THE WIND.

I saw you toss the kites on high And blow the birds abou the sky; And all around I heard you pass, Like ladies' skirts across the grass— O wind, a-blowing all day long, O wind, that sings so loud a song!

I saw the different things you did, But always you yourself you hid. I felt you push, I heard you call, I could not see yourself at all— O wind, a-blowing all day long, O wind, that sings so loud a song!

O you that are so strong and cold, O blower, are you young or old? Are you a beast of field and tree, Or just a stronger child than me?
O wind, a blowing all day long,
O wind, that sings so loud a song!

TRIP TO THE FAIR.

An Excellent Description of the Paris Exhibition and More Particularly of the Display Canada is Making There.

Charles Austin, the well-known King street merchant, has received the following excellent but brief description of the Paris Exposition from Toronto firm which is largely represented there, the Merchants' Dyeing and Finishing Co.: Thinking that a brief account of the Paris Exhibition would be acceptable to our friends, we will try to give able to our friends, we will try to give them a brief survey. Imagine your-self at the finocadero Building, which is on the right bank of the Seine and on the highest ground, and look to-wards the other side of the river. Be-low you are the fountains and water-falls and a wide avenue stretches as for as the eve can reach; on each side falls and a wide avenue stretches as far as the eye can reach; on each side of the avenue, down to the river, are various buildings in which the colonies are represented, Algiers, Tunis, South African Republic, Canada, India and also China and Japan. The Canadian buildings are a little off the main avenue; these buildings are supposavenue; these buildings are supposed to represent somewhat the style of architecture of the various countries, and in this respect Canada does not shine. Our buildings are plain and convey no idea whatever of our class of architecture, but we must remember that Canada had to take the place assigned to her, and that you cannot get things done in Paris at exhibition times as you would at home. The times as you would at home. The idea seemed to be, fleece the for ignrdea seemed to be, fleece the fornigner as much as you can, twice or thrice regular price, with "pickings" beside, was the program as far as possible. When you come to the river, you find long stretches on both sides, cleverly constructed so as to interfere with the long stretches on both sides, cleverly constructed so as to interfere with the regular streets as little as possible, taken up with "Old Paris" side-shows, the Street of the Nations, etc., etc., considering that quite a number of exhibits are crowded out and sent up the river to Vincennes; taking you half to three-quarters of an hour to get there, extra fanes, fresh tickets, etc., it would seem that people could have seen plenty of "Old Paris" outside the Exhibition, and certainly side shows are not scarce in Paris either. shows are not scarce in Paris either. If these had been excluded or reduced

If these had been excluded or reduced all the exhibits could have been brought within the main grounds. Crossing the river, you face the celebrated Effel Tower, a splendid monument of engineering skill, which stretches quite across the main avenue; on your left is the Street of the where very good representa-Nations, where very good representa-tive buildings for Italy, Spain, Nor-way, Sweden, England, Germany, Austria, Roumania, United States, also several exhibits, such as the Naval and Marine, the big gun exhibits of Vickers, Maxim, the Creusot, etc. On your right are the Woods and Forests, Agricultural, etc., and more side shows. Then, passing under the Fifted Trace the magnificant can the Effel Tower, the magnificent central avenue, beautifully laid out in walks, grass plots, fountains, shrubs, flowers, etc., etc., while away in front and on your right and left, forming three sides of a square, are the main buildings; here are the principal exhibits, and here are the principal exhibits, and here everyone goes. France occupies by far the lion's share, and forming your impressions by the Exhibition alone, you would say France is a great country, and needs not to go abroad for anything. Russia, Austria, Germany, Switzerland, have each good space and good exhibits. The United States is crowded and any one good States, is crowded and any one good concern there could have filled all the space alloted to each industry. Their machinery exhibit, outside of electric machinery, and especially their automatic lathes and tool machines, form the finest collection of the sort, but are out at "Vincennes." Britain, to those who know her, is conspicuous by her small exhibits; over one hunby her small exhibits; over one nun-dred leading firms withdrew; the space allotted was small anyhow, but from various reasons, the war, etc., they stayed at home. At the previ-ous Paris Exhibition, the Eastern and London, Chatham and Dover Railways handling most of the continental traf-handking most of the continental traf-fic, had an excess over their ordinary receipts of $400,000, this time they are behind their ordinary receipts $150,000, while the roads going north from Lon-don are having large increases; the people are going to Scotland, Wales, Ireland, and the English coast seeing their own country more than every be-Now, where does Camada shine You can see the prize lists in the public press, but we should say that she excels in agricultural implements. Then Canada's exhibit of woods, al-Then Canada's exhibit of woods, although not as favorably situated as some, is splendid. Fruits, especially the display preserved in glass, is first class. Those also displayed in "cold storage" are excellent, and though all last year's fruit, look as though just plucked, Canned goods and meats make an excellent display.

One very commendable thing is, there is nothing to suggest that Canada is a cold country except the eyhibits of made up nothing to suggest that Canada is a cold country except the exhibits of made up furs, but there is everything to suggest that she can grow anything in the farm or garden; the exhibits of grain are very good and artistically arranged, and in every possible place the word "Canada" is prominent. No doubt the commissioners have done their best with the space allotted to them; they were not masters of the situathem; they were not masters of the situa-tion. There is a very fine, large map of Canada, and it has been a general surprise to the outsider to see what Canada can really produce. The exhibits of ores, and especially of Klondike and British Columbia gold ores, etc., is a good omen for the future of our mineral indus. ries. Let it be known abroad how we can shine in the products of the mine, the forest and the field and garden, and never mind your snow slides and huts, ice palaces, etc., etc. The textile displays of the various cotton and woolen mills were very good, and the arrangement of these articles was done by one of the window dressers from one of the Paris great stores, "The Printemps." We don't want to blow about our own exhibit, but it was an eye-opener to the Frenchmen especially that such work was done in Canada. We have been awarded a bronze medal.

Comparing the whole exhibition with the medal.

Comparing the whole exhibition with the last Paris exhibition, it seems to have more "show" and less display of industrial activity in the way of machinery in work. The American display of machinery in work, etc., etc., and the big guns already mentioned, are the most noticeable. In textiles the very heattiful productions of Lyons. the very beautiful productions of Lyons brocades, silks and satins, which seem to foreshadow a return to figured goods, which we feel at present only in blacks, and the displays of laces of all sorts which foredisplays of laces of all sorts which fore-shadow their popularity for next year, are the most attractive, while the special dis-plays of costumes by Worth and Felix were unique; their superb beautiful costumes and dresses on handsome way figures, displayed by electric lights, were one of the chief features of the whole show. The liberality of the Canadian Government in defraying all the expenses of their own peoples' exhibits after they left Montreal, attending to them after they left Montreal, attending to them in every way, and taking charge of them, etc., is very commendable, and must prove a very good advertisement for Canada. Let us hope that the next time we may get into the Main Building or else have a building worthy in its architecture of our enterprise. Why not go to Glasgow next year? We have given the French a good show; let us see now it we can draw a few more canny Scots, but in any case and on all occanny Scots, but in any case and on all oc-casions let us be good, true, loyal Cana-
