YORK COUNTY HAS
SELECTED A STRONG MAN

and he would not therefore address the convention at any length. He was very sorry that the convention was made necessary by such an event as the election of the late Mr. Robison. The late Mr. Robison was a good man, was staunch and sincere and always to be depended on. He was convinced that the Government had given the province the best administration of business it had enjoyed in the past 25 years. When he came into power the affairs of the province were in a most deplorable condition, but this had been remedied during the past three years. Today there were no such things as a suspense account and every dollar of the revenue was honestly collected and accounted for. The increased revenues had been paid back to the people in increased expenditures on public works, such as bridges, roads and wharves. The people of the province today could by school books for their children at from 40 to 50 per cent less than they could have done three years ago.

He hoped that all the good elements of York would feel just as much confidence in the government when they were again called to the polls as they had felt in his party on March 3rd, 1908. Unfortunately the Government further review the record of his government during the last three years, as he was obliged to attend the opening of the House on Monday, and confidence in the people of York and trusted they would never have cause to lose their faith in the present administration.

Dr. Morehouse Nominated.

Con. S. H. Hunter, of Harvey, who succeeded the late Thomas Robison as the representative of Manners-Sutton in the York county council nominated Dr. O. E. Morehouse, of Upper Keswick, ex-warden of York county, as the standard bearer of the party.

The nomination was received with cheers and great enthusiasm and it was some moments before the speech could be continued.

The nomination was seconded by ex-Warden John Scott in an enthusiastic speech.

Dr. Morehouse accepts.

The nomination was unanimous and Dr. Morehouse accepted in an enthusiastic speech, after which speeches were also made by Hon. Robert Maxwell, Hon. H. P. McLeod, O. S. Campbell, P. F. M. Sprout, M. P. P., and others.

This evening many of the delegates who attended the convention were present at the reception given at the Conservative Club to the Conservative members of the legislature.

The procession will then proceed to Sydney street, thence to the Cathedral on Waterloo street, where service will be held. After the service the procession will proceed on Waterloo street and parade down Richmond to Brussels, thence to Union street, thence to Mill, up King to the north side, King Square, where they will disband.

In the evening there will be a dinner given by St. Patrick's Society, while entertained at the Opera House, St. Peter's Hall, St. Patrick's Hall and St. Rose's Hall.

GOVERNMENT COULD HAVE
AVERTED FAILURE.

Later Mr. Henderson said he met Mr. Fielding in the corridor and had brought the money for the deposit. The minister said: "I put it up to him and he denied it."

Mr. Henderson of the New York operations of the bank which were making him anxious and in the conversation the minister said: "I don't see why you should worry over this. You are not responsible. And besides you warned me."

Fielding denies it all.

Mr. Fielding denied that Mr. Henderson had "warned" him. He denied saying "I put it up to him" largely on the ground that he never had that particular expression in his life. He denied having said that Mr. Henderson had warned him. He did not deny that Mr. Henderson had discounted notes.

Mr. Henderson repeated his affirmation in the most positive terms, and when the minister making these charges were brought out, he took the dropping of their suit as sufficient reason to pay no attention to the irregularities which were alleged, and that the other day.

Another circumstance which should have put Mr. Fielding on his guard was that Leighton McCarthy sent to him a document connected with a suit against the organizers of the bank, the document being an exceedingly serious charge. Mr. Fielding did not investigate these charges, though they were formally laid before him, and when the minister making these charges were brought out, he took the dropping of their suit as sufficient reason to pay no attention to the irregularities which were alleged, and that the other day.

Mr. Fielding denied that he could not recall having been warned by Mr. Henderson. Mr. Borden said he could tell the minister of another member of parliament who had warned him.

The statements made to the minister were so startling that one would have thought that he would have no doubt regarding his duty. He should have ordered the production of the minute book before granting the certificate. He was far from helpless after the letter of Sir Edward Clouston on behalf of the bankers' association, which was an absolutely unfounded case and it would be discreditable if the government refused.

Mr. Fielding spoke briefly, confining his argument to a contention that the victims of the disaster had no claim to be reimbursed by the government.

Dr. Edwards adjourned the debate and the House adjourned at 12:10 a. m.

Personal Guests Of Mem- bers Of British Houses.

Special To The Standard.

Ottawa, Ont., March 15.—Further information regarding the contingent of members of parliament who are to go to participate in the Coronation celebrations, shows that the invitation emanates from a committee of the members of both houses of the British parliament.

This committee was formed last July for the purpose of asking a certain number of members of parliament to visit Great Britain, as the guests of the members of the British parliament, during the Coronation period. The dissolution of the British parliament last November interrupted the work of the committee, but since the election of the new parliament, the idea has been taken up again both sides co-operating heartily in it.

Among those showing an interest are the Lord Chancellor, the speaker of the House of Commons, the Premier, the leader of the opposition, and the colonial secretary.

The invitation is for both members of the House of Commons, 18; Australia, 18; South Africa, 12; New Zealand, 8; Newfoundland, 2.

The impression that the delegates would represent that parliament in its personal and not in its legislative capacity.

This personal aspect of the invitation is highly satisfactory to the Canadian delegates. They will be entertained at the Wolcott Hotel from June 17 to July 1, after which there is projected a tour of the United Kingdom.

The chairman of the British committee is Lord Rosebery with Speaker Lowther as vice chairman.
