ADELAIDE THURSTON IN "POLLY PRIMROSE"

It is a pleasure to chronicle the coming of Adelaide Thurston, for it means that praise and promise may be extended without any compromise or mental reservation. She is a youthful and charming little artist, beautiful and capable, and she appears only in plays which not only make her should be seen by everyone.

The Messrs. Wilcox, who manage Miss Thurston, surround her with Miss players and their generosity and taste in mounting plays is proverbial.

Miss Thurston is coming to the Grand Opera House on Monday night when she will be seen in Paul Wilcox's comedy of old Georgetown, "Polly Primrose." The star is well known and needs no recommendation.

The fact that she is playing "Polly Primrose" stamps it as a pure, delightful play, but to this may be added the extraordinarily strong endorsement of the metropolitan critics, who say that as Polly they found Miss Thurston acted with the most fascinating character the stage has seen since she played Lady Babine in "The Little Minister." This was the occasion upon which she appeared before a Chatham audience. Maple City society was out in force that night and they have not forgotten the charming little actress. "The Little Minister" is still remembered as one of the best plays that ever visited this city.

WEDDED AT PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE.

The Baptist Church, Portage la Prairie, was the scene of a very pretty but quiet wedding, Tuesday, when Miss Ida Christina Edmondson was united in marriage to Mr. John E. MacKee, by Rev. Neil Herman.

The bride was given away by her cousin, Mr. C. S. B. Burley. As the bells ceased ringing the hour of twelve the strains of the wedding march announced the bridal party.

Two thirty maidens, Irene and Lillian Burley, preceded the party as ribbon girls. They were immediately ly followed by two little pages. Harold and Charlie Barley, bearing white satin cushions, upon which the bride and groom knelt during prayer. The bride was dressed in her travelling suit of brown broadcloth, the coat opening over a green panna, velvet vest, stitched with bands of white brocade and green silk. Her hat was of brown panna and white chiffon trimmed with tinted foliage, while a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley completed her toilet. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Minnie Edmondson, who wore white point d'esprit over cream silk and a white chiffon hat trimmed in yellow and carried a bouquet of daffodils. Dr. Hugh MacKee, of Cottonwood, Minnesota, did the gallant for his brother. Immediately after the ceremony the guests, who included only the relatives of the bride and groom, drove to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Burley, where a wedding breakfast was served. Mr. and Mrs. MacKee left on the 2 o'clock train for Winnipeg, where they took the St. Paul express for the Southern States. The guests from out of town were: Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Fares and the Misses Fares, Winnipeg; Mr. L. B. Edmondson, Rainy River, brother of the bride; and Mr. W. McKee and Mr. L. McNeill, of Winnipeg. Winnipeg Free Press. Miss Edmondson is a daughter of Mr. Thos. Edmondson of this city.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS.

A Pleasant Medicine Which All Children Will Take Readily.

You do not have to coax and threaten to get the little ones to take Baby's Own Tablets. The ease with which they are given as compared with liquid medicines will appeal to every mother. None is so simple and so pleasant. None is so big a dose has reached the little stomach. As a remedy for all the ills of babyhood and childhood arising from derangements of the stomach and bowels Baby's Own Tablets have no equal. Mrs. E. A. Jewery, Mitchell Bay, N. S., says: "I think the tablets a blessing to both mother and children, as I find them a certain cure for all the ills to which little ones are subject. I do not know how I could get on without them. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25c, a box by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont."

Virtue of Advertising.

It is the custom in one of the schools in a certain Canadian town for each morning one of the scholars to write a sentence on the blackboard. The sentence is criticised by pupils and teachers, and, if necessary, until it is in correct English form. It is then left until the following morning.

During the afternoon recess, recently, one of the boys erased the sentence on the blackboard and substituted the following doggerel:

Jimmie Bliss likes to kiss,
And his class is bliss.

Jimmie's attention was called to it by his friends, but he simply remarked that he didn't put it there and he wasn't going to erase it.

