INDESCRIBABLE SCENES

Vivid Impression of World-Famous Battle Given by Great Movies.

A moving picture record of the bigest drama ever staged is "The Fall of apaume," the official film of the Britsh Government, showing at the Patriia this week. From the time the Brit sh Government, showing at the Patriia this week. From the time the Britsh Tommies go aboard the boats which arry them to France until the last hot is fired and Bapaume has been on, there is nothing but action—action ithout a dull moment. But although here is action a-plenty, the human lement is not wanting, and the actors lay their respective roles with an trnestness that is not to be found in le usual film, and although they are aying in the grim game of war, there ano gruesomeness that might cause lyone to shrink from the thought of doying the pictures.

The vastness of the organization of lich one catches glimpses at intervals ring the showing of the picture is apply indescribable and the more one is of it, the more is the truth brought me to one, that it is actually beyond conception of the human brain to dize the extent of the organization which our Canadian boys form a all part. It would seem to be more in any one intellect could do, to ugine the immensity of the war chine which has been perfected by Allied staffs, the variety of surs, and the innumerable details which st be looked after, if the work of British Tommy is to be successfu'.

Endless Preparations.

Men Are Needed.

But supplies are not the only thing required for a great offensive. Men are needed, and they are to be seen column after column swinging along the roads of France, and worming their way through the communication trenches up to the front line. An incident that must have made the hearts of the Canadian troops beat faster occurred when they took advantage of an opportunity to snowball one another by grabbing handfuls of snow from the parapet as they went through a communication trench. Besides infantry, artillery and cavalry kept coming up, and among the units of the latter, were the Indian cavalry, who, with their turbans and picturesque tents, gave one the

After long preparation the day of the great drive finally arrived. Before going into the trenches the men were drawn as the hostess of a delightful tea on the lines, and divine service was held in the open at the lines.

Motorcycle Work.

Something new as an arm of offensive Motorcycle Work.

Something new as an arm of offensive warfare is the motorcycle machine gun company. It is apparently an outgrowth of the pleasure motorcycle, and is so arranged that the man riding in the basket-seat at the side of the cyc.c, operates a machine gun which is attached to the base of the basket at his feet.

by "direct hits" from the British guns. Altogether the picture is an extra-ordinary one, when it is considered that it was taken under fire, and at great risk to the lives of operators, and that the actors who play the leading roles are in many cases unaware of the fact that they have an audience.
