ARMED TO THE TEETH

ing young man with such a frank open face would steal anything," remarked one of the neighbor women. "He has an honest face."

"Brown" had departed but a few moments, however, when the boarders came to quite different conclusions. First R. C. Kelly reported a new stiff hat missing, then Mrs. Snell found that her gold watch had been lifted. Another boarder discovered that a little over a dollar in change had been taken out of his pockets. By this time "honest Mr. Brown" was well on his way for distant parts. The police were at once notified, and Officer Dodson got on the trail. A few moments after the stealing had been reported, Dodson nabbed his man. The stranger was making along William street, when he saw the officer coming. He dodged into the Merrill Hotel, but this pursuer was too quick for him.

The man turned out to be a walking arsenal. After his arrest, the following articles were found on his person, a belt with two thirty-two revolvers attached, a box of thirty-two cartridges, a policeman's whistle, a return ticket from Detroit, a set of cuff and collar buttons, several knives, surgeon's scissors, two gold watches, a couple of London street car tickets, pool tickets, and a lot of other small articles which he possibly picked up somewhere. Among other things was a small dictionary, containing the following addresses, "Mr. McIntee, box 57, St. Catharines, Can.," "Frank Rawson, Newark, N. J.," and "43 Market street, Stratford." A photo of two rather good looking young women was also found in his pockets. The photographer's name and address were not on the picture.

On an information laid by Wm. McWhirter, of the News staff, one of Mrs. Snell's boarders, who was "touched," the stranger was arraigned before Judge Houston in Police Court this morning. He pleaded guilty, and said that he stole the stuff in order to get enough money to leave the city. He gave his address as Frank E. Brown, of New York City, but his accent was much more like that of faraway Yorkshire, England. His mannerisms are decidedly not those of an American or Canadian. His case was remanded till a week from Monday. The prisoner was found to be wearing Mr. Kelly's hat. Mr. Kelly called at Police Court this morning, and got the headpiece.

LOST HIS WATCH

Eugene Caron of Pain Court, came into the city this morning to lay an information against Wm. Borden, of the same place, whom he alleges stole a lady's gold watch belonging to him. Caron first notified the police of the stealing some days ago, and Officer McGregor went out to Pain Court yesterday, and managed to get the watch, but Borden could not be arrested until a warrant was issued.

Caron says that Borden came into his house and lifted the time-piece.

SUDDEN DEATH

John Ashton, formerly of St. George street, Yarmouth, died yesterday suddenly at his new home at Highgate yesterday morning. He had been in poor health for some years, being much crippled with rheumatism, by reason of which he was compelled to give up his place in Yarmouth for one requiring less attention. He retired apparently as well as usual last night. Early yesterday morning his wife was aroused by his heavy breathing and was unable to awaken him; and he shortly afterwards expired. The deceased leaves a widow and two sons, John and Philip, residing in Aldborough and Orford, the latter occupying the farm from which his father retired when he came to make his home in Yarmouth. Mr. Ashton was one of the early settlers of Orford, having come to this country from Devonshire when quite young, and was well known as a very successful and prosperous farmer, and highly respected by all who knew him.

Life is worth living.

THE LOCAL MAIL SERVICE

People of Chatham Complain That Morning Mail Is Late

Petition Should be Made to Get a Better Train Service

For some time past bankers, business men and others, have made frequent complaints because of the late hour at which they receive morning mail from the east. Of late, these complaints have become more pronounced. The delay in receiving mail is cited as a great drawback to business, and valuable time is often lost in this way.

Relative to recent complaints, a Planet reporter called on Postmaster Sam. Barfoot yesterday afternoon, and inquired as to the cause.

"The mail is sorted just as promptly as we can get it," said Mr. Barfoot in reply. "There are two morning mail trains—one at 8.30 and another at 8.37. The mail carrier has to await the arrival of both these trains before he can bring the mail to the post office. Supposing that these trains arrive on time—which is not a regular happening—and you allow ten minutes for the carrier to bring the mail to the post office, and for the clerks to get it in shape for distribution, it would then be 8.47. This, you can see, does not allow very much time for our staff to get it all sorted and in the boxes before nine o'clock."

"The morning mail is the heaviest mail we have to handle during the entire day. When it comes in, the entire staff is called into requisition, and everyone hustles their portion of the work up as promptly as possible. We endeavor to get this mail up with the fastest possible speed. Doing our very best, it would be impossible for us to get that mail all up and in readiness for the public before 9.30, even supposing that the trains were always on time."

"We make it a point to put up the bankers and business men's mail first."

It will be seen from this that the only possible remedy for the late morning mails would be a better mail-train service into Chatham. As most people will admit, Postmaster Barfoot and his staff are all quite efficient and thorough in their work, and they make their best efforts to give entire satisfaction.

CHARGE VIOLATION OF THE RAILWAY ACT

Windsor, Sept. 20.—Alleging that an agreement made with the Keystone Construction Company, regarding the building of the Windsor, Essex & Lake Shore Railway, was in violation of the Railway Act, Philip Heseltine and all other shareholders in the company who thin defendants have started suit in the high court against Arthur Piggott, trustee, John Piggott, Walter Piggott, W. C. Crawford, W. E. McKeough and W. R. Phillimore. The claim set up is that the defendants were either directly or indirectly interested in a contract between the company and the Keystone Company for the building of the road. The statement of claim sets forth that the contract was assigned by the Keystone Company to Arthur Piggott as trustee for the sole use and benefit of his co-defendants.

On this ground the plaintiffs ask for an injunction restraining the defendants, other than Arthur Piggott, from acting as directors and for an order setting aside their election. The case will be tried at the next assizes at Sandwich.
