PEASANTS ATTACK TOLSTOI'S HOME

Famous Author's Life in Peril From Object of His Benefactions.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 21.-The jubilee of Count Tolstoi's literary activity was marked by an attack on his residence at Yasnaya, Policiana, near Moscow, made by peasants of the neighborhood, according to reports received here from Moscow. Several peasants on Sept. 17, it is stated, advanced to within 100 yards of the count's house, and opened fire on it with flint lock guns and pistols, but ferencewere driven off by the gardeners.

Although his family was much excited by the incident, Count Tolstoi refused to summon the police, saying he had no need of defense against the peasants, to whom he had devoted a whole life of labor and love. The next night, however, the same party of peasants again approached the Tolstoi homestead, and fired at the windows, breaking them and shattering the mirrors in the rooms. This created a great panic, and although the gardeners and others advanced against the peasants, who sought refuge in flight, not one of the attacking party was captured. Tolstoi thereupon conassistance, and latter searched the builders, Messrs. Ansaldo Brothers, borhood, and arrested three of them throughout the affair, and simply exissued authorizing the signing of the plained that the action of the peasants was due to a mere spirit of mischief.
