GRANDMA NEVER LET HER HAIR GET GRAY

Kept Her Locks Dark, Thick, Glossy, With Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.

The Best Quality at a Reasonable Price

Your Gifts of Money

Won't the best way to use the money you received for Christmas be to secure with it something you very much desire, but which, in all probability, you would not buy for yourself if this opportunity had not come to you?

Drop into Sharpe's. You are sure to see some dainty piece of jewelry, Cut Glass, Toiletware or Silver which will delight you.

SERBIA NEEDS HELP

People in High Places in England Sign Appeal For Aid

An appeal on behalf of the Serbian relief fund signed among others, by Lord Carson of Kildeston, the Bishops of London and Oxford, the Rev. Dr. F. B. Meyer and Sir Valentine O'Brien, contains a strong indictment of the Austrian policy in the recent disastrous invasion of Serbia. He says:

"The losses suffered by this people of hardly more than four million souls, in the course of this prolonged struggle, have been terrible, indeed, in proportion to the number of the population, the ratio is far beyond that suffered by the other allies, even including the Belgians.

"The need has far outrun the resources of Serbia itself. In the case of the wounded, it must be remembered, moreover, that the very success of the Serbian arms has thrown upon the mercy of the inhabitants tens of thousands of wounded soldiers belonging to the enemy's forces.

"To cope with anything like the amount of cases, there is neither staff nor appliances. The accommodation is so deficient, indeed, that a French nurse who was recently working at Valjevo, writes that she saw wounded men who had been crowded out of any sort of shelter, lying in the streets in the rain on some straw and sacking. There were no surgeons to attend to them.

"But this is not all. The Austro-Hungarian commanders have adopted the new German barbarian in their conduct of the operations. Villages have been methodically sacked and many inhabitants shot and others, even boys of twelve and old people more than seventy, have been carried off to a bondage, recalling the methods of ancient Babylon.

"The Serbian relief fund has made itself the medium of assistance in every form, whether for Red Cross purposes or for starving refugees. Admittedly, a complete hospital unit under Lady Paget, with the co-operation of St. John's Ambulance Association, has been sent out. It is already in full activity and the following telegram just received from Lady Paget will give some idea of the greatness of the distress:

"Conditions defy description. Everything given out. Wounded Serbians and Austrians pouring in day and night. Impossible to cope with the situation unless we receive immediate help."

LITTLE MOVIE MISS WANTS SANTA TO BRING HER A DOLLIE WITH LONG CURLS

Henrietta O'Beck.

(By Esther Hoffmann)

Perched on a big round table Lady Henrietta O'Beck, the little leading lady of the Lubin company smilingly declared that she could hardly wait until Christmas because it was always the happiest day of the year for her and the little kiddie friends she knows.

"My daddy always has some surprise for me on that day but I wrote a letter to Santa Claus telling him I wanted a big doll with long curls, and a trunk for my other dollies' clothes," she said joyfully. "I never forget my old dollies at Christmas time for I get so used to them and learn to love them more and more each year. I always pretend that they are the oldest children."

"I have one rag doll that I want to keep always. Her name is Alice and she was burned in the same scene where I was burned. Mother doesn't think she is a nice doll to play with for she has only one leg since she was in the fire. I don't care though, for when I dress Alice up you can never tell that she has only one leg."

"This Christmas mamma let me send some of my dollies to poor little kiddies who don't get pretty things," she went on thoughtfully. "Of course I will miss them for a long time but I feel sorry for the children that mamma tells me about, and I think they will be happy with some of my play children."

George Ade tells a story which he says always seems fresh and glistening to him, no matter how old it gets. It is about two solemn looking gentlemen who were riding together in a railway carriage. One gentleman said to the other: "Is your wife entertaining this summer?"

Whereupon the second gentleman replied, "Not very."

POPE SPEAKS OF WAR IN CHRISTMAS ADDRESS TO THE SACRED COLLEGE

Pope Benedict on the day before Christmas received the members of the Sacred College in solemn audience for the exchange of Christmas greetings, the ceremony taking on the pomp of the times of Pope Leo.

Addressing the cardinals, the Pontiff expressed his regret at the absence of some of the prelates owing to illness, referring especially to Cardinals Agliardi and Martinelli. He added that the latest news regarding the health of Cardinal Agliardi made it apparent that his recovery would be speedy.

The Pope then enumerated the efforts he had made to render the war less terrible and said that he would continue to devote all his energies to the suppression or limitation of the inhuman sacrifice of life. He spoke of the efforts he had made for peace or to mitigate suffering. These efforts, he said, had weighed upon him more than any other task incumbent upon him by reason of his position. Publicly and privately, the Pope said, he had left no way untried to show that there was a need and a desire for peace. He also had suggested a short Christmas truce. Unfortunately, he added, Christian initiative had failed, but he was not discouraged. He intended to continue his every effort to hasten the end of the unequalled calamity, or to alleviate its sad consequences.

The Pontiff spoke hopefully of his project for an exchange of wounded prisoners incapable of fighting further. He encouraged pastors and individuals to redouble their prayers, in public and in private, for a cessation of the war and to the end that "even the fratricidal arms fall to the ground the hands that held them may be returned to the labors of civilization and peace."
