend of the people; they may prove, however, that he is the friend of the railway monopolists. Going about with a hayfork in his hand, and saying that he is a hayfork man, we believe Mr. Greenway to be a hayfork premier in all that the term implies.

A GALLING SITUATION.

"It galls me to see goods coming into Canada from foreign countries." These words of Mr. B. B. Eddy, the paper magnate, would form the text for an admirable discourse on patriotism and sound political economy. Canada is now making great rapid progress in population and material development that it can afford to adopt a protective tariff of the Dingley order. It is high protection that has made the United States the greatest industrial nation of the world. The adoption of the same policy by Canada will have a corresponding effect on this country. In 1878 the home market for many lines of manufacture was limited, that the application of protection to them would have been productive of evil rather than good. The situation today is quite different from that of twenty years ago. There is no occasion for hesitancy in acting upon Mr. Eddy's suggestion to shut out foreign goods. Every patriotic Canadian is like Mr. Eddy, and he is sure to get ninety million dollars worth of goods being imported annually from the United States. The great political question in Canada today is the adoption of some policy that will stop this deluge of American goods into the markets of the Dominion. Nearly two million dollars worth is pouring into Canada weekly from over the border, most of which can be made cheaply in Canada as it has been in the United States. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has worked on the theory that he could equalize this disparity in the trade between the two countries by negotiating with United States politicians at Washington. The feature of the Joliet High Commission proves the futility of his theory. One method, and only one method, exists for equalizing the disparity and that is by shutting out all American products at once. We can make economically in Canada. We pointed out the other day that enough bicentennial money was imported from the United States to sustain a town with a population of three or four thousand. It galls more people than Mr. Eddy to see the Government wedded to a policy which hands over this big business to our commercial rivals. At a low estimate we might increase the output of our factories by fifty million dollars a year if we adopted a sound protection policy. A better case for the adoption of a Dingley tariff today can be made out than was presented to the country in 1878 for the inauguration of the then National Policy. An enlarged national policy ought to be the feature of the next general election.

TELEPHONES FOR FARMERS.

The telephone is coming into much more general use in the United States than in this country. Having covered all the cities and towns, the telephone companies are now devoting their attention to the rural districts. There is nothing in Canada similar to the extension of the telephone in the farming district surrounding Cleveland, Ohio. The North Electric Company of that city has adopted what it calls a "farmers' community exchange," by the use of which the city exchange is enabled to furnish service to the farmers of the neighborhood at a price that is profitable to the exchange and at the same time within reach of the farmers. The central idea in the scheme is the connection of 10 subscribers with the same wire. By means of a special telephone set any one of these 10 subscribers can communicate with the central exchange

BEARDED WOMEN.

Designing men, through alluring and cunningly worded advertisements, constantly endeavor to work upon the feelings of girls and young women by inviting them "to write to a woman" and "secure a woman's sympathy." It is well to remember that the real sympathy is to be had at home and not from strangers, perhaps hundreds of miles distant. The object of the sick is to get well, and the sympathy of a woman is not to be had from a stranger, but from a woman who is a physician. If a woman is not a physician, she cannot understand the ailments of a woman, and cannot treat them successfully, because she lacks the necessary training.
