WEDNESDAY JUNE 18, 1873.

THE time for holding the Nineteenth Annual Conference of our Church is drawing near. Next Tuesday is the day appointed for the meeting at Fredericton of several Conference committees. The Stationing Committee is to meet in the morning, and the Book Committee and the Candidate's Examination Committee in the afternoon. On the following day, the Contingent Fund, the Conference Statistics, the Home Mission Fund, and the Foreign Missionary Committees will hold their sessions. On the succeeding day, Thursday, the 26th, the Conference proper will commence work.

The approach of Conference is always regarded among us with interest, especially by ministers. For even where it is not anticipated that Conference will be followed by an immediate change of pastoral relations, attendance at its sessions involves in most cases an interruption of pastoral routine, a period of rest from pastoral toil, the agreeable excitement of travel, refreshing changes of scene, gladdening intercourse with fellow laborers, participation in scenes fitted to cheer the heart and revive the the spirits weary with work and care, and the bringing of the mind into close contact with subjects of general importance to the cause of the common Master. Of course, ministers expecting to remove after not by any means sure of its whereabouts, have additional reasons for regarding the approach of Conference with lively interest. looked forward to by its members with an interest, not to say an anxiety quite unusual. For it is likely to prove the most greatly advanced, and so also mechanics' memorable one of our history, save perhaps wages the first one of the series of which it may prove the last. For it will have to deal not only with matters of the kind heretofore submitted for Conferential deliberation, but also with the question of a Federal Union of the Wesleyan Methodism of British N. America. That is an exceedingly weighty found feeling of sympathy with the bereavquestion, demanding for its satisfactory solution the most dispassionate and thoughtful consideration. Such consideration, without doubt, the Conference will bestow on called to to experience or witness.

As many of these must lations as to who is going to this Circuit be heads Gi families, it may be concluded and who to that? that his Genevan congregation numbers in all, young and old, several thousand persons. The prospect of the further enlargement and consolidation of the cause championed now in Switzerland by Father Hyachinthe seems promising, though it does not yet appear what dimensions it will finally assume, nor precisely into what form it at last will be moulded.

THE New York Christian Advocate speaks in terms ot approval of the main features of the plan for a new church organization framed to promote the unification of Canadian Methodism. It prefers that plan to the one embodied in the constitution of the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States. It especially likes the provision for the guadrennial election of the general superintendents, as fitted to secure "a general superintendency without the prelatical pretensions inseparable from a life long episcopacy." It is also pleased with the provision for the election of a President by each Annual Conference. thinks his authority should be co-ordinate with that of the general superintendent. It presumes there will under this plan be no episcopal ordination and no distinct ordination of deacons. Finally, the Advocate expresses itself warmly in favour of the complete unification and consolidation of Dominion Methodism.