When the school was assembled, the boy (a very beautiful and winning young lad) by the way) noticed the writing on the board, and said, "Jimmie Bliss, did you write that?"

"No, ma'am," said Jimmie.

"I think you did, and you may stay after school," said the teacher.

Jimmie stayed after school. The next morning it chanced to be Jimmie's turn to write the usual sentence, and this is what he wrote: "It pays to advertise."

To be happy is not the purpose of our being, but to deserve happiness.

J. A. Taylor, of Dresden, brother of E. A. Taylor, of Ridgeway, was banquipped by his friends prior to his departure for the Northwest. He was also presented with an elegant auto glass water set. Mr. Taylor has been a leading business man of Dresden for many years.—Ridgeway Dominion.

This week an important business chance took place in Wallaceburg, when Mr. Fred. Dulon sold his restaurant business to Mr. Thos. Fry, a popular young man of Tupperville, who has already taken possession.

It is reported that Mr. Dulon has accepted a position as traveller.—Wallaceburg News.

It is with feelings of regret that we note the departure from Dresden of one of our best citizens and business men, Mr. J. A. Taylor, and such were the feelings manifested and expressed at the farewell banquet given him at the Clifford House on Wednesday evening last by a score or so of his most intimate friends.—Dresden Standard.

J. A. Tremblay, a Liberal politician of Tilbury North, went to Windsor on business and happened to meet J. R. Tourangeau, who is a well-known Conservative politician. A discussion on the proposed change in license inspector resulted in a resort to fists, but friends interferred before the men went very far, although Tremblay had a damaged countenance.—Cumber Herald.

Witlike Collins' Fat Villain.

Here is a story that was told by Hall Calne concerning Witlike Collins. The most successful character in "The Woman in White" was not a woman, but a man—Fosco, the fat villain.

When the book was produced everybody was talking about the fat villain. While the author was staying with his mother a visitor came. The lady said to Collins:

"You seem to have made a great success with your villain in 'The Woman in White.' I have read the book. I have studied this villain, but he is not half a villain. You don't know a real villain, and the next time you want to do a villain come to me. I am very close to one. I have got one constantly in my eye—in fact, it is my own husband."

"Witlike Collins often told this story, but withheld the name of the lady. It was the wife of Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton."

The Long Eared Bat.

The long eared bat puts itself to bed in wraps not only of its own wings, but supplemented by the folding of its own enormous ears. This little British mammal, the body of which is only two inches long from the tip of the nose to the base of the tail, has the largest ears, in proportion to its size, of any animal in the world. They are an inch and a half long and three-quarters of an inch broad, and when their owner proposes to go to sleep it bends them outward and then backward, folding them down on either side of its head and shoulders before bringing up the wings to cover its sides. When waking up it is quite a business for the little bat to get its tall ears straightened out and into position again. They remain for some time at "half cock" and then are gradually set up and erected to serve the animal while awake.—London Nature.

The Expression "Great Scott!"

Correspondents of the London Academy have been discussing the origin of the American expression "Great Scott!" One thought it arose in some obscure way from the name of General Winfield Scott. Another writes: "Surely the connection of this with General Winfield Scott, mentioned by your correspondent, is doubtful—probably a mere folk-etymology or story invented to account for a word not otherwise understood."

Russell's "Current Americanisms" merely defines it as a "superlative oath of no great force and very uncertain origin." He must have been acquainted with the Winfield Scott story and (as he is elsewhere very hospitable to fancy derivations) must have had reasons for rejecting this one, but it is odd that he did not record the fairly obvious corruption of the German "Gruß Gott!"

System with Un-

varying Success

The City Council of Montreal has endorsed this marvelous discovery. The Finance Committee of Montreal recently voted $800 to defray the expense of placing the medicine in each of the city police stations. He is promoter of the College of Treatment to bad habits will prevent the fat lites continually occurring in the cells.

