ON A BROIDERED MANTLE

THIS mantle dight with rare embroidery
Praxidice contrived with fertile mind;
Dyseris wrought it; both have here, we see,
Their skill and talents happily combined.

VII

ON MYRON'S COW

IF thou by any warning may'st be stirred,
Thy cattle from Myron's cow feed far apart,
Lest thou essay, so wonderful his art,
Drive home the life-like statue with thy herd.
