

LATE NEWS AND VIEWS FROM SPORTING WORLD

FAITHFUL FANS FROZE
WHILE THISTLES WON
IN LAST NIGHT'S GAMEPoor Seven-inning Exhibition in Which Maples Were Defeated.

The few faithful fans who attended last night's contest between the Thistles and Maples saw a poor exhibition of America's national game. After seven innings of errors, fumbles and muffs, Billy Howard called the game in favor of the Thistles, 14-10. There was a plethora of mistakes on both sides in which Milan of the Thistles figured, he heading the list with three to his credit.

McGuigan adorned the mound for the victors, but he could not be seen to advantage owing to the velocity of the wind. In fact it was hard to judge any kind of a ball last night. Dever held his old job down without a grumble and allowed few to touch the ground. But the remainder of the aggregation—"Good night!" No matter what or how they missed their play they tried to blame it on the wind. Milan was the star actor in the error column, something unusual for that speedy player. Probably he was taking things a bit easy for a change. He has played sterling ball all season and it sure would be a sin to see him go up at the close of the league.

For Dubby's crew McGovern was the leading gent. There is no use talking, that boy can certainly handle first sack. And with the club, the best of them have to doff their hats to him. He has played a cool headed game all season and his record in batting is making a lot of the bunch envious.

There were a few surprises in store for the fans in the playing of O'Brien in the right garden for the Maples. He took in everything that came his way. The ball seemed to stick in his gloved hand, and at bat he was no slouch, having two hits in four times up.

This McKell of whom the Maples have been boasting did not come up to the expectations of the fans. No doubt he was embarrassed, it being his first performance before the St. Peter's patrons.

The presence of a well organized mob of juvenile ruffians, no doubt trained under the direction of Dubby failed to pull the Maples out of the rut. Such howling and screaming was never heard on the bleachers and it continues the boosters can have the grandstand to themselves.

BLEACHER DOPE.

That is what they all said. Will they blame the small collection on the wind?

A couple of blankets would not have been amiss on the grandstand last night.

nihil, norin game he stays home.

Died—On third base, after a linger-