No Sanatorium is required. The Treatment can be taken at any time. A special diet required. The desire to reform is simply necessary and spirits avoided for a few days.

The medicine is now within the reach of all, the price having been reduced. The wonderful results obtained with the worst cases of drunkards coming before the Judges of the Recorder's Court in Quebec Montreal warrants the statement that the disease of Drunkenness can be cured readily and surely—under ordinary circumstances and with the reasonable desire upon the part of an inebriate.

The treatment is simply the medicine of the medical profession—the only secret is as to its administration.

Dr. Mackay's discovery is the result of 25 years of practice as a specialist and expert. He is a member of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the Province of Quebec.

The Government of Quebec through the Judges ordered over 600 boxes of the medicine for prisoners appearing in the Courts in 1904—Official Reports establish 80 per cent. of cures with these cases.

With public and official endorsement and the secure of results published in the newspapers it is a waste of money experimenting further. All communications private.

Gave Temples of India.

Among the fascinating sights of that land of mystery, Hindoostan, are the Karle Caves of India, artificial temples of worship, which were cut out of the rock a century before the Christian era. It is claimed that these wonderful artificial caves are found in a mountain region of the seacoast, 32 miles from Poona, a few hours' railway travel from the City of Bombay.

The caves are situated in the Western Ghats (Ghiffike mountains) form the great sea wall of the Bombay Presidency, leaving only a narrow strip of land between their soaring heights and the ocean.

In many places they rise in magnificent precipitous headlands, looking at a distance like a series of colossal landing stairs and visible afar from the ocean. In many places these spectacular shapes rise abruptly from the shore to an altitude of three thousand or four thousand feet, proudly capped at intervals by peaks from seven thousand to eight thousand feet high.

In the parklike chateaux enclosed and often enclosed by these mighty rock walls are occasional clusters of hills and miniature mountains of solid rock. For ages the temples have been carved into a thousand fantastic shapes.

It is among these Titanic formations that explorers have discovered the gigantic temple caves of the ancient worshippers of Buddha.

Why the ancient builders constructed their temples in the solid rock of the mountains is not explained, except that they were supposed to be more secure than the Pyramids of Egypt or the great temples of India built in the ordinary fashion.

It is certain that there was no lack of material and no bad quarries to interfere with the supply of stone for the great work. Neither lime, mortar nor hodcarriers were required. Whether the temples were blasted or simply chiseled from the mountainside there are no records to show.

The Original Mrs. Grundy.

A writer tells of the origin of Mrs. Grundy and says that "What will Mrs. Grundy say?" occurs in Morton's comedy "Speed the Flow."

One of the characters, Farmer Ashfield, growing weary of constant references to Mrs. Grundy, a character in the play by his good wife, suddenly turns upon her with:

"Be quiet, will you? Always dinging-donging Dame Grundy into my ears. What will Mrs. Grundy say? What will Mrs. Grundy think?"

The phrase tickled the public ear at the time, and is still in fashion.

London Taking Out Its Tonsils.

In London tonsils are being removed wholesale from the parish schools. There shall be no more tonsillitis, as no more appendicitis, if surgery can prevent such unpleasant and unnecessary disturbances. Parents and guardians may be exercised in their minds as to the wisdom of depriving the race of its tonsils, but if human beings get along precisely as well without their tonsils why complain of this prevention, which is better than a pound of cured sore throat?

Gray Eyes and Lovelight.

There are no finer eyes in the world than those clear gray eyes of Quaker gray that now and then we see in some good woman's face. Somehow or other they fill you with a vague desire to pray. They are the eyes that shine with love (a beautiful old word), the light of an exceeding kindness for all living things.

The green iris has had a bad reputation. Shakespeare speaks of eyes "green as leeks" and jealousy as a "green eyed monster." A person with green eyes is stigmatized as "cat eyed" and is supposed to possess all a cat's purring and ingratiating insinuation.
