THE BEER SHOPS

Closing at Eleven O'clock Greatly Reduces Their Income.

A law has recently been enacted prohibiting any beer shop or pool-room to be kept open after eleven o'clock at night. The law also forbids these places to be kept open for the sale of beer on Sunday, but tobacco in any form can be sold. A North end beer shop proprietor informed the Times this morning, that the law was the means of taking a large amount from his yearly income, as he often did more business after eleven o'clock at night, than he did all through the day.

Many people dropped in after attending the theatre, and also many who worked until late at night. The proprietor said that he thought the law closing pool rooms at eleven o'clock at night was a good one as regards other matters, but he could not understand why beer-shops must be closed at that hour, any more than dining rooms and tobacco stores.

As to the Sunday closing, the gentleman in question spoke favorably, as very little beer was sold on that day. In former years, beer-shops and pool-rooms were allowed to be kept open until any hour at night so long as no disturbance took place in them. In case of trouble the police had authority to command the proprietor to close his shop for the rest of the night.

MRS. BEST IN COURT AGAIN

Her Child's Cries Could Scarcely Be Stilled—Dr. James Christie Gave Evidence Touching Its Health.

Mrs. Mary Best, with her baby boy, and Minnie Robinson, were again in court this morning, when the preliminary hearing was continued before Judge Ritchie.

Dr. James Christie, the jail physician, was examined, and the persons were remanded for three days, when the unfortunate mother will be called upon to make a statement.

She babe cried piteously during part of the proceedings, and Mrs. Best was unable to quiet it until at the suggestion of an official, she walked the court room floor, and even then her efforts were not entirely successful.

Dr. Christie testified that he was jail physician and saw the Best woman and her child in the Alms house a month or six weeks ago. The child was then in perfect health; but just before leaving the institution had an attack of bronchitis from which it had not entirely recovered when he next saw it in the jail. Its condition did not seem any worse than when it was in the Alms house. It was still suffering from the same trouble.

Witness stated that a child left for 30 hours in a hotel such as described and under the conditions set forth in the evidence, would be in danger of contracting disease and possibly death from exposure. Witness thought thirty hours more would possibly destroy life. It would have died from exposure before it would have died from starvation. A child suffering from bronchitis would be more endangered than one in perfect health. Dr. Christie said further that while he had no statistics that would assist him in forming an opinion, he felt that it would be a serious matter to expose a child in that way who was suffering from bronchial affection.

When questioned as to Mrs. Conlon's statement that the baby's leg was purple, he testified that he saw the child when it was brought to her. Witness stated that the skin assumes this color when the circulation begins to fail; and that such a condition was due to a congested state of the blood from a weak action of the heart. The blood from a congested state of the heart would be more dangerous to a child than the exposure of a child to cold for a period of thirty hours might be serious by affecting its health and it was a marvelous thing to him that Mrs. Best's baby was not seriously affected.

Dr. Christie remarked that the child was unusually strong and robust.

Dr. Christie's testimony was that the child was in perfect health when he last saw it in the Alms house. It was still suffering from the same trouble.
